CROWD CHEERS HORNER TAKING GOVERNOR OATH

State Dry Repeal, Economy Urged.

BY PARKE BROWN.

(Pictures on Back Page)

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Headed by Henry Horner, the new governor, six state officials took the oath today in simple but impressive ceremonies at the Springfield arsenal.

This occasion marked the taking over of state control by the Democrats for the first time in twenty years. It was accomplished to the cheers of more than 6,500 people in the spacious arsenal, while rays from a bright January sun streamed in from above. The ceremonies began at noon and lasted one hour and a half.

Others Sworn Before Horner.

Preceding Gov. Horner as takers of the oath of office were Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan of Joliet, Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes, and State Auditor Edward J. Barrett of Chicago, State Treasurer John Martin of Salem, and Attorney General Otto Kerner of River Forest.

Gov. Horner was presented to the throng by the outgoing chief executive, Louis L. Emmerson. Mr. Horner took the oath under guidance of Chief Justice Oscar E. Heard of the Supreme court, who also swore in all of the other officials. Properly in office, Gov. Horner then read his first message to a joint session of the assembly seated before him in the first rows of the spectators' section.

While many of the practical politicians are waiting over in Springfield hoping that the governor will have some appointments tomorrow, it was reported tonight at the inaugural reception that none would be made until next Tuesday.

Sales Tax Up Today.

Legislation introduced tomorrow will likely include the 2 per cent statewide sales tax bill drafted by Dewitt Billman, secretary of the legislative reference bureau. The plan is to introduce the bill immediately and amend it later to include only such commodities as seem desirable.

The prohibition repeal bill, now on second reading in the senate, probably will remain there until a committee which will draft regulatory legislation has met in Chicago Thursday or Friday and decided on restrictions. The regulations would be added to the bill next week and an attempt made immediately to pass it.

Applaud Horner Message.

The inaugural address found high favor with the legislature and the rest of the audience and Gov. Horner was frequently interrupted by applause.

Early in the message the governor turned his attention to prohibition, sounding a call for immediate repeal, with substitution of legislation providing for the regulation of liquor, following action by congress.

For the relief of the idle, the governor proposed enactment of a statewide sales tax; he advocated senatorial reapportionment with full representation in the house of representatives for Cook county, even if downstate should control the senate. He recommended the calling of a constitutional convention.

Would Redistrict State.

Congressional and judicial reapportionment also were among the recommended measures, the governor declaring for more representation for Cook county on the Supreme bench. Having more than half of the population of the state, Cook has but one member of that court.

Banking laws need revision, and state banks raised to the point where the charter for a state bank shall carry a promise that the state will protect depositors, Gov. Horner declared.

Securities laws need strengthening, he added. Turning to the question of utility rates, he stated that there seemed no valid reason why cities and counties of Illinois should pay rates higher than those charged for like service in other communities.

For Insurance Control.

Insurance policy holders were also addressed, Gov. Horner stating that "a state which permits insurance companies to do business within the state assumed a very sacred obligation to protect the policyholders who put their faith in such companies. Every safe-

WIDOW'S STONY CALM BAFFLES 6 IN MURDER QUIZ

As advertised, Mrs. Frances Schildhauer made a personal appearance yesterday at the Marquette police station. For two and a half hours she matched wits and beauty against the experience of six crime investigators who sought from her one word that would put them on the trail of the murderers of her husband, Edwin O. Schildhauer.

That one word was not forthcoming, the six said later, nor had the "widow-to-tell-all" prediction been fulfilled. The young woman, whose husband was bandmaster of the Austin High school until his murder on the night of Dec. 10, carried off the honors in poise, coolness, and dexterity; the investigators carried away nothing.

Attorney James M. Burke promised Supervising Capt. John Stege on Sunday that Mrs. Schildhauer would surrender to the police and "tell the entire truth, regardless of the fact that this will require admissions on her part of immoral conduct." Actually, her questioners said last night, she passed lightly over her own romances and pictured her husband as a gay dog who on occasion preferred the company of other women to that of herself.

Mrs. Schildhauer faced without flinching two men who told of affairs with her. One indiscretion she calmly admitted. She called the other man a liar.

Clashes with Holland Girl.

It was different when she was confronted with Miss Charlotte Holland, a young woman of her own age, 24. Miss Holland repeated in Mrs. Schildhauer's presence her narrative, previously told to the police, of the scene when Schildhauer discovered Carl Bradberry, a former deputy sheriff, garbed in pajamas in the Schildhauer home with Mrs. Schildhauer, who had a coat thrown over her negligee. In turn the widow accused Miss Holland of having been too friendly with Schildhauer.

The two women spoke sharply to each other. Miss Holland spiritedly denied ever having regarded Schildhauer as any but a casual acquaintance and pleasing dance companion. In defiance of Mrs. Schildhauer's expressed belief, Miss Holland told the investigators that she would be willing to undergo a physician's examination to prove her innocence—an offer that drew a sneer from the widow.

Faces Her Six Questioners.

The questioning, long delayed because of Mrs. Schildhauer's reluctance to submit to police examination without the presence of her mother, father, and lawyer, began with the widow sitting at a table facing Capt. Stege, Deputy Chief of Detectives William V. Blaul, Lieut. Thomas Duffy, Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty, Capt. Daniel Gilbert [chief investigator for the state's attorney], Deputy Coroner Jacob Schewel, and a court reporter.

She was pale and without rouge, but not the least bit nervous, when she appeared at the station with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Birkinshaw, and Paul Palmer, roomer in the Birkinshaw home. Smilingly she and her parents acceded to all requests to pose for photographs. Attorney Burke was at her elbow until she went alone into the room where the six questioners waited.

The Widow's Story Begins.

Inside she began the recital of her life with Schildhauer with the story of a visit to the home of a married couple, friends of her husband. This was shortly after her marriage four years ago. Her husband told her late that evening, she said, that he and his friend had agreed to exchange wives for the night and that the friend's wife was willing. It took four to make that kind of a trade, and she, as the fourth, declined, Mrs. Schildhauer said.

Pressed for the names and address of this couple, however, she could give none. She couldn't remember, she said.

Although it had been heralded that there would be other revelations of this nature, the widow gave no other instances. The only name she did mention was that of Miss Holland.

Calls Ex-Fiancé a Liar.

Warren Greenwood, a fireman at the Gary school, was taken into the room in his fireman's togs and with soot streaked face. He had been engaged to Frances before her marriage to Schildhauer. Looking directly at

39 Hoodlums on New 'Public Enemy' Roster

Thirty-nine hoodlums who are looked upon as the chief public enemies in Chicago have been named by Chief of Detectives Schoemaker in a list compiled at the order of Mayor Cermak.

Several hundred others of the second, third and fourth ranks of gangland are also to be listed. Commissioner of Police Allman has instructed all his captains to prepare their own compilations and forward them to Chief Schoemaker for filing.

Part of Mayor's Drive.

Mayor Cermak determined upon the comprehensive list of public enemies as a specific objective in the fight to clean up the city before World's Fair time.

The judges of the Circuit, Superior and Municipal courts are said to be planning harsher treatment, particularly in the matter of technical legal points, against those named.

Head Public Enemy List.

Nos. 1 and 2 on the Schoemaker list are Murray Humphries and William [Three-Fingered Jack] White, lieutenants of the old Capone organization. Versatile and fearless, they have turned in large degree from the beer and alcohol business, which is no longer profitable, and have seized the control of a number of outlaw unions, particularly those of the teamsters.

Other hoodlums on Chief Schoemaker's list, in order, are:

4. Machine Gun Jack McGurn.

LOS ANGELES CALLS U.S. BEHIND ON BOARD FOR FEDERAL FELONS

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Uncle Sam must pay $50,000 into the Los Angeles county treasury or no more federal prisoners will be accepted at the county jail here. Sheriff Gene Biscailuz today called attention of the county board to the government's board bill for federal prisoners covering a period of more than a year. The county board directed Everett Mattoon, county counsel, to take the necessary steps to collect from Uncle Sam. A controversy between the government and the county began more than a year ago. The county demands $1 per day board money per prisoner, while the government contends that 50 cents is sufficient.

With $2,016,000 of Federal Reconstruction Finance corporation funds already being expended on building a giant aqueduct leading from the Colorado river to Los Angeles, and a balance of nearly $38,000,000 R. F. C. funds promised to help finish the work, Los Angeles' new year opened more merrily.

The city also has requested $32,800,000 to help construct a municipal water and power bureau electricity transmission line between this city and Boulder dam. E. F. Scattergood, manager of the power and light bureau, conferred with President Hoover over this loan last September and reported that the city probably will get the money.

Los Angeles also is trying to obtain $3,957,000 from the R. F. C. for the emergency relief fund. It probably will be forthcoming.

Mrs. Waller Borden to Wed J. Carpenter?

Mrs. Ellen Waller Borden, 1020 Lake Shore drive, refused to deny persistent reports that she and John Alden Carpenter, 700 Rush street, musician and composer, are to be married soon, when asked last night to verify the reports.

"I am not ready to make the announcement," Mrs. Borden said. "It is true that it is generally rumored that Mr. Carpenter and I are to be married, but I have no definite plans."

"Will you deny the rumor?" she was asked.

"No," she replied. "But I have no announcement to make at this time."

Reports were that the marriage will take place Jan. 24, and that the couple will sail for Europe about Feb. 1, but Mrs. Borden said she had a social engagement of another variety for Jan. 24.

Both Interested in Music.

Mrs. Borden has for many years in Chicago taken an active interest in music and musical affairs, and friends point to their mutual interest in music as a basis for the reported romance between her and Mr. Carpenter.

Mrs. Borden, who comes from an old Chicago family, is one of the social leaders in Chicago. Her gray stone residence at Lake Shore drive and Bellevue place, modeled after a French chateau, is just opposite the mansion of the late Edith Rockefeller McCormick.

For years Mrs. Borden has been a leader in philanthropic and civic work. She was divorced from John Borden, capitalist, sportsman, and explorer, Dec. 12, 1924, and was given the custody of their two children, Ellen, then 18 years old, and Mary Elizabuth, then 15 years old. Mr. Borden provided trust funds under which each of the children would receive an annual income of $25,000, lawyers said at the time.

The daughter, Ellen, is now Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson, and Mary E. r married to Robert S. Pirie. Mr. Borden has since married Mrs. Courtney Letts Stillwell.

Mrs. Carpenter Died in 1931.

Mr. Carpenter's wife, Rue Winterbotham Carpenter, was noted as an amateur interior decorator. She died suddenly of a cerebral hemorrhage in the office of Dr. Walter Theobald on Dec. 7, 1931. Mr. Carpenter has achieved fame as a music composer. He received an ovation on the occasion of the first Chicago performance of his composition, "Song of Faith," written for the George Washington bicentennial.

Mrs. Borden is the daughter of the late James Breckinridge Waller, who died in 1920, leaving Mrs. Borden and her brother, James B. Waller, to share almost equally in his $600,000 estate.

Six passengers, several of whom had attended the Horner inaugural at Springfield, alighted from an air liner of the American Airways at the Chicago airport, 63d street and Cicero avenue, last night. A few minutes later they started for the loop in a bus provided by the air company. While less than two miles from the field they were kidnaped in the bus by three gunmen and robbed of their money and other valuables.

The "airplane robbery," as the police described it, was the first of its kind in Chicago. Apparently, detectives said, the bandits had watched the plane—arriving from St. Louis and intermediate points—unload its passengers, and trailed them as they left the airport in the bus.

List Victims of Robbers.

The six victims of the holdup were: Charles J. Young, investment broker and receiver of the Pure Oil building, 35 East Wacker drive; Wilmarth Ickes, 703 Walden road, Winnetka, treasurer of the General Printing company, son of State Representative Anna Wilmarth Ickes; John J. McMahon, 77 West Washington street, former assistant state's attorney; Paul Simon, 307 Woodlawn court, Highland Park, accountant; Henry Kerr Jr. of South Bend, representative of the Bendix Brake company, and L. V. Tefft of Grand View drive, Peoria, a patent attorney.

The kidnaping took place at 55th street and Crawford avenue, and the robbery was completed at Keeler avenue and 60th street.

Shortly after 3 o'clock the plane, a large cabin type, landed at the airport and the passengers stepped out. They walked to the hangar and boarded the service bus which was to take them to the loop. The driver was Charles H. Kroll of 1614 Roscoe street.

Bus Forced to Curb.

Without any delay, the bus trip downtown was begun, the driver following the usual course, up Cicero avenue and east in 55th street. At Crawford avenue a sedan which had been trailing the bus from the flying field, drew alongside and forced Kroll to swing to the curb. Two men with drawn guns then jumped from the automobile and boarded the bus.

"Just a little robbery, gentlemen," one of the men announced. He then forced Kroll to the rear of the bus and took his place at the wheel. The second gunman stood at the rear with his revolver in hand and warned against resistance. Then the first bandit drove east in 55th street to Springfield avenue, and south to 60th street. The sedan, driven by the third bandit, followed.

At 60th street the bus was turned west to Keeler avenue, and then was driven about a block north. The sedan, close behind, drew up and the third bandit revealed himself for the first time. The gunman at the rear stepped out while the one at the wheel remained behind as enforcer.

Line Up for Robbery.

Simon stepped out first, and was the first robbed. The bandits took $100 from him. Kerr was next. He lost $50. Attorney Tefft followed and gave up $28, and Attorney McMahon, next in line, lost $70 and a stickpin valued at $650. Young was behind and his pockets yielded $60 and $2,000 in jewelry. Ickes was last. He lost $46.

The bandits were not yet through. One of them went into the bus and loaded his arms with the entire baggage of the six passengers. This he piled into the sedan and then, after cautioning the victims not to be in a hurry to report the robbery to police, got into the car and drove away with his confederates.

With the bandits out of sight, Kroll drove the victims to the Chicago Lawn station and reported the robbery. The victims reported the bandits were young, well dressed and very proficient in their work.

HUNGARY ACTS TO FORBID BRIDGE GAME FOR WIVES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Jan. 9.—The bridge playing epidemic in Hungary will be handled by the government. As wives seem to be more interested in a grand slam than in housekeeping, the ministry of justice is formulating a law forbidding women to play bridge in parlors run for profit.

Government action followed a petition signed by thousands of irritated husbands. The situation, however, has been complicated by the fact that thousands of wives today demanded that the government refuse to sanction the measure.

BORAH CLASHES WITH JOHNSON IN DEBT DEBATE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Those fraternal warriors who have fought side by side many years in the cause of irreconcilability — Senator William E. Borah [Rad., Ida.], and Senator Hiram Johnson [Rad., Cal.]—fell out in the senate today on a point at issue in the war debt question.

SENATOR JOHNSON.

They berated each other with much heat, they glared at each other over the heads of intervening senators and in thinly veiled terms but without actual use of the short and ugly word they called each other liar.

The row started with the reading in the senate of letters from Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson and Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills denying that President Hoover had given Premier Laval of France assurance that the war debts would be reduced if German reparations were scaled down.

Answer Borah's Charges.

These letters were elicited by remarks in the senate last week by Mr. Borah who asserted that President Hoover had given the European debtors reason to believe their obligations to the United States would be scaled down if German reparations were reduced.

SENATOR BORAH.

The letters are reported to have been written at the instance of Mr. Hoover, who feels that Mr. Borah in the role of congressional secretary of state is giving comfort to the European defaulters.

As soon as the letters were read Senator Borah arose and pronounced the denials inconclusive.

"I think," said Senator Borah, "it was sufficient reason for the French nation to urge that there be some consideration of the debts. Whether it was justified in fact or not they so understood it."

Johnson Leaps to Fray.

Senator Johnson leaped to his feet. He could not understand how Borah could find French misunderstanding of the situation justified in view of the fact that congress in response to the President's request for a re-creation of the debt commission had refused and had declared in accepting the moratorium against any reduction of the debts.

Why did not Mr. Borah, the Californian hotly demanded, speak out when the moratorium was before the senate in 1931 and tell about Mr. Hoover's assurances to M. Laval?

"The statement which I made on Wednesday and which I made today was public property," retorted Borah. "It was known to all men. Everything which I have said might have been gleaned from the public record and from the public press."

Johnson Objects to Delay.

"Gleaned from the public record and the public press?" snapped Johnson. "Not so, sir. How was it a matter of news on Wednesday last? It was a matter of news throughout the United States of America when the senator from Idaho took his fiery stand and made the remark that he did.

"We were to depend, were we, when we sat here upon the moratorium, upon this very subject, upon some newspaper report, when the facts rested in the bosoms of certain members of this body who knew them and nobody else except themselves knew them? Why not speak out then? Why not tell the members of this body and the members of the congress of the United States?"

"The senator from California did not need to rely upon the newspapers," mildly remarked the Idahoan. "He could have read the public documents signed by responsible public officers, and had all the information that had been given to the senate by the senator from Idaho."

"That may be, but I think the senator from Idaho possesses a wealth of information that the rest of us do not possess," Johnson flung back sarcastically. "I am willing to grant it."

Withheld During Debate.

"Of course, he possesses a wealth of information upon this subject that the rest of us do not possess, and he locked it in his own heart during the debate upon the moratorium," Johnson went on, glaring at his adversary.

"That is absolutely without foundation in fact," barked Borah.

"I did not say a word about the moratorium, but the facts which I have discussed here. I was in favor of the moratorium."

"And when we were debating what had transpired during Laval's visit, did the senator utter a word concerning it?"

Raps at Publicity Seeking.

"I grant the senator that he can utter to the public press far beyond the rest of us. We can dismiss that aspect of it."

"I trust the senator will not permit any feeling of that kind to control his judgment," Borah interposed. "There is nothing within my knowledge that was not within the knowledge of the senator, if the senator desired to read the public press and desired to read public documents."

Thereupon Johnson boiled over.

"That is absolutely inaccurate," he snorted. "And, to utilize the words of the senator from Idaho, it is utterly without foundation, because I have not the access to the White House nor to the gatherings at the White House nor the conferences nor the confidences that the senator from Idaho has.

"I grant that very readily. I grant his stature. I grant his greatness. I grant him anything he desires in the unlimited wisdom he attributes to himself. I accord that readily and he has it.

Speak Out Next Time.

"But for the love of heaven, if we get another moratorium or another fight upon the debts and he knows anything about them, let him tell his colleagues and tell the American people. It is not in keeping with the senator from Idaho so to sit mute and silent during such a discussion of a question as the moratorium."

"I assume that the able senator from California reads public documents," retorted Borah. "I assumed that he kept himself informed. Hereafter I shall start a kindergarten."

Senators snickered at that.

"He will have the senator from California for the first student," said Borah with elaborate show of good humor.

"He will have a kindergarten which the senator from Idaho has not observed in this discussion," frowned Johnson. "It will be a kindergarten of disclosure and of good faith."

Secretary Stimson's Letter.

The letters from Mr. Stimson and Mr. Mills were addressed to Senator Reed of Pennsylvania, who had objected to Mr. Borah's previous statements in the senate on the same subject," Mr. Stimson said.

"I have received your inquiry as to the discussion which took place last year between Mr. Hoover and M. Laval. According to my recollection, and that is quite clear, so far as these discussions touched upon the subject of debts and reparations, they were limited entirely to temporary steps which might be taken to offset the effects of the depression. . . .

"No cancellations or revision of either debts or reparations was proposed by either side. No assurances or commitments on such subject were either asked or given. The communique given out at the close of these discussions was an accurate statement of the discussion in all these respects."

Mills' Letter Similar.

Secretary Mills' letter to Senator Reed read:

"I was present at all of the meetings between the President and Premier Laval. I can say without qualification that there is no justification for any assertion or belief that during the course of those conversations any assurance, direct or implied, was given that there would be a revision of French debt obligations to the United States in consideration of a revision of German reparations such as subsequently took place at Lausanne."

3 CENT POSTAGE GIVES STORES AN ECONOMY LESSON

Deliver Own Bills and Effect Savings.

Chicago merchants, dairymen, and other enterprises doing a charge account and delivery business have been taught a lesson in economy by the federal government's increase in postage rates. Instead of incurring additional expenses under the higher rates they are sending out their bills and statements by delivery truck drivers and saving as much as 50 per cent on the mailing bills.

A survey yesterday disclosed that some State street department stores have effected monthly savings that will total from $10,000 to $16,000 a year in the billing of their customers The bills are placed in regulation envelopes, but no stamps are attached Delivery men destined for certain neighborhoods with merchandise take along the bills for all customers in that vicinity, with little or no additional expense to the stores.

Include Sales Literature.

One reason for the new method of delivery is the practice of sending advertising matter in the envelopes containing bills and statements, a department store executive explained. The maximum weight of a letter is one ounce unless additional postage is paid, and the present rate is 3 cents, having been increased from 2 cents last July 6. The merchants can now send as much of this advertising matter as they desire without paying any postage.

"The government has taught us a lesson in economy," said the head of another State street store. "We have cut the cost of delivering bills and statements in half and we wouldn't go back to the old system if they put the postage rate back to 2 cents."

Postal Receipts Decline.

Postoffice officials said they were aware of the new method of distributing bills, but no estimates were available on the total loss in revenue it will mean to the government. Postoffice receipts have declined in Chicago since the adoption of the new postage rates, but the authorities could not estimate what part of the decline is due to the truck delivery practice and what part to the decline in business.

The new method first came into wide use during the month of September and the following table gives a comparison of Chicago postal receipts during that and succeeding months with corresponding months of the previous year:

	1931.	1932.	Gain or loss.
Sept. ..	$3,884,336	$3,643,971	Loss, 6.18%
Oct. ..	4,190,860	3,675,010	Loss, 12.03%
Nov. ..	3,822,119	3,841,182	Gain, .05%
Dec. ..	5,200,801	4,516,272	Loss, 13.16%

A few of the larger stores have not yet adopted the new method, but others predicted that the practice will soon become general.

ROOSEVELT HAS A 3 HOUR TALK WITH STIMSON

Discuss Foreign Affairs, but It's Secret.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—In a strictly orthodox Washingtonian fashion the retiring secretary of state, Henry L. Stimson, met the President elect, Franklin D. Roosevelt, today in a three hour discussion of foreign affairs.

Most of their talk was staged at the luncheon table in Mr. Roosevelt's home at Hyde Park, and when the dishes had been cleared and nothing remained on the table except the coffee cups and a large bowl of shelled nuts, the President elect invited newspaper men to come in.

Reporters Are Introduced.

The two men sat close together at one end of the table, and the newspaper men were introduced by Mr. Roosevelt to the secretary of state. With this formality complied with, one of the reporters crassly opened the interview by asking the nature of the discussion just ended.

Mr. Roosevelt smiled at Mr. Stimson and said:

"It has been delightful to have the secretary for luncheon at Hyde Park."

Mr. Stimpson smiled back at Mr. Roosevelt and said:

"And may I indorse thoroughly the delightful luncheon and say that I have had a most satisfactory visit with the governor?"

And that was that, so far as news of the conference went, although later Mr. Roosevelt let it be known that he and Mr. Stimson had discussed "probably about everything with relation to foreign affairs," which cleared the news situation immensely.

Whether to Recognize Russia.

From other sources it was stated that Mr. Roosevelt questioned the secretary exhaustively on the most pressing diplomatic affairs, including the critical Sino-Japanese situation, the department's position on whether to recognize soviet Russia, the impending economic conference of the nations, the war debts and disarmament. Part of the discussion, it was stated, concerned the more routine workings of the state department.

The President elect was asked if he intended to summon other members of the Hoover cabinet, it appearing likely that he might desire similar enlightenment on the activities of the treasury and agricultural departments, or the department of justice.

Secretary Stimson slipped out of role for a second. He interrupted the President elect in the beginning of a reply.

Interruption Is Ignored

Mr. Roosevelt took no notice of the interruption and said it was "perfectly possible" that he may see other Hoover cabineteers, but that he didn't know yet.

Immediately after the press interview Mr. Roosevelt and his guest climbed into one of the governor's closed cars and started out for New York.

Father Charles E. Coughlin of Detroit, famed radio crusader, was to visit Mr. Roosevelt at his New York house before dinner, and afterward Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt planned to take their two youngest sons, Franklin Jr. and John, to a theater. It was the President elect's first visit to the theater since his nomination last July. The two boys are to return tomorrow to continue their classes at Groton, Mass.

Defeated Representative Named for U. S. Power Job

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—President Hoover today appointed Representative Samuel S. Arentz [Rep., Nev.], who was defeated in the last election, to be a member of the federal power commission.

CHURCH, YEARS HEAD OF THE MORTON HIGH SCHOOL, DISMISSED

Harry V. Church, veteran superintendent of the J. Sterling Morton High school in Cicero, was discharged by the board of trustees last night. He has been connected with the school for 34 years. His dismissal was based on the recent revolt of the pupils of the school against the alleged mismanagement of school affairs on the part of the trustees. Church sided with the pupils, and announced he was ready to sacrifice his job in their interest.

HARRY V. CHURCH.

Formally, the ouster was predicated on a petition demanding Church's removal which was presented by the United Taypayers' association of the western suburbs. The petition charged that Church failed to maintain discipline among the pupils; failed to stop the spreading of false propaganda, and failed to prevent property damage. Church categorically denied the accusations.

The board then voted. President Frank A. Svoboda and Trustees Edward Stuchlik, Edward Charvat and Henry Langner voted for dismissal. Trustee John J. Sherlock voted against it. Cheers and boos from the 600 villagers present greeted the action. Church refused to comment. The ouster is effective immediately, but Church's salary will continue until his contract expires in June.

ROOSEVELT FOR BANK BILL, GLASS TELLS SENATE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Disputing factions neared a compromise on the controversial branch banking provisions of the Glass bank reform bill tonight after President Elect Roosevelt had been represented to the senate today as favoring the measure.

Senator Carter Glass, Virginia Democrat and sponsor of the bill, told the senate he felt "authorized to say that President Elect Roosevelt wants this bill passed."

His statement was made after efforts had been begun to reach an agreement whereby the branch banking clause of the bill would apply only to those states whose laws permit such practices.

As this hurdle in the bill's path was lowered another rose to take its place, however, in formal notice of a fight against the measure's requirement that national banks and their security affiliates must be divorced within three years.

As the senate resumed debate Glass took the floor and denied that Roosevelt was unfriendly to the measure. He was referring to statements by Senator Long, Louisiana Democrat, that Roosevelt would oppose the bill.

LOMBARD SEEKS WARRANT SALES TO OPEN SCHOOLS

The grade schools of Lombard, in Du Page county, which failed to open for lack of funds following the Christmas vacation, will stay closed unless citizens of the community subscribe for $10,000 worth of tax warrants, Charles Rand, member of the Lombard board of education, declared yesterday.

A drive to sell the warrants is "making progress," he said. The drive is to close next Monday, and in the event the tax warrant pledges are obtained, the schools will reopen on Jan. 23. Subscribers are required to pay only 25 per cent of their subscriptions at once. The $10,000 will run the schools until June.

The suburb has three schools, with a total of 735 pupils. One of these, the Green Valley school, has been definitely closed for the rest of the year. Its pupils will be sent to the other two schools if they reopen.

$105,000 LEGAL FEES UNDER FIRE IN BANK FAILURE

Noel Depositors Protest at Master's Hearing.

Charges that $105,000 attorneys' fees requested by the law firm of Judah, Reichmann, Trumbull & Cox for legal services in connection with the receivership of the Noel State bank are "grossly excessive" were made yesterday before Master in Chancery George E. Gorman.

The charges were made by Attorney Thaddeus R. Diadul, representing the depositors of the bank, which closed June 18, 1931, owing depositors approximately $4,000,000. The last report of the receiver, Henry S. Savage, showed a balance due creditors of $3,253,945.

6,519 Hours Claimed.

A number of depositors attended the hearing held in Master Gorman's office on the fifth floor at 1 North La Salle street. The question of fees had been referred to the master by Judge Joseph Burke. The law firm based its claim for $105,000 on a showing that 6,519 hours of legal work had been rendered in connection with the receivership over a period of 16 months.

Attorney Arthur M. Cox of the receiver's law firm testified that he put in a total of 995¼ hours in connection with the receivership. He had charge of the legal end of the receivership, he said, and spent a great deal of time conferring with Receiver Savage on many complicated legal questions.

"Much work was required to get the assets into shape," Mr. Cox testified. "There were 268 trusts to be liquidated. Investigating preferred claims, collecting notes, foreclosure proceedings, and hundreds of other court matters required much time."

Charges for Travel Time.

On cross-examination Mr. Cox admitted that whenever he was called to visit the bank by the receiver he charged for the time it took to travel back and forth from his downtown office to the bank at Milwaukee and North avenues.

"What would be your usual or customary fee in such a case?" Attorney Diadul asked him. Gorman ruled that the question was not proper cross-examination and the lawyer was not required to answer.

Donald B. Dodd, a young attorney admitted to the bar in 1930, was the next witness. He said he had put in a total of 838 hours of work in connection with the receivership, being at the bank daily for a period of five months. He was asked under cross-examination what regular salary was paid him by the law firm of Judah, Reichmann, Trumbull & Cox, but Master Gorman again ruled that this was not proper cross-examination.

Twelve other attorneys, connected with the law firm, who worked on the receivership and whose combined efforts represented the total of 6,519 hours of work for which the $105,000 is demanded, will also appear as witnesses. The hearing will be resumed this morning.

Mother of 3, Leaving Home, Killed by Her Husband

PROPOSE AUTO CERTIFICATE ACT TO STOP THEFTS

Bill Is Sponsored by Crime Commission.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 83; recovered, 80; stripped, 12 [from police records for the twenty-four hour period ending at midnight Sunday].

Automobile case defendants: Benjamin Ploharski, Steve Konieczka, Joseph Lumpp, and John Federinko each sentenced to six months in the house of correction for auto theft. George Panick fined $200 and costs for riding in a stolen car. All cases before Judge J. W. Brooks.

A bill intended to curb the Illinois auto theft evil is being drafted under sponsorship of the Chicago crime commission for introduction at this term of the state legislature.

As outlined the bill would compel every automobile owner to obtain from the secretary of state a certificate of title to his car, whether purchased new or second hand. This measure, it is said, would surround automobile ownership with safeguards similar to abstracts of title for real estate owners.

The proposed bill is the type of anti-theft legislation approved by the national conference on street and highway safety, and has already been adopted in twenty-four states and the District of Columbia.

Thefts Increase Here.

Enactment of the legislation in the adjacent states of Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, and Missouri, while effectively curbing auto thievery there, has resulted in an increase of such thefts in Illinois and the dumping of stolen cars on the Chicago market, according to Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, managing director of the crime commission.

At the behest of insurance agents, auto dealers and motor club officials, who were finding the activity of auto thieves intolerable, Frank J. Loesch, president of the crime commission, has had a committee at work on the problem for nearly three months, it was learned in insurance circles.

Mr. Loesch undertook to cope with the problem last Nov. 16 in a letter to twenty-two individuals, including such newly elected officials as Gov. Horner, State's Attorney Courtney, and Secretary of State Hughes, as well as Mayor Cermak, Police Commissioner Allman, Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court, Attorney Joseph H. Braun of the Chicago Motor club, and Cy Mayer, president of the Automobile Club of Illinois.

Unite on One Measure.

In his letter Mr. Loesch asked the 22 men to a conference to unite on a program and to prevent the introduction of a multiplicity of bills designed to curb the auto theft evil. Eighteen of the twenty-two responded to the invitation. A committee composed of Mr. Braun, Edward L. Richards, auto insurance executive; Henry Hollingshead, auto dealer, and Col. Chamberlin, was named to study remedies.

The proposed bill was the result. Confirming reports of the plan to present it to the legislature, Col. Chamberlin expressed hope that support would be mobilized solidly behind the bill to assure its passage.

SEIZE SEVEN; RECOVER LOOT

Seven young men were held at the detective bureau last night as alleged auto thieves. One of them, Walter Gracious, 16 years old, of 2637 19th street, escaped from the Pontiac reformatory last week, at the same time that the warden's automobile was stolen. Parts of this car were recovered.

The roundup started Saturday when Motorcycle Policeman Thomas Sheridan arrested Harry Andrews, 18 years old, 1902 Cullerton street, in a stolen car. He confessed stealing 14 autos in five months and named his companions.

They were Joseph Migacz, 27 years old, 4430 South Knox avenue; Joseph Pierog, 22; William Niethos, 22, of 5121 South Kolin avenue; Joseph Kovalisk, 22, 5946 55th street, and August Limmert, 21, 3946 Octavia avenue.

CRIME BOARD SCORNS SECRET 6 PLEA FOR MERGER

Extra Legal Groups Hard Pressed for Funds.

Difficulty in obtaining financial backing has caused various so-called extra legal bodies such as the Secret Six, headed by Robert Isham Randolph, Alexander Jamie, former prohibition agent, and Mrs. Shirley Kub, former police stool pigeon, to seek a merger with the Chicago Crime commission, it was admitted yesterday by the various directing officials of these organizations.

However, the directors of the Chicago Crime commission at a meeting several months ago unanimously refused to go into the detective business with Randolph and Mrs. Kub, or with other organizations formed to ferret out vice and crime independently of the constituted authorities. Frank J. Loesch, the veteran crime fighting head of the commission, reiterated the views of his directors yesterday when he said he did not believe the commission should be asked to associate itself with the various organizations and their amateur detective forces.

Refuse to Negotiate.

"The directors of the crime commission voted unanimously against any merger some months ago," said Mr. Loesch yesterday, as he discussed the renewal of the efforts to tie the other organizations to the crime commission.

"My conviction is that the commission should not be asked to destroy its independence by taking in any other organization. The commission has a definite objective to accomplish and it can best do that by remaining just exactly as it is."

Although neither Mr. Loesch nor Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the commission, would say just which organization originally suggested the merger, it became known that the offer came from those backing the so-called Secret Six. The directors of the commission unanimously refused to even negotiate on such a proposition, but agreed to have one of its members, Charles R. Holden, a former president, meet with representatives of the other organization from time to time to informally exchange views on accomplishments. Mr. Holden went to California soon after.

Depression Cuts Revenue.

"It is true that there has been some talk of coördination and consolidation of the various organizations," said Gordon L. Hostetter of the Employers' association. "The depression, of course, has had its effect on all such organizations as ours."

Charles Miner, superintendent of the committee of 15, said that his organization was interested in any feasible arrangement to consolidate. The income of that organization, he admitted was only about 65 per cent in 1932 of what it was in 1931.

George W. Rossetter, president of the Association of Commerce, which originally sponsored the Secret Six, said that "nothing official has as yet developed on any merger." He refused to discuss for publication the reports that the Secret Six, as a result of the recent exposure of the organization methods, was finding it difficult to sustain itself financially.

Fireworks Hide Suspect.

The latest fiasco of the Randolph-Jamie-Mrs. Kub organization, which it is said has made contributions hard to get, was the pyrotechnical display put on by the amateur detectives in an effort to catch the extortionist who has been sending threatening letters to Solomon Smith, president of the Northern Trust company. The extortionist called for a ransom package prepared by Jamie and Mrs. Kub and was greeted by a fireworks display. That, however, is all the waiting private detectives saw, because the extortionist disappeared before the smoke of the fireworks cleared away.

The effort to foist the Secret Six on the crime commission started when a grand jury exposed the preelection activities of Randolph and his private detectives. At that time Randolph, Jamie and Mrs. Kub announced some bribery and tax fixing plots, but had no evidence. The grand jury at that time suggested that the constituted authorities be allowed to do their own work without hindrance from amateur detectives.

Mrs. Kub Needs $300 "to Live."

It was during these investigations that the disclosure was made that Mrs. Kub, the discredited police stool pigeon who had two husbands, one of them a colored man and the other a convict, had been employed as co-directing head of the organization with Randolph and Jamie. Just before that time Mrs. Kub asked for employment at another crime organization and said that she must have $300 per month as a salary, because she could not live on less.

Soon after the failure of Mrs. Kub and Jamie to substantiate their election charges a jury in the civil courts found the Secret Six guilty of causing the false arrest of William S. Kuhn Jr. Jamie, Edgar Dudley, a private detective of the organization, and William Van Doren Wright, a steel company executive, were ordered to pay Kuhn $30,000 damages for charging him with writing extortion letters to Wright's debutante daughter.

COOLIDGE WILL LEAVES WIDOW ENTIRE ESTATE

Text and Value Not Made Public.

Northampton, Mass., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The will of Calvin Coolidge was found today among his personal papers at his home, the Beeches, where he died Thursday. In a few words the simple document drawn by the former President himself leaves his entire estate to Mrs. Coolidge, who will be named executrix. No indication was given as to the probable value of the estate, but estimates ran up to $500,000.

John Coolidge, the former President's son, was provided for in a trust fund estimated at $100,000, created by Mr. Coolidge a short time after his son's marriage to Florence Trumbull.

The witnesses to the will, which was drawn up when Mr. Coolidge was in the White House, were Edward T. Clark and Everett Sanders, his secretaries, and Erwin Geisser, his stenographer.

The will will be filed in the Probate court of Hampshire county Jan. 17, the bimonthly date for presenting wills to be probated.

The will was found among Mr. Coolidge's personal papers. Mr. Hemenway and Harry E. Ross, who was Mr. Coolidge's secretary here, went to the Beeches this morning and had a talk with Mrs. Coolidge.

Neither Mr. Hemenway nor Mr. Ross would venture an opinion on the value of the estate. They would not reveal the amount nor whether Mr. Coolidge had any life insurance policies.

WOMAN KILLS HERSELF.

Geneseo, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Mrs. Lloyd Stafford, 34, died early yesterday morning after taking a quantity of pills containing a poison following an oyster supper and party. She had been highly nervous since the death of her father about a month ago.

Regular Service

While their mistresses attended the first meeting of the north side committee of the Chicago Friends of Music in the home of Mrs. Frank Hibbard, 1301 Astor street, half a dozen dogs who had come as far as the door were escorted to a nearby park and exercised.

The Chicago Friends of Music was formed to sell 100,000 one dollar tickets to finance a permanent temple of music within the world's fair grounds.

Each dog was under the supervision of a small boy, the boys having acquired the professional title of "treers," since Mrs. Hibbard listed "providing treers for dogs" as among the services she supplies from her shop, "Conveniences, Inc.," 106 East Oak street. The proceeds from this and other services regularly provided by "Conveniences" go to charity.

Among the gold coast dogs who introduced themselves to each other at the party, which ran concurrently with the meeting and tea in the Hibbard apartment were "Splinter," the Scottie belonging to Mrs. Henry Faurot Jr., and the little cocker spaniel, "Quanto," owned by Mrs. F. Clay Bartlett.

"Devil," Miss Eleanor McCormick's big Schnauzer, walked ahead with dignity, as the little white West Highlanders of Mrs. James Hopkins, "Corky" and "Rhona," frolicked on the ends of leashes held by a boy who exercises them twice a day. Mrs. Howard Gillette's Cairn, called "Foxie," also appeared to enjoy the canine social affair.

SLEEPING BABY SLAIN IN ITS CRIB WITH STILETTO

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Teresa Camanaro, 16 years old, went to the room at the rear of the second floor of her parents' dwelling in the Bronx early tonight to make sure that her four months' old nephew, Frank Michael Camanaro, was resting comfortably in his crib.

Tiptoeing to avoid disturbing her ward, the girl opened the door and approached the crib. For a minute she stood transfixed: then her screams brought the baby's mother and her own mother on the run from the basement.

A black handled stiletto had been plunged through the baby's chest. The six inch blade had been driven home with a savage blow. The point penetrated the mattress beneath while the ebony hilt protruded above the pink blanket in which the sleeping baby had been wrapped.

The crib stood within a few inches of a window, opening on an inclosed porch. The door leading from the porch to the room was locked, but the window was open. The slayer had apparently reached through the window to stab the child.

From the scanty information at their command, the police began work on the theory that the killing was one of revenge or jealousy.

Mrs. Josephine Camanaro, the baby's mother, told the authorities that she had visited her child only about twenty minutes before the finding of the body and that everything was all right then. Teresa said that she had spent the interval in the next room, but had heard nothing out of the ordinary.

The baby's father, Frank Camanaro, a barber, told the police he had no enemies.

Canal Trustee's Garbage Dumps Not Affected.

Five dumps in which the city disposes of refuse from fifteen south and west side wards were closed yesterday because of a strike called by Michael Carrozzo, head of several unions of city laborers. In the fifteen wards no collection of ashes, rubbish, or garbage has been made for several days because of the walkout.

The men called out on strike were 20 city laborers who were employed at the dumps to unload garbage trucks and trailers. They were told to strike, according to information received by Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, because the city has been paying the bills of the refuse disposal contractors, although the laborers are paid only to September, as is the case with other city employés.

Some Workers Not Affected.

This explanation was discounted by city officials. They remarked that it was "peculiar" that the city laborers working at dumps controlled by the Industrial Refuse Disposal company, in which Paul V. Colianni, sanitary district trustee, is interested, are not affected by the strike, although the men belong to the same Carrozzo union as do the strikers.

With one exception, the owners of the closed dumps are paid less by the city than by Colianni. Colianni charges 50 cents per cubic yard for dumping at 40th street and Ashland avenue 47 cents at 19th and Lincoln streets where the city furnishes the labor: and 22½ cents for dumping near 104th street and Lake Calumet.

H. Dahlsgard, a competitor of Colianni, whose dump also is near 104th street and Lake Calumet, charges only 18 cents per cubic yard. The owners, locations, and prices paid at the other closed dumps are: South Side Refuse Disposal company, 87th and State streets, 35 cents; Chicago Grading company, 39th street and Cicero avenue, 35 cents; Chicago Grading company, 79th street and Western avenue, 40 cents; M. Tiberi, 74th street and Mozart avenue, 50 cents. City laborers are employed at all of the closed dumps with the exception of Tiberi's.

City officials said that the strike would not force them to haul garbage to the higher priced Collanni dumps. While recognizing that uncollected and decaying garbage constitutes a menace to health, they declared that the city could not afford to pay more now for refuse disposal. They held that the strike should be investigated by State's Attorney Courtney.

TAX COLLECTIONS SPEEDED UP, BUT GOAL IS DISTANT

Drive Makes Small Dent in Unpaid Total.

The drive to collect delinquent real estate taxes, prosecuted in the County court by County Attorney Hayden N. Bell and his assistants, has increased payments of such taxes to more than eight times their former rate, but so far has made only a small impression in the mountain of unpaid taxes in Cook county.

This was shown yesterday by statistics on tax collections made public by George Hagenauer, auditor for County Treasuref McDonough. The tax collection drive was reflected in increased payments about Nov. 20, Mr. Hagenauer said. Between that date and the close of business last Friday, Jan. 6, the county treasurer collected $9,448,850 on the 1928, 1929 and 1930 real estate levies. This is exclusive of personal property taxes, which were not affected by the litigation before County Judge Jarecki.

Rate Is $6,000,000 a Month.

The collections of delinquent real estate taxes were at the rate of about $6,000,000 a month, and were made during a period when small taxpayers, at least, found the heaviest burden of the year on their family budgets, due to the holiday season. Before the drive started, Mr. Hagenauer said, payments of delinquent taxes had been coming in at the rate of about $500,000 a month. However, part of the payments made during the collection drive have been due to the installment payment plan instituted by Treasurer McDonough.

The increase in collections seems impressive until it is compared with the total of taxes still uncollected on the levies for the three years, officials pointed out. On Nov. 20 this total of unpaid taxes on real estate alone stood at $181,237,016. Since then this amount has been reduced by only 5.24 per cent.

Declining Collections Shown.

The following table shows the total of real estate taxes extended for the last three levies placed in collection, the total collections to date, and the percentages of the levies which have been collected:

Levy.	Extensions.	Collections.	Per cent.

Collections during the period from Nov. 20 to Jan. 6 on the 1928 real estate levy were $638,308, or 37 hundredths of 1 per cent of the total extension. The 1928 levy, on which the delinquency date was passed a little more than two and a half years ago, is approaching as perfect a collection record as was made of taxes even in normal, predepression years. Allowances of 9 or 10 per cent for loss and cost of collection have always been made. The present loss and cost on the 1928 real estate taxes is 12.63 per cent.

1929 and 1930 Collections.

Collections of 1929 real estate taxes during the six weeks' period in question were $2,402,627, which is 1.19 per cent of the total extensions. The delinquency date on this levy passed 18 months ago. On the 1930 levy, on which the delinquency date fell last summer, the collections since the drive started have been $6,407,915, which is 2.89 per cent of the total real estate tax extensions in that levy.

Action on objections still pending in the County court and before higher state and federal courts should stimulate payments, he said, but he pointed out that 1931 taxes will become payable shortly, imposing a new burden on real estate owners and lessening their ability to meet their back bills.

GRAVE TASKS CONFRONT U. S. AS 1933 OPENS

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The growing agitation in and out of congress for various schemes of inflation of the currency in order to raise the prices of commodities echoes the groans of a debt ridden people.

Notwithstanding the decrease in the cost of living, the decline of income and new tax exactions to meet increased costs of government combine to make the debt burden heavier. It now takes more than two dollars to discharge a dollar of predepression debt. To restore the balance the inflationists have raised again the cry for cheap money that resounded through the hard times of the seventies and the early nineties.

Income Falls Sharply.

The aggregate income of the people has fallen from 85 billions of dollars in 1929 to an estimated 38 billions in 1932; that is, from about $708 to $316 per capita. The cost of federal, state, and local governments is still approximately 15 billions a year, or $125 per capita. Aggregate public and private debts are estimated at 200 billions, the interest charge on which is 10 billions, $83 per capita. Of this total the farmers' debt is estimated at about 15 billions, the interest charge on which is around one billion.

With allowance made for duplications, taxes and debts are costing about $200 per capita. But whereas in 1929 there was $508 per capita of income over and above taxes and debts there is only $116 per capita now to meet living expenses, pay the principal of indebtedness, and accumulate capital for future needs.

Tax Sources Drying Up.

These figures tell the story of the drying up of the sources of tax revenue. Yet the cost of government remains as high as when these sources were capable of producing the required revenue. To obtain the additional revenue now needed to support undiminished government expenditures the government increases taxes, which still further decrease net income, diminish purchasing power, and retard recovery from the depression.

Budgets are still being based in large part upon the expectation that prosperity is just around the corner, that business is about to revive, bringing increase of incomes and renewed ability to pay taxes. The reasoning is that depressions are cyclical; they come, they last about so long, they go. One of the keenest minds in Washington questions the soundness of this attitude with reasons that are interesting.

New Factors Are Cited.

He thinks that the duration of this depression cannot be judged by that of past depressions because of the following six "fundamental economic factors which are now distinctly unfavorable and which were nonexistent" hitherto:

"1. During the last century, at least up to 1890, the United States had a frontier, with all that implies. The United States now has no frontier.

"2. The United States had large immigration, which meant producers and consumers. The United States now has no immigration.

"3. The United States had a high birth rate, which meant producers and consumers. The United States now has a comparatively low birth rate.

"4. The United States had a low per capita taxation. At present the per capita taxation is very high, with what that implies in connection with business and the accumulation of wealth.

"5. The United States had a low per capita indebtedness, governmental, corporate, and private. Now it has a high per capita indebtedness, governmental, corporate, and private, a great deal of which must be liquidated, in a rough way, with two dollars for every one dollar contracted.

"6. The development of the machine, which now can produce as much volume with, roughly, 40 per cent fewer employes."

SUES FOR $50,000 DAMAGES; LOVE THEFT CHARGED

The praecipe of a $50,000 damage suit was filed in the Superior court yesterday by Lee Roy Moser, 6404 Greenwood avenue, representative of the Western Screw Manufacturing company. The praecipe named as defendants Charles S. Campbell, 406 Franklin avenue, River Forest; his wife, Blanche, and his brother, Heber Campbell. The Campbell brothers are sons of H. W. Campbell, an executive of the Hall Printing company. Moser's attorney, Morris Sider, said the suit would charge the defendants with alienating the love of his client's wife, Marjorie.

BUDGET PARING FAILS TO STRIKE SCHOOL FRILLS

Cut Off $5,000,000 and Boost Educational Fund.

A total of $5,408,439 was trimmed from the 1933 budget appropriations of more than 79 million dollars yesterday at a meeting of department heads in the office of Howard P. Savage, business manager of the school system. Fads and frills that have crept into the schools during the last 30 years were not touched. The cut promised to the Sargent committee is to be between 23 and 24 million dollars.

Yesterday's slash in the appropriations included principally the elimination of $2,330,000, which was to have been expended on new buildings, and a decrease of $2,378,439 in the amount set for loss and cost in the collection of taxes.

Education Costs Increased.

In the tentative budget Supt. William J. Bogan has asked appropriations that would increase the cost of instruction in the Chicago schools by $1,316,434.88. The school officials, however, did not offer any plan to trim these expenditures at the business manager's conference.

Among the increases in educational expenditures for 1933 is an appropriation of $300,000 for new teachers in the junior and senior high schools.

Other reductions decided upon at the conference were $200,000 for interest on educational loans and $500,000 in repairs. The interest charges are on the participation certificates, or scrip, which was issued to school employés in lieu of cash in 1931. The school attorneys informed Savage that because of litigation over the validity of the scrip the interest would not have to be met in 1933.

Cut Costs of Repairs.

To meet the need for reductions, John Howatt, chief engineer of the school system, agreed to cut $50,000 from the appropriation for engineers' repairs, and C. J. Lamb, director of the bureau of repairs, agreed to eliminate painting and interior decorating jobs that would cost $450,000. These constitute the total savings on repairs so far proposed by department heads.

The levy for the educational fund was increased by $2,300,000 over the $45,000,000 allocation suggested by School Auditor Harry Brackett in his tentative balance of the budget in accordance with the tax levies proposed by the Sargent committee.

In order to do this, $100,000 was taken from the playground levy of $600,000 and $1,200,000 from the building fund levy, which was eliminated entirely. To gain the additional $1,000,000 required for the educational fund increase the department heads made a new interpretation of the Sargent committee recommendation.

The committee had suggested that the school board levy taxes of $48,000,000 for all school purposes, exclusive of $7,984,444 for bond redemption and interest. The school officials insisted that teachers' pension and retirement levies came under the latter category and placed them there.

Mr. Savage announced that the department heads would tackle the budget pruning task again this morning.

TRUE BILL VOTED AGAINST ALLEGED 'FIXER' OF TAXES

3 Accused of School Forgery Also Named.

CRIMINAL COURT.

William Grice, confidence game, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; James Stewart and Louis Dunkensel, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary, by Judge Michael Feinberg.

A true bill charging confidence game against George F. Horstman, alleged operator of a tax fixing racket was reported to have been voted yesterday by the Cook county grand jury. Horstman is accused of having frequented the court of County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki and swindled tax payers who appeared there to protest their tax assessments.

He was arrested on complaint of Otto Langheinrich, 61 years old, 4833 North Keystone avenue, who told officials that Horstman approached him in the courtroom and offered to have his tax bill cut in half. Accepting $80 from Langheinrich, Horstman left the courtroom and returned with the tax bill marked paid, Langheinrich said.

Captured by Complainant.

Langheinrich became suspicious, he said, investigated and found that there was no record of a payment on his taxes. He then let his beard grow for three days as a disguise, Langheinrich said, and waited in the Court court until Horstman appeared. A policeman was summoned and Horstman was arrested

Other complainants, according to the police, charge that Horstman took them to the office of the county treasurer to complete deals for alleged lowering of taxes. They charge that Horstman went into the office, removed his coat, and did business over the counter.

County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough and investigators from the office of the state's attorney have started an inquiry to determine if Horstman was aided by an employé of the county.

True Bills for Three Others.

Vincent McCourt, 45 years old, of Oak Forest, a former clerk in the office of the board of education; Daniel La Fond, 22 years old, and Robert Devine, 21 years old, both of Midlothian were reported named by the grand jury in true bills charging conspiracy to pass forged checks of the school board.

McCourt is alleged to have signed the name of C. Beynam, chief clerk of the school board, to checks for $1,100. He is said to have given the checks to Devine and La Fond to cash. The state charged that $400 worth of the checks were cashed before the arrest of the trio. McCourt is reported to have been named in a second true bill charging forgery.

A true bill charging conspiracy to utter a forged county tax anticipation warrant against George L. Starbird also was reported voted by the grand jury. Starbird was arrested when he took the warrant, which had a supposed face value of $100, to a loop broker and offered to sell it for $25.

The broker found the document to be a crude forgery and called the police. Starbird told the police that a stranger had given him the warrant and offered him a commission if he would exchange it for cash.

BISTOR HIT BY NEW JUDGMENT FOR $11,782 TAX

117 Gold Coast Personalty Tax Levies Reduced.

County Judge Jarecki entered judgment for $11,782 in unpaid 1928 taxes yesterday against the 219 Lake Shore Drive Building corporation, whose president, James E. Bistor, is also president of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers.

Judge Jarecki has previously entered judgments against the property for 1929 and 1930 delinquent taxes. His action yesterday, which brought the total of judgments, aside from penalties, to $46,000, was entered after he had held that Bistor's claims of fraud in the assessment were groundless.

Offers to Correct Errors.

County Assessor Jacobs announced yesterday that personal property taxpayers who have been subjected to duplicate assessments through errors by his staff may have the errors corrected by filing affidavits with him, instead of going before the board of tax appeals on a formal complaint.

An aggregate reduction of $463,026 in 1931 personal property assessments was granted to 117 gold coast residents by the board of tax appeals in hearings yesterday. Of this amount $418,576 was reduced upon the recommendation of Assessor J. L. Jacobs, after the complaints had been referred to him and new appraisals of the property had been made.

The objectors had been assessed a total of $599,777 in the books which the assessor turned over to the board of appeals. After the reappraisals, which followed the filing of objections the assessed valuations of personalty amounted to $136,751.

A chart of the board's action revealed that 62 reductions were recommended and confirmed at the recommendation of the assessor; 51 reductions were made by the board when no reappraisals were made by the assessor's office, 3 of the original assessments were confirmed and 1 small assessed valuation was increased.

MOTHER NAMES SON AS THIEF IN COURT HEARING

Mrs. Gertrude J. Strassburger, 61 years old, a widow, wept yesterday as she gave testimony before Municipal Judge Howard Hayes on which her son, John, 35 years old, was held to the grand jury on charges of stealing $2,000 worth of jewelry from her shop at 2630 Lincoln avenue.

Mrs. Strassburger has run the shop since her husband died twenty years ago, she said. Two years ago, she testified, she began to miss watches, rings, and necklaces from her stock. One day recently she passed a pawnshop and noticed in the window one of the articles she had missed. When she inquired within, she said, she was told her son had pawned it. Strassburger had nothing to say. His mother burst forth in tears again as he was led away to the county jail.

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on.

Creomulsion with creosote and six other highly important medicinal elements quickly and effectively stops all coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creomulsion is powerful in the treatment of all colds and coughs, no matter how long standing, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take.

COLDS ARE NOW REACHING OUT FOR VICTIMS!

Be Wise—Be Careful—Adopt This Simple Precautionary Measure!

Colds are increasing. In some sections Influenza is breaking out. Don't be alarmed, but don't be careless.

A cold is much easier avoided than cured! Do the sensible thing and adopt the ounce of prevention policy. Stay out of crowds as much as you can. Avoid coughers and sneezers. Dress warmly, keep your feet dry and sleep in a well-ventilated room.

Every morning and night take a tablet or two of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. This will keep the bowels open and combat infection by cold germs.

Millions know Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine as an excellent cold remedy, but not enough know it as an equally excellent preventive. Learn its efficacy and keep a package handy all winter long as your "safety first" measure.

If you have already caught cold there is nothing better you can take than Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It doesn't merely suppress the cold—it drives it completely out of the system. At the same time it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

For more than forty years Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula keeping pace with Modern Medicine. Now in two sizes—30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and look for the initials L B Q stamped on every tablet. Reliable dealers will not try to sell you a substitute.

Call Government Economy Vital to Recovery.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The declaration of Congressman Henry T. Rainey of Illinois that congress can balance the federal budget without the imposition of additional taxes, except a tax on beer, proved yesterday to be an economic bell ringer in the middle west.

A roar of approval from the tax paying public, as evidenced in public expressions, met the Washington statement of Mr. Rainey, the Democratic leader of the house, that the budget should be balanced by slashing the cost of government instead of by piling on a heavier tax burden, and that for congress to vote more taxes would be to "invite revolution."

Leaders in business, industry and commerce in Chicago, Milwaukee and smaller towns in the area voiced a sentiment that, until the tax load is lightened, recovery will be held back and that the government, like business and the ordinary citizen, must cut its expenditures to fit its revenue

Rossetter Praises Statement.

A telegram of gratification was sent to Mr. Rainey by George W. Rossetter, chairman of the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures During the campaign this organization canvassed candidates for congress in the 48 states on the proposal that at least 750 million dollars should be cut from the budget. Many signed up and also pledged themselves not to permit factional bickerings to stand in the way of cutting bureaucracy government in business and trimming the marble palace era in Washington Mr. Rossetter's telegram read:

"We are most gratified with the press announcement quoting you as saying the federal budget can be balanced without the imposition of additional taxes except on beer and that there must be radical reduction of the cost of federal government.

"Reports from 48 state chairmen representing our national organization throughout the country indicate the overwhelming sentiment of our citizenship for the balancing of the federal budget and that this should be accomplished by reduction in governmental costs and not by increasing tax burdens. Your position on cutting expenditures merits whole hearted support."

Snow Applauds Stand.

Similar expressions of applause came from B. W. Snow, spokesman for the Federation of American Business.

"Last January," said Mr. Snow, "I warned the United States senate that the budget could not be balanced by increasing taxes. That no matter how high the income rate was raised, it would not increase revenues because there would be no income left to which the government could go.

"Congressman Rainey is absolutely right when he now says the same thing. A continued unbalanced budget and increased public debt leads straight to destruction of federal credit and once that breaks our whole social and governmental structure will topple. Thoughtful men will back Mr Rainey in his determination to relieve the country of the burden of waste, extravagance and high taxes that are crushing it. His attitude, if it represents the incoming administration, will be the most heartening news that business has had in two years

Urged to Write to Congressmen.

An appeal to the taxpaying citizens to get behind Congressman Rainey's views by writing or wiring their congressmen was renewed. The N. O. R. P. E. took the opportunity to send out another call to taxpaying constituents to communicate with their representatives and to demand immediate curtailment of the costs of government instead of waiting for the next administration to go into office in March.

With the approval of Mr. Rainey's views, also came expressions of congratulation for the battle waged by THE TRIBUNE for reduction of governmental costs, bureaucracy, and taxes, and for the addresses of Col. R. R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE, on this subject.

As a stimulus to the taxpaying voters to tell their congressmen how they view proposals of new taxes instead of chopping governmental costs, the economy planks of the Republican and Democratic platforms were brought again into publicity. The national pledges for "drastic reduction" in the recent campaign were, in brief:

DEMOCRATIC—"We advocate an immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices, consolidating departments and bureaus, and eliminating extravagance, so accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of federal government."

REPUBLICAN—"We urge prompt and drastic reduction of public expenditures and resistance to every appropriation not demonstrably necessary to the performance of the essential functions of government, national or local."

Sargent Voices Opinion.

Fred Sargent, president of the North Western railway, and head of the Citizens Committee on Public Expenditures, said:

"Congressman Rainey is right. There is no more need for increased taxes. There should be marked reductions in expenditures and it is possible to make these reductions to a point where the budget can be balanced without increasing the tax burden.

"It is to be hoped that every man now charged with responsibility has now come to a realization that we cannot escape from the depression until the tax burden is lightened and this can be done only by reducing the cost of government."

Reveals Reply to Governors.

From Washington, meanwhile, came word that Congressman Rainey had made public a letter he addressed to fourteen governors of states, in which he opposed their demands for enactment at the present session of congress of a $100,000,000 federal highway aid bill. The bill was adopted by the senate last spring and has been reported out by the house roads committee. Mr. Rainey said he began receiving telegrams from fourteen governors when the house provided only $35,000,000 for federal aid in the coming fiscal year. He replied with a letter asking where the money was coming from. The letter to the governors read:

"May I call your attention to the fact that conditions now are unusual, that our deficits are now $100,000,000 a month in spite of the new and irritating taxes now in force? I will greatly appreciate it if all the governors and highway directors who are sending telegrams to members of congress in connection with this appropriation would tell us how we are going to get the money for it."

Mr. Rainey said that none of the governors had replied to his letter.

Not Tax Increase, but Lower Expenses, Goal of Democrats

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The storm of opposition to a proposed Democratic program for boosting income taxes today brought an announcement from Democratic leaders that their present goal is that of balancing the budget through rigid reduction in governmental expenditures. New revenue legislation, it was said, will not be introduced for several weeks and not then except as a last resort.

This latest disclosure of Democratic plans came five days after a group of congressional Democratic leaders had emerged from a huddle with President Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt to announce that the budget was to be brought into balance through a four point program, including an increase in the normal income tax rates from 4 and 8 per cent to 6 and 12 per cent.

The announcement today apparently represented an intention on the part of the President elect not to press at this time for new revenue legislation in the face of threatened rebellion on the part of party followers.

Different Reports.

House leaders at first took the position they were not committed to the new tax. Speaker Garner on Saturday swung around to say he would support the tax if necessary. Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.] insisted from the beginning and insisted today that he nor any of the other conferees was bound to support the income tax provision. He opposed any new revenue bill and asserted he would oppose any move along that line.

The decision to follow the Rainey program of balancing the budget through economies was made known by Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], ranking member of the senate finance committee. His disclosures followed numerous inter-senate-house Democratic conferences and a long meeting of the Democratic members of the committee. The burden of his pronouncement was all thought of bringing up new revenue legislation had been dropped for the present while congress searched for new economies.

Aside from the Harrison-Rainey talk of economy but little activity in the way of cutting government costs was visible. Unless the new program is used to step up matters it now appears that the sum total of all congressional economies for the short session will not total more than 100 millions, if that much. Up to date no real attempt to slash the huge billion dollar veterans bill has been made.

Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills today invited a new Democratic administration row over fiscal matters when he stated at his press conference that it was obvious the house had no intention of pressing a tax bill at this session.

He said a sales tax passed in conjunction with a gasoline tax to raise 500 millions would certainly balance the budget and suggested that it would still be possible for congress to balance the budget during a special session before the new fiscal year opened on July 1.

Criticized by Mills.

"Congressmen are muddying the picture about as thoroughly as they can in their citation of savings thus far accomplished through cuts in appropriation bills. They are even lumping savings on deficiency bills with savings on future appropriations," Mr. Mills asserted.

Senator Harrison said that even if the budget could be balanced through economies it did not necessarily mean that the income tax would be approved.

"We," he said, "are going to try to retrench sufficiently to avoid levying of new taxes. It is too early now to tell just how close we can come to balancing the budget through economies. Our plan is to hold off on revenue legislation for several weeks while we try to secure enactment of the beer bill, reenactment of the gasoline tax and all possible economies. When we know how much we can raise and save it will be time enough to talk of new taxes."

In a speech delivered at a local dinner tonight, Senator Harrison said:

"A sound balancing of the federal budget through the most rigid retrenchment in governmental expenditures and every economy that is possible affecting savings to the taxpayers are among the first considerations of the Democrats."

and it should be balanced by reducing expenses rather than by adding taxes on an already overburdened people. Nothing that could be done would be more helpful than reducing income taxes rather than increasing them and thus divert investment from tax exempt securities to active, productive and distributive enterprises.

FREDERICK H. SCOTT, vice president of Carson Pirie Scott & Co.—Not only should taxes not be increased but every step should be taken for their reduction. That should be the position of every one. Congressman Rainey is to be commended.

Urges "Rigid Retrenchment."

PHILIP K. WRIGLEY, president of William Wrigley Jr. company—Congressman Rainey's position is unassailable. No one can logically defend higher taxes. Rigid retrenchment should be practiced by federal, state, and local governments to cut the tax burden. Any increase in taxation would be harmful to industry and work hardship upon the citizenry.

GUSTAVUS F. SWIFT JR., vice president Swift & Co.—In my opinion what we chiefly need is to give business a chance by lowering taxes and a broadening of foreign trade to provide a market for agricultural products. The government should eliminate every obstacle standing in the way of recovery. Tax reduction will aid business and restore purchasing power to the farmer.

OTTO H. FALK of Milwaukee, chairman of board Allis Chalmers Manufacturing company—Congressman Rainey is 100 per cent right. The government budget must be balanced, and balancing it by cutting costs is the only way. We have to do it in industry. We have had to do it at the cost of many things that seemed desirable. Business has balanced its budgest by trying its damndest, and government must do the same thing.

GODFREY W. AUGUSTYN, president Marine National Exchange bank, Milwaukee—We can turn this question any way we wish and we will find only one ultimate solution. That is, live within your means. That is what Congressman Rainey means when he says "balance the budget without raising the tax." It is true with the individual, it is true in business, and it is increasingly true in government. I am confident we are spending more than enough on useless, needless things to make up the entire savings needed to balance the budget.

For Balanced Budget.

C. G. FERRIS, executive secretary, Illinois Chamber of Commerce—The first step to be taken in the balancing of the budget is the reduction of expenditures. We cannot impose more taxes on our people. Federal expenditures can be reduced if our leaders will undertake the job with courage and determination. Congressman Rainey is to be commended for his plain statement on the situation.

EDWARD M. CRAIG, president of the American Construction counsel and executive director of the Building Construction Employers association—Congressman Rainey's stand is that of every one interested in recovery. The budget can be cut one-third and should be cut one-third, through reduction and revision of unncessary departmental activities. Relief of the tax burden will stimulate all forms of industry and aid all classes of people. Economy in government is sanity in government.

CHARLES B. SMITH, president of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer corporation—I heartily agree with Congressman Rainey. Any increase in taxes at this time would be dangerous. The people will not stand for further taxation. Every effort should be made toward tax reduction. Taxation should not be brought to a height which will imperil industry. The burden can be lowered through reduction of expenditures to a point which will not impair efficiency.

Points to History's Lesson.

J. M. NICHOLS, president of the First National Bank of Englewood—Unless the coming administration has the foresight and courage to cut the cost of operating the government by at least a half it will be only a question of time as to how long this form of government can continue. Any talk of increasing taxes is pure nonsense. History repeats itself. Rome's downfall was due to crushing taxes and if we don't reduce our taxes we'll go the way of Rome. We have got to wipe out all the unnecessary divisions of our government and operate with a skeleton organization. We must get rid of such departments as the federal farm board, the department of commerce, the division enforcing the prohibition law, etc. All political leeches must be lopped from the federal pay roll.

TAYLOR STRAWN, vice president Elgin National Watch company—In my opinion the rigid governmental retrenchment program of Congressman Rainey is an absolute necessity. It should be followed by the government as it has been followed by business.

Tax Limit Reached, He Says.

EDWARD GORE, Edward Gore & Co., accountants—I am most sympathetic with the statement of Congressman Rainey that the way to balance the national budget is to reduce governmental expenditures. We have reached the limit in the amount of taxes we can pay—to increase them would be to wreck business.

R. V. FLETCHER, counsel for the Illinois Central railroad—I think Congressman Rainey is right in his remarks on the balancing of the federal budget. No one has any business to talk about raising taxes at this time. Any increase in the rates of the income tax would be fatal for business. This is no time for the national government to impose any new taxes, income or sales. The way to balance the budget is to reduce the cost of operating our government. I am gratified at the soundness of Mr. Rainey's views.

JAMES L. DONNELLY, executive vice president, Illinois Manufacturers' association—The statement by Congressman Rainey against the incorporation of new taxes will meet universal approbation among manufacturers and other taxpayers. One of the principal deterrents to business recovery at the present time is the unprecedented tax burden which is paralyzing private enterprise. Additions to this burden make the position of manufactuers and all other taxpayers intolerable. More over, it is extremely doubtful whether additional forms of taxes, particularly income taxes, would at this time, in view of the depressed condition of business and the impairment of incomes of corporations and individuals, produce any substantial amount of revenue. It follows, therefore, that Mr. Rainey's formula for balancing the federal budget, namely drastic economy in federal expenditures and the elimination of needless and overlapping bureaus, is the only adequate method for accomplishing such an objective.

"Necessary for Revival."

L. D. STAPLIN, manufacturer and prominent in the campaign to reduce taxes—Congres does not seem to be cognizant of or to accept the fact when contemplating the reduction in governmental expenditures it is more important to give industry an exhibition of sanity and thrift in regard to spending money than it is to effect the actual saving. There will be no revival of business until industry has proof that we can expect thrift and economy in government. Enterprise will not go forward until it can reasonably anticipate retention of enough percentage of its earnings to result in a profit. Profit is the basis of civilization. Mr. Rainey's statements exemplify the talk of a statesman— a rare thing in our country. If carried out his ideas will restore the foundation of prosperity.

ALBERT H. WETTEN, A. H. Wetten & Co., real estate company—Congressman Rainey is absolutely right when he says the country will stand for no increase in taxes. Our federal budget must be balanced by a sharp reduction in the expenditures of the national government. Our citizens have had to cut their living expenses and there is no reason why the federal government should not do likewise. Any increase in income taxes would be fatal to business.

Calls Tax Boost Dangerous.

JOHN L. BARCHARD, president of Wisconsin State Chamber of Commerce and president of Hummel & Downing Manufacturing company of Milwaukee—Congressman Rainey is voicing the belief of constructive business over the entire country in saying the budget must be balanced without additional taxation. The business man who must balance his budget and is without the power to reach into the pockets of the nation and compel payment, whether willing or unwilling, has had to balance his budget and his only means has been by cutting costs. Higher tax levies can be imposed only at serious risk to the nation and without probability of increasing the revenue. The federal government must do as we have all done, cut its cloth to fit its purse.

EDWARD G. SEUBERT, president of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana—I indorse Congressman Rainey's declaration for balancing the budget by economy rather than additional taxes. Business can stand no more tax burdens. It is not clear from Mr. Rainey's comment whether he favors renewal of the federal tax on gasoline. This tax amounts at present to a 35 per cent sales tax on one single commodity, a tax obviously unfair and already responsible for grave complications of the oil industry's troubles. Gasoline is a necessity and if revenue must be raised the burden should fall on all commodities equitably and alike.

From Ex-Gov. Kohler.

WALTER KOHLER of Kohler, Wis., former governor of Wisconsin—American citizens generally will find encouragement in Congressman Rainey's declaration that the budget can be balanced without additional sales or income taxes. The first step in the balancing of the budget is the cutting of governmental costs which must be lowered in keeping with the reduced costs of all commodities. The success of this program must depend, in large measure, upon the nonpartisan action of those in control.

GEORGE E. METZGER, secretary of the Illinois Agricultural association—Our policy has always been for economy in government, not only in the federal government but also in the state and local governments, which more particularly affect the farmers. If the government departments are to be cut the cut should not be made on agriculture alone, but equitably and fairly on all departments.

J. H. PUELICHER, president of Marshall & Ilsley bank of Milwaukee—"Congressman Rainey's presentation of the necessity of balancing the federal budget through reduction of expenses rather than an increase in taxation is sound. I am embodying it in my annual message to the stockholders of the bank."

HAPPY DAYS COME AND GO WITH BAY RUM IN PRISON BARBER SHOP

As a result of the recently instituted system of charging guards at Joliet penitentiary 5 cents for haircuts and 2½ cents for shaves which they get in the prison barber shop prison authorities collected a fund from which they recently purchased several gallons of hair tonic, bay rum, and witchhazel.

The supplies were delivered a few days ago to the barber shop in the old prison. Yesterday a guard entered the shop and was greeted in such hilarious fashion by the two convict barbers, Joseph Small and David Frank, that he decided to postpone his shave and started an investigation instead. This led to discovery that the gallon jugs of tonic and bay rum were practically empty.

Small and Frank were led away to solitary confinement. What was left of the tonics was locked up in the prison arsenal to be doled out to new barbers in small amounts.

$3,500 FUR COAT IS STOLEN FROM WAMPAS STAR

Police are searching for a mink coat, valued at $3,500, which was stolen from June Clyde, a Wampas movie star of 1932, during her visit in Chicago last week. The theft occurred at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Morris Epstein, 810 Montrose avenue. Valuables worth $2,000 belonging to the Epsteins also were taken.

Miss Clyde and her husband, Thornton Freeland, returning to Hollywood from a Caribbean cruise, visited at the Epstein home on Jan. 5. Some forty guests were present. Miss Clyde and Freeland stayed overnight at the Epstein home.

The next morning it was discovered that thieves had entered the apartment through a pantry window and taken Miss Clyde's coat and the Epstein valuables. They overlooked $10,000 in jewelry belonging to the actress. Mrs. Epstein told police yesterday that all of the guests at the party were beyond suspicion. Mrs. Epstein, as Leona Hutton, was leading lady for Bill Hart in the old movie days.

Buenos Aires Radicals Storm Police Stations; Repulsed

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 9.—Continuing a week-end of uprisings, groups of radicals today made simultaneous attacks on the police stations of Avellaneda, Olavarria, and General Belgrano in the environs of Buenos Aires. They were repulsed by gunfire. The government issued a communique pointing out that police did not need the assistance of the military.

BERLIN, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A fourth pyramid in the vicinity of three great ones of Egypt was unearthed by Prof. Selim Hassan of the Egyptian archeological department of the University of Cairo, the Tageblatt said today. According to Prof. Hassan, the fourth pyramid is the burial chamber of Queen Khamet, the daughter of the last Pharoah of the fourth dynasty, Mycerinus.

HOUSE LEADERS BALK AT SENATE DRY LAW REPEAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Enactment at this session of legislation repealing the 18th amendment was dealt what appeared to be a death blow today when house leaders announced they would not accept the repeal resolution as reported out favorably by the senate judiciary committee.

The ink on the judiciary committee's resolution, laid before the senate today, was hardly dry before Speaker John N. Garner and Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.] announced that its language was unacceptable. Both declared they and the house would not be satisfied with anything except a resolution declaring for outright repeal as pledged by the Democratic platform. House leaders said also the resolution was unacceptable to President Elect Roosevelt.

Designed to Bar Saloon.

The senate resolution represents a compromise between such ardent drys as Senator William E. Borah [Radical, Idaho] and the wets. It is designed to bar the saloon. It retains a certain amount of federal control over the liquor traffic and provides for submission of the amendment to state legislatures rather than to special state conventions. It aims to protect dry states from importations from wet neighbors.

The final showdown on the repeal issue is expected to come within the next week or ten days. An effort is to be made by senate wets to rewrite the resolution to carry out the Democratic rather than the Republican repeal pledge and to provide for its submission to state conventions. Senate wets were glum tonight over the prospects of rewriting the resolution to provide for outright repeal.

Death for the repeal move will make a special session certain. It is also highly possible that defeat or repeal, coupled with the tardiness of the senate in acting on beer bill, will make modification of the Volstead act impossible at this session. The beer bill also faces a possible White House veto.

Come Up for Action this Week.

Senator Charles L. McNary [Rep., Ore.], assistant senate leader, said tonight that the resolution probably will come up for action the latter part of the week. The repeal resolution will be given the right of way he said as soon as the Glass banking bill has been acted upon and one or two appropriation bills passed.

The vote on the resolution was 10 favoring, 4 against and 3 absent. Those voting against the repeal resolution were Chairman George W. Norris [Radical, Neb.], Arthur R. Robinson [Rep., Ind.], Karl C. Schuyler [Rep., Colo.] and Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.].

Speaker Garner and Majority Leader Rainey said the resolution would not be introduced in the house if passed by the senate in its present form. The speaker said that Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], minority leader of the senate, would lead a move to amend the resolution so it would comply with the Democratic campaign pledge.

Garner Opposes Measure.

"If this is accomplished," said Mr. Garner, "the resolution will have the enthusiastic support of the Democratic leadership of the house. In its present form I am opposed to the repeal resolution. There will be no repeal resolution in the house unless it conforms to the Democratic platform."

Asked if he would recognize a motion for consideration of the repealer under suspension of the rules, the speaker said:

"I would not."

Majority Leader Rainey took the same position. He said that he and the other Democratic leaders had agreed with President Elect Roosevelt at their New York conference last week that any repeal resolution considered by the house would have to be in line with the wet plank in the party platform. Mr. Rainey declared, unless Senator Robinson is successful in changing the resolution in the senate, consideration of repeal legislation will have to await the new congress.

"I think we will have to have a special session," said Mr. Rainey.

The resolution reported by the committee was virtually the same as that recommended by the subcommittee.

Section of Repeal Resolution.

The other sections provide:

"That the following article is hereby proposed as an amendment to the constitution: Sec. 1. The eighteenth amendment to the constitution is hereby repealed. Sec. 2. The transportation or importation into any state, territory, or possession of the United States, or the use therein of intoxicating liquors in violation of the laws thereof is hereby prohibited.

"Sec. 3. Congress shall have concurrent power to regulate the sale of intoxicating liquor to be drunk on the premises where sold."

M'NUTT SWORN IN AT INDIANAPOLIS; URGES TAX CUTS

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Paul V. McNutt, Bloomington, Democrat and until recently dean of the law school of Indiana university today took the oath as the thirty-third governor of Indiana.

Speaking from a specially built platform at the west entrance to the capitol, the new governor asked patriotic support of the government in peace as it was in war times.

"These are the immediate tasks," he said: "To provide food, clothing and shelter for the destitute, the aged and the infirm; to lower the cost of government and simplify its operations; to reduce and redistribute the burden of taxes; to maintain an adequate system of public education; to promote the efficient administration of justice; to strengthen necessary social agencies, to remove special privilege from the seats of power; to offer every assistance in restoring economic equilibrium, and to regain confidence in ourselves and in our institutions."

FEATURES OF FIRST MESSAGE

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Gov. Henry Horner redeemed his campaign pledges today, recommending, in his inaugural message to the legislature that it effect immediate repeal of the Illinois prohibition laws, cut the costs of government by specific reductions in bureaucracy, and adopt a dozen other suggestions. The letter included:

Suggestion that changes in the primary law be considered.

Seeks Harmony in State.

This comprehensive message dealt with every phase and function of state government from emergency relief to state parks and historic sites. It was predicated upon an appeal for harmony throughout the state. It sought to end the sectional feeling set up by population lines. The governor promised to do his utmost to eradicate, through his official acts, those long lived prejudices.

The message contained recommendations for decreasing the size of the three most important state commissions—the parole board, the commerce, and the tax commissions. The pardon board, the governor believes, should be cut from a chairman and nine members to a total of five; the tax commission, from five to three; the commerce commission from seven to four—"so as to increase the responsibility of each member."

"The people of this state," the governor declared, "expect us materially to reduce governmental costs and we shall keep faith with their expectations. Good government should be furnished at the least possible cost.

Would Save on Rentals.

"We should aim for a thorough revision and simplification of administrative practices and procedure. It will be our aim to bring about a reallocation of office space and centralization of offices so as to effect substantial reductions on the rentals now being paid by this state. A rigid scrutiny of public expenditures ought to effect a saving to the state."

After a brief outline of the economic situation and his pledge of cooperation of the executive with the judicial branch of the government, Gov. Horner asked that the assembly complete its work as quickly as possible, for the sake of the taxpayers' pocketbooks.

Then he launched into the body of the address, which is summarized under these consecutive headings:

RELIEF FOR IDLE

Gov. Horner declared that 44 million dollars have been expended for relief of the idle—$25,200,000 having been advanced by the Reconstruction Finance corporation while the remainder was expended by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission under legislative authorizations. The funds on hand, he said, will suffice no longer than the end of January—"it is unescapable, therefore, that in spite of all that has been spent for relief the necessity for immediate action by the legislature is most urgent."

The specific suggestion was this: "My recommendation to your body is that a selective retail sales tax be imposed solely for the purpose of this emergency relief. Such a tax must raise funds of a sufficient amount. A sales tax is proportionately inexpensive to collect."

Details Up to Lawmakers.

The governor left the details to the legislature, specifying that:

"It is imperative that action should be taken at once so that funds for further relief may be available by Feb. 1. Only three weeks remain for us to perform our duty in this respect."

He urged consideration of better housing "in deteriorated areas" of the state.

He also told the legislature that "the share of the governmental struggle" allotted to him and to them is twofold: "One, that we remove every unnecessary burden that government has placed upon its citizens; two, that we set in motion, within the limits of the law, every force possible to bring about unanimity of action on the part of our citizens to the end that through their own unhampered constructive initiative, economic recovery shall be hastened."

CONSTITUTIONAL CHANGES

Under this heading Gov. Horner first considered reapportionment of the senatorial districts of the state—that bone of contention which always has resulted in downstaters refusing to allow Chicago its legal representation in the assembly. The governor surveyed the contentious history of that measure, recalling that there has been no legislative reapportionment of the state in more than thirty years, adding that he believed the problem "can be solved to the satisfaction of the entire state."

"The solution," he said, "lies in the submission by the general assembly to the voters of an amendment to the constitution of this state giving the state outside of Cook county a majority of the members of the senate and providing that the members of the house of representatives be elected on the basis of population"; that is, downstate would control the senate and Chicago the house.

Looks Toward Future.

"Such an amendment," the governor contended, "should also contain ample guarantees against evasion of the duty of reapportionment by inaction.

"In such a way the interests of both the downstate counties and the metropolitan area will be preserved. . . . I offer this suggestion to the legislature not so much as an ideal solution as a practical one, and one which is at least a remedy for the inequality of legislative representation.

"The amendment to the constitution should also vest power in the assembly to give the fullest measure of local self-government to all the municipalities in the state in so far as that will not affect the legitimate needs of the rest of the state. There should be in addition to it a provision authorizing the general assembly to legislate especially for Cook county in all matters which would not jeopardize the interests of any other portion of the state."

REAPPORTIONMENT

Gov. Horner recommended that the assembly also redistrict the state's congressional districts, recalling that a plan was passed by the preceding —the 57th—legislature, only to be declared void by the Illinois Supreme court because "it was not based upon the approximate equality of inhabitants in the several districts."

REVENUE

Illinois' methods of providing revenue for its state government are "antiquated and insufficient," the new governor believes.

So "an immediate effort should be made to modify the revenue article of the constitution by removing therefrom those limitations which have prevented the reshaping of the taxing system to suit our modern needs. We need a revision of the state's revenue system on the basis of accepted principles of public finance. The tax burdens that have been laid upon real estate have well nigh destroyed its value. Illinois has depended too largely upon this source of revenue. The taxing of personal property on the basis of full value, and to meet the uniformity clause of our present constitution regarding the matter, is, always has been, and I fear forever will be impossible of full enforcement.

"The legislative branch of our government should be given the authority to provide for the classification of property for the purpose of taxation and to adopt an income tax. The legislature should be free to shift equitably and justly the tax burden from subject to subject and from object to object according to its capacity to pay and to justice and equity."

JUDICIAL DEPARTMENT

Gov. Horner told the legislators that the people of Cook county—more than 50 per cent of the population of the state—are entitled to elect more than one justice of the Illinois Supreme court, the representation now allowed them. "The people of Cook county are entitled to just representation on the Supreme court of this state," he said. He suggested reapportionment of the districts or an increase in their number and in the membership of the court. He added:

"But much more is necessary to give to Cook county a well balanced and workable judiciary. To my mind, it should have a single unified court, of general and comprehensive jurisdiction. It should have a fixed number of judges elected on a nonpartisan basis. In addition to the regular judges, the legislature should have the power to provide for the appointment of associates and assistants of various grades, who shall have power to hear and determine such matters as the legislature shall give them jurisdiction over, or, what might be still a better plan, such matters as the judges of the court should by rule assign to them.

"Power should be vested in the court to adopt its own mode of practice and procedure. There should be no stated terms: the court should be open for the transaction of its business at all times. The public are properly demanding speedy and simple and economical procedure in our courts. In response to that demand the Illinois State, the Chicago and other bar associations are preparing a proposed revised civil practice act for the consideration of your body, to which I earnestly direct your consideration."

NEW CONSTITUTION

Gov. Horner lamented the failure of the so-called gateway amendment to the constitution to win the voters' approval in November. He feels, he said, "impelled to recommend the calling of a convention to draft a new basic law at the earliest possible date. It should be in such form as to enable the people to vote on each proposed article separately, without the necessity of voting for or against the document as a whole. He warned that:

"In the past the framers of state constitutions have in some cases legislated rather than declared fundamental principles."

He favored shorter ballots by decreasing elected officials.

SIMPLIFIED GOVERNMENT

Upon the subect of consolidations in government, Gov. Horner said: "Our state government has become altogether too complicated. Even citizens who have enjoyed the benefits of higher education find difficulty in understanding it.

"Legislation ought to be enacted to enable the counties of the state to do away with the variety of governments within them, to reduce and consolidate them to the minimum possible number and to simplify them so that in fact, as well as in theory, the citizens could participate in the solution of their many governmental problems, and substantial reductions of the cost of local governments might result.

"The consolidation of the many local governments within the county of Cook, including the consolidation of park systems of Chicago, is a much desired end."

DRY LAW REPEAL

Immediate repeal of the dry laws was a foremost plank in the Horner campaign platform and he was insistent upon that action in his message.

"Repeatedly the people of Illinois by their direct vote have declared for the repeal of the 18th amendment to the constitution, the modification of the Volstead act to permit the sale of light wines and beer, and the repeal of the state laws which established prohibition as a state as well as a national institution.

"I recommend the immediate repeal of both the Illinois prohibition law and the search and seizure law of this state, to respond to the demands of the electorate of this state and so that we may avail ourselves of the first opportunity presented by the national congress to meet and control the subject in this state. However, immediately coincident with such repeal, there should be enacted regulatory measures to place around the sale of malt beverages and other liquors every safeguard that existed in this state prior to the adopting of national prohibition.

Would Banish Saloons.

"The enactment of such measures as will prevent the return of the saloon as heretofore conducted, and will control the distribution of liquor in the event of the repeal of the 18th amendment of the federal constitution is also recommended. The repeal of the 18th amendment will restore to the people of the several states the control of the prohibition question. Anticipating restoration of state control, laws should be ready to meet the requirements of local option and restrictions in favor of churches, schools and places of amusement.

"Legislation by you should empower municipalities and other communities of the state to establish appropriate regulations regarding the subject such as to license and regulate the distributing agencies of such alcoholic beverages as are permitted; to limit the hours of the day during which liquor might be sold; to pass upon the character of the places of business where it might be sold, and upon the character of the persons who might be permitted to sell it."

He would prevent sales to minors, near churches, schools, etc.

Gov. Horner asked the legislature to prepare for the calling of a convention to vote on repeal of the 18th amendment when congress submitted such a proposal. He added:

"The legislators should likewise, anticipating the proposed national action on prohibition, consider the question of levying a state tax upon the manufacture and sale of all beverages containing alcohol. Such a tax will impose no new burdens either directly or indirectly upon the people of the state. The state revenue that may be legitimately derived in this way is now being illegitimately levied by the bootleggers, the gangsters and the corrupt officials who are responsible for the illicit trade in alcoholic beverages under national prohibition.

"The repeal of the state and the national prohibition laws will be of immediate aid in the relief of unemployment, and also in creating a further market for the grain produced in the state. I make no claim that it will entirely solve our problem, but I do believe it will aid in their solution."

PRISONS AND PAROLE

Gov. Horner's recommendation that the parole board membership be reduced from ten to five members—an annual savings of $25,000 in salaries alone—was the major point in the prison discussion. The prison laws, he said, however, are in "need of revision and classification," having failed to keep pace with the progress made in this field through research and scientific discovery. He favored better trained wardens, humane prison control, and desired for the board men fitted for the task who should devote themselves exclusively to their humane tasks.

"This board should be provided with agents and deputies in close contact with the various penal institutions, but not part of the prison personnel, whose duty it should be to carefully study the character of each individual with a view of making the parole law a beneficent social measure, carrying into effect the principle that incarceration is not alone for punishment, but also a measure of social defense."

Public Welfare Plans.

Under the heading of "Public Welfare," Gov. Horner told the assembly that "the first claim upon the funds and concern of the state should be for welfare work and for education," adding the qualifying sentence, "naturally I do not mean to say that all the funds of the state should be spent for these purposes."

Under the heading of "Education," the governor assured the school teachers of the state that he would do all in his power to insure their permanent tenure "absolutely free from political domination or interference.'

The new governor also encouraged the work at the University of Illinois, hoping that it will advance to a point where it will be entitled to and receive recognition as one of the greatest schools in the land. "It should always have our interest and our enthusiastic support," he added.

Under "agriculture," Gov. Horner discussed the plight of the farmer, saying that "the state government should aid the development of voluntary cooperative movements among the farmers so that they can in a measure, at least, obtain the highest possible price for their products."

Public Works' Policy.

This was interlocked with the discussion of public works, improvements and highways, in which the chief executive said that "it will be the purpose of this administration to carry forward a sound and economical program of highway improvement fairly distributed in strict accordance with the actual needs."

He promised strict economy in the conduct of state offices.

His new tax commission, reduced from the present membership of five to three, will give careful consideration to the "most scientific and practical form of taxation with a view of reducing the burden where it rests most heavily by spreading it equitably and fairly over all forms of wealth."

BETTER BANK LAWS

Under "banking and securities," he said, the laws with relation to both should be revised and improved. "The honor of the state," he said, "demands that its act in chartering a state bank shall be a guarantee of the soundness of that bank and a promise that the state will extend its protection to its depositors. Banking institutions must be limited to banking business and maintain ample reserves to meet extraordinary but probable demands upon them. They should be restricted in their affiliations with any investment corporations or associations. All banks should be frequently examined and only men of character should be allowed to engage in the business.

"Our securities laws should be so strengthened that the purchaser of those securities offered for sale in this state shall be fully advised of the quality and value of the investment he is making."

For More Regulation.

Paying attention to the Insull crash, Gov. Horner said "the commerce commission should be given power better to exercise a rigid control over the financing of public utility corporations. There must be no repetition of our recent experiences of the issuance of securities of doubtful value and the overcapitalization of utilities."

Attention centered upon the crash of the Illinois Life Insurance company brought these recommendations from the governor:

"Practices have been unearthed which seem to do violence to the fiduciary relation of that insurance company and its policyholders. Limitation of the kind of investments and particularly of the speculative investments by such companies must be imposed and enforced. Careful maintenance of ample reserves for the protection of policyholders must be insisted upon and accomplished.

"The maintenance by insurance companies of affiliate corporations or trusts for the purpose of holding and trafficking in investments should be prohibited."

WATCHMAN IS SHOT.

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Robert Handley, watchman, was shot in the right arm when he accosted some one taking coal from the Harwood Lumber and Fuel company shortly after midnight. George Riddle, 60, was arrested and was pronounced intoxicated by the police.

guard within the power of the state to employ should be thrown about the insurance business in Illinois."

Minor topics were treated with the same thoroughness.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmerson did not return to the mansion after they accompanied Judge Horner to the arsenal in the procession. They left later today by car for their home in Mount Vernon. There the former governor retires to private life after a political career extending almost thirty years.

Inauguration day began officially at 11 a. m. Then the new officials reached the mansion with their wives for the parade to the arsenal. Mr. Horner's insistence upon simplicity and economy as keynotes of the ceremonies was followed. There was no long military procession heading the line of cars.

The arsenal had been filled for more than an hour by the time the new and old officials arrived. Presiding was Speaker Arthur Roe of the house, and the platform was almost filled with friends of both those retiring and taking office.

Cermak on Platform.

Mayor Cermak of Chicago had a seat on the platform. Near the front sat the retiring auditor and attorney general, Oscar Nelson and Oscar E. Carlstrom. At one side of the rostrum was the 100 piece University of Illinois concert band, which completed a lengthy program as the official parties were announced from the rear of the hall. Marches were played for the entrance of each group in the official procession.

The speaker first called on Judge Otto Kerner to take the oath as attorney general, which Chief Justice Heard of the Illinois Supreme court administered after a brief speech of laudation for the new chief law officer. The same process was followed and brief tributes were paid as Treasurer Martin, Auditor Barrett, Secretary of State Hughes and Lieut. Gov. Donovan were sworn in. Then Mr. Roe introduced Gov. Emmerson, who in turn presented his successor, after thanking "the men who stood behind" his administration these last four years and wishing luck to those who follow in power.

Presents New Governor.

"I take pleasure," the retiring governor said, in closing, "in presenting my personal friend, Judge Henry Horner."

Judge Horner approached the front of the platform amidst a storm of applause. Chief Justice Heard was highly laudatory in his remarks preceding the giving of the oath of office, closing with the sentence: "I hope and expect that your administration will reflect great credit upon yourself and the people of the state."

Turning to Speaker Roe and the audience after administering the pledge of office, Justice Heard said: "I present not Judge Henry Horner but Gov. Henry Horner"

It was then just 12:30 p. m., and when the applause had ceased the governor began his address, prefacing it with a solemn tribute to the late President, Calvin Coolidge.

FRANK A. VANDERLIP AND SON DIFFER ON PROHIBITION VIEWS

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—It appeared for a time today that that noble experiment, the eighteenth amendment, had spread mild dissension in another home, involving Frank A. Vanderlip and his son, Frank A. Jr.

F. A. VANDERLIP SR.

It was announced that Mr. Vanderlip, former assistant secretary of the treasury, had consented to be chairman of the board of the Crusaders, generally looked upon as a wet organization.

His son, 25, has been mentioned as treasurer of the Scaracens, an avowedly dry organization, and has been acting in that office.

"I am a dry," explained the elder Vanderlip, "and always have been. Before prohibition went into effect I was in favor of it. But I have concluded that not all good things can be accomplished by constitutional or legislative enactment."

The son declared that he had been brought up as a dry, but said he might be for repeal as a temperance measure, if some system of control supplanted it.

"You see," said his father, "we really think about the same. There is no real rift in the family."

R. F. C. Loan to Be Sought to Build Public Golf Links

The Fox River Valley association yesterday joined the cities and states which plan to ask loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation for self-liquidating public improvements. The association proposes the construction of a public golf course at St. Charles. Fees from the course, it was maintained by E. D. Keplar, secretary of the association, would repay the loan.

COMMITTEE ON DELINQUENTS TO MEET TONIGHT

The committee organized by Dr. Harry Hoffman, head of the Behavior clinic of the Criminal court, to seek legislation for proper handling of the cases of delinquent mental defectives and juvenile delinquents will hold its first meeting tonight at 6 o'clock in the University club. Various organizations interested in these problems were asked to select representatives to serve on the committee, and the list was completed yesterday.

The cases of two juvenile court "graduates," James [Iggy] Varecha and Sigmond Bukovitz, both 17 years old and both robber rapists, have given impetus to the movement for walled institutions that would take care of juvenile delinquents and mental defectives with criminal tendencies. Both Varecha and Bukovitz escaped several times from the Dixon State hospital, an unwalled institution for the feeble minded, where they were sent from the Juvenile court.

Judge Mary Bartelme of the Juvenile court returned to her duties yesterday after a vacation in California. She refused to discuss the criticism aimed at her court by judges as a result of the Varecha and Bukovitz cases. She said she first wants to talk to the judges.

Among the members of the committee which is to meet tonight are Prof. Peter Bassoe of the Chicago Medical society, Dr. Ralph C. Hamill of the Illinois Society for Mental Hygiene; Dr. Paul L. Schroeder [state criminologist], Dr. Warren G. Murphy of the Dixon hospital, Prof. Andrew A. Bruce of the American Institute of Criminal Law, Dr. E. H. Ochsner of the Chicago Crime commission, Prof. Edwin H. Sutherland of the Academy of Criminology, and Judges John J. Sonsteby, Philip L. Sullivan, and John P. McGoorty.

STALIN THROWS DOWN CHALLENGE TO CAPITALISM

Says Russia Now Among Leading Nations.

MOSCOW, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Dictator Stalin, in a speech today reporting to the country on the results of the first five year plan, which has just been concluded, admitted that only 93.7 per cent of the general industrial program had been fulfilled. He declared that the danger of war had compelled the nation to neglect this production in order that it might divert itself to preparing means of defense.

Asserting that the failure to attain the objectives of the plan was "explained by the fact that neighboring countries refused to sign guaranty pacts with us and by complications in the far east," Stalin added that "we were compelled then to change the work in our factories in order to increase our means of defense.

"We have filled all the gaps now in this respect—we have completed everything for the defense of our country. Without this circumstance, we doubtless would have even exceeded the plan.

Points To Crisis Abroad.

"The accomplishment of our means of defense, then, is the general result of the five year plan in industry. Now you can use your own judgment about the shoutings in the capitalist press about the 'failure' of the five year plan."

Contrasting the dropping of industrial output in crisis ridden capitalist countries, he declared the volume of industrial production in the U. S. S. R. had increased three times over the pre-war level and had doubled since 1928.

"It may have been better to produce more things for broad consumption," he said. "We all know we have produced less than was needed, resulting in well known difficulties, but consider the consequences of postponing our heavy industrial production in favor of making more shoes, clothes and other articles of consumption.

Pace To Be Reduced.

"We would have had to buy raw materials for these things and we would then have had no tractors, no machinery, no metal. We would be without bread.

"As it is, we have lifted the country for all time from its position as the object of the military designs of our enemies, such as China now is. That is why the party is shown to have been right in insisting on such speed in heavy industrial production. That is why the party now is compelled to had no possibility of waiting."

Decreeing a sharp reduction in the present pace of industrial activity for the second five year plan, Stalin declared that the average yearly increase in gross production of 22 per cent during the first five year plan must be cut to 13 or 14 per cent.

Main Problem Accomplished.

"As a result of the successful fulfillment of the five year plan we already have accomplished the main problem of founding a base of technique, industry, transport, and agriculture; we have succeeded in raising our capacity for defense to the highest point and we have succeeded in building hundreds of new plants.

"There is now no necessity to continue to spur the country. This means that the main rôle of industrial production in the second five year plan will not be played by the old factories, whose technique is being changed, but by new plants and a technique which is rapidly being acquired."

General industrial production for 1933 was set in his speech at a 16 per cent increase over 1932. The plan called for a 36 per cent increase in 1932 over 1931, but this was a little more than half fulfilled.

Challenge to Capitalism.

Throwing down a challenge to the capitalist world, Stalin declared that history will show the first five year plan to have "tremendous international meaning."

"Our own camp is being increased throughout the world by the successes of the five year plan," he said. "This means that proletarian revolutions are threatening the capitalist world and that these successes are mobilizing revolutionary forces of all countries against capitalism.

"No one can doubt now that the meaning of the five year plan, far from being a private matter of the soviet union, has international potentialities without limit."

Stalin justified the sacrifices exacted of the population in the terms of continued low living standards by declaring:

"The main problem of the five year plan was to change the country from one with the technique of the middle ages to one with contemporary technique, to make the nation independent of the whims of capitalism. It was made more difficult because of the tremendous outlay of money involved—money which we could not obtain outside, consequently being forced to rely on our own resources.

Says Facts Justify Venture.

"It required very serious sacrifices, but that was a stage through which we had to pass in order to attain our end. It was difficult of realization but we did it in four years and three months, and the facts showed the party's policies were right—our bold venture was justified.

"We not only have been victorious in heavy industry, but the results have been even more than we hoped for. We had no black metallurgy before, no tractor industry, no automobiles, no lathe construction base, no chemical industry, no agricultural instruments, no aviation. Now we have them.

"We have climbed from the last to one of the first places in the world in electric energy production and the same with oil. Our textile industry has risen from only a single base in the north to a large enterprise beside which the European textile industry pales."

Assails Critics of Plan.

Stalin served notice to critics of the policy of collectivization in agriculture that collectivization was necessary for the extension of Socialism through the entire country. He voiced the unequivocal assertion that it should be continued, thus silencing those within the party who had dared to advocate a return to individual farming.

Citing wide successes under the collectivized system, which he credited with exceeding the five year plan by three times. He declared that it would be unnecessary to continue the same speeds in the development of the second five year plan for the simple reason that collectivization already had been finished in the main regions generally.

"We have not only finished collectivization in general, but have succeeded in implanting the consciousness in the great majority of peasants that it is the only means to carry on agriculture," Stalin continued.

Says Conditions Are Improved.

"The question has been decided in a positive sense. The way of the old individual system of farming was closed finally. The problem now is to strengthen the collectives and make them more bolshevist. Some people demand immediate profits, in the absence of which they advocate the liquidation of collective farms.

"Many industries are still not returning profits, but is it necessary to liquidate them for that reason? Only enemies can raise the question about the necessity of collectivization and the necessity for speed with which it can be accomplished."

Stalin claimed credit for improving material conditions of workers under the five year plan through abolishment of unemployment, an increase in annual salaries of 67 per cent as compared to 1928 figures, an increase in the social insurance fund of 290 per cent and an increase in public feeling.

All Needs Not Satisfied.

"Of course we did not succeed in satisfying all the needs of workers and peasants, and it is improbable that this can be done in the next few years, but we have improved conditions steadily," he declared.

Advocating a wider increase in trade between cities and villages, Stalin took a fling at critics of the present stability of the ruble.

"How can they say our money has no value at all when with it we built our present industrial giants and large collective farms?" he cried.

Seizes Cash Loot

Policeman Richard Hoffman of the Chicago avenue station last night shot and captured a robber as he fled after robbing the manager of a Western Union Telegraph office at 110 West Ohio street of $288. The money was recovered.

Hoffman was in the rear of the office talking to a messenger boy when the bandit entered and compelled the manager, Thomas Lloyd, to hand over the money. Lloyd shouted as the man ran out and Hoffman, following, fired as the bandit tried to run west in Ohio street. One bullet struck the fugitive in the right shoulder and he fell in front of the Alexandria hotel entrance.

At the Bridewell hospital the robber said he was James Kenny, 26 years old, 352 North Clark street. His pistol was still in his hand when he fell. Policeman Hoffman was congratulated by his comrades and superiors, as he is eligible for a reward of $1,000 customarily paid by the telegraph company for the capture of robbers of its offices.

REPUBLICAN ARMY AIDS DE VALERA IN IRISH ELECTION

Opposes His Policy, but Supports President.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Jan. 9.—Leaders of Cumann na nGaedheal—former President William T. Cosgrave's party—are incensed as a result of the scheme by followers of President Eamon de Valera to break up their election rally here yesterday. Ernest Blythe, minister of finance in the Cosgrave régime, said today that precautions taken by the police and the Army Comrades' association [white army] were inadequate to meet the disorders. Between 15,000 and 25,000 persons participated in the rioting.

When Cosgrave speaks in Dublin next Sunday, the fullest precautions will be taken by the white army. Cosgrave's supporters insist that agitators were imported by De Valera's Fianna Fail yesterday and organized the disorders to prevent thousands from hearing the speeches.

Cosgrave Expecting Victory.

While De Valera's party hopes to gain ten seats in the Irish parliament in the election on Jan. 24, thereby eliminating its dependence on the Labor party, Cosgravites believe that the anti-government groups will overwhelm De Valera. Cosgrave and Frank McDermott's independent bloc, political observers calculate, will have control of the selection of a new president. Rumors are current that Cosgrave will not meet the approval of the Center party, whose raison d'etre is to remove all association with the rebellion and the civil war period.

MacDermott has been suggested for president, but his inexperience is considered a barrier. He is untried as a leader and he has served in parliament only ten months. It is therefore very likely that Cosgrave again will be chosen in the event his party wins. Should Fianna Fail obtain a majority of seats, De Valera will remain as president, but changes in the ministry are likely.

The Irish republican army, which stands for a complete republic, issued a manifesto tonight addressed to all Ireland. The manifesto reiterates the republican army's claim for freedom and says that history proves that "separatists always are wise." It pledges allegiance only to a government of the Irish republic and points out that in the present election De Valera's party does not ask the people for a redeclaration of a republic.

Calls Cosgrave Defeat a Victory.

The statement admits the overthrow of Cosgrave last year was a great victory in the face of terrorism and states that his defeat relieved the country of the danger of a civil war.

The manifesto releases members from restrictions against taking part in the election and calls for aid to return Fianna Fail to power, adding that this does not commit them to accept Fianna Fail's policy. In fact, the manifesto insists that the policy of De Valera's party is wrong and that the Anglo-Irish treaty and all other English associations ought to be scrapped. It demands full freedom for separatist organizations, freedom for youths to arm and participate in military training. The release of republican prisoners is also demanded.

The opinion here is that the republican army will take an active part in the elections and that the breaking up of yesterday's Cumann na nGaedheal rally was its first blow.

Sinn Fein to Ignore Election.

Yesterday Sinn Fein, extremist republican organization which has consistently refused to enter parliament, announced that it would not participate in the elections. All members were urged to ignore the election "either as a worker of any party or as a voter."

(Sinn Fein simply means "ourselves" and indicates the object of the movement as expressed in the phrase, "Ireland for the Irish.")

Trial of John Bain and Three Others Is Postponed

Trial of John Bain and three others on charges of accepting deposits while the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank, a Bain institution, was insolvent, was delayed yesterday because of the absence of Judge Thomas J. Lynch, who attended the inaugural of Gov. Horner in Springfield. The case was held on the court call pending his return.

REVEAL TRAGIC MOVES TO ESCAPE ALIMONY RACKET

Men Forced to Exile and Suicide by Demands.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Flight into exile and suicide are among the tragic means taken within the last year by husbands to escape jail sentences for nonpayment of alimony.

Last April Garfield J. Schieferstein, 50 years old, 850 Cornelia avenue, committed suicide by inhaling fumes from his automobile in his garage. In thirteen years he had paid $32,500 alimony to his wife, Mrs. Mildred Schieferstein.

Ruined by Alimony Racket.

In a farewell letter Schieferstein declared: "I leave this world because I have been ruined by my wife and laws and courts that make the racket of alimony possible."

Rather than go to jail for nonpayment of $1,000 in back alimony, Dr. A. J. Karalius, 42 years old, 3147 South Halsted street, drank a fatal dose of poison last Aug. 23. The physician had remarried and the alimony was due to his first wife, Marcella.

The physician's widow testified at an inquest that, within the few weeks previous to his death, he had frequently told her: "I will die before I go to jail. I have committed no crime."

Flee to Other States.

The records of the courts show that a number of husbands have fled to other states, being willing to forsake business interests in Chicago in order to avoid paying for the support of their estranged wives. The law says that a man may not be extradited merely because he owes alimony here, although he may be brought back on a warrant charging wife abandonment.

With these grave exhibits before them, what are the divorce judges of Cook county doing to alleviate some of the evils of the alimony situation? The law of Illinois gives these jurists power to fix alimony. The state Supreme court has upheld their authority to send a man to jail for failure to pay alimony.

Superior Judge Joseph Sabath, who has heard more than 35,000 divorces in his long career, more than any other judge in the world, answered that question yesterday. He revealed that he and his colleagues on the Superior and Circuit court benches have given serious attention and have put into practice a new set of rules designed to treat alimony in a more equitable manner.

One Judge Jails 52 Men.

The judge admitted present laws do not render much assistance in reaching just decisions on allotting proper support money. But pending a possible reform in these laws, the judges have fallen back upon their own discretion, a variable human element due to the experience or lack of experience of the man on the bench.

Judge Sabath is the only judge in Cook county who hears divorces year in and year out. There are four or five other divorce courts, and in these the various judges sit for one-year terms. There have been judges, such as Judge Daniel P. Trude of the Circuit court, who sent 52 men to jail for nonpayment of alimony within a few weeks when he was hearing divorces last spring. Others have refused to jail husbands except in the most flagrant cases.

Significance was lent to Judge Sabath's remarks because, only a few years ago, he was known as "the woman's judge" by attorneys. With money flowing easily, his alimony orders for women were generous, although he never gained a reputation for being harsh in sending husbands to jail.

Demands Care for Children.

"The alimony question is a most serious one," the judge began. "The biggest work in the divorce courts today is not the listening to evidence in the cases themselves, but the delicate question of support money.

"I have no one in the county jail today because he is unable to pay alimony. There are a very few sent out there because they acted in sheer defiance of the court and refused to pay for the support of their children when they were financially able to do so.

"Men appear before me who are earning only $15 to $20 a week and are faced with the necessity of maintaining two households. These must be allowed to keep enough money out of their wages to keep body and soul together. Sometimes a mistake of 50 cents a week in setting alimony may bring distress to one side or the other.

Jobs Factors in Alimony.

"The amount of alimony is based upon the kind of job a man holds, his income, and a number of other factors. The office worker must be allowed enough to keep up his appearance so that he will not lose his job.

"When a woman has been a good wife and is divorced because of a man's adultery; when she is ill or physically incapable of supporting herself, then I allow a wife with no children a small amount of alimony, not more than $5, $6, or $7 a week.

"But where there are no children and the wife is able to work, we divorce judges are getting away from the idea of alimony. It is the hardest thing in the world to convince some of these women that they must adjust themselves to present conditions.

"With children the problem is different. The amount of support money allowed varies according to the ages of the children and their number. The alimony orders in my court in such cases vary from $15 to $30 a week.

Jails Only the Defiant.

"As for jailing husbands, I am absolutely against it unless a man openly defies the court and refuses to pay for the support of his children when he is able to do so. Jail breaks a man's backbone. He feels that he has lost everything, his home his friends, and he comes out broken in spirit."

Judge Sabath also discussed the separate maintenance suit which, he pointed out, is often used as a whip which wives hold over their husbands in order to force payments of alimony.

COLOMBIA TELLS LEAGUE PERU IS AT FAULT IN ROW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Switzerland, Jan. 9.—The Colombian government today submitted to the league of nations its exposition of the dispute with Peru over the Leticia area. The note declared that no excuse existed for the "violent occupation" of the territory by Peruvians. An expeditionary force has been dispatched to the disputed area, the note said, although Colombia desires to maintain friendly relations.

Colombian Ships Near Scene.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Three Colombian ships arrived today at Manaos, a city of northern Brazil on the Rio Negro river, 10 miles from the confluence of that stream and the Amazon.

The vessels will take on fuel and provisions and await the arrival of the steamer Cordoba, whereupon it is understood that the fleet will proceed to Leticia.

SHADOWS OF WAR

BY ANTHONY PATRIC.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BAHIA, Brazil, Jan. 1.—[By airmail.]—Brazil's dispatch of a naval squadron to Tabatinga in the upper Amazon river is evidence of this nation's alarm over the Leticia dispute, which Rio de Janeiro believes will result in war between Colombia and Peru. At the moment the Brazilian government is seriously considering abrogating the treaty of 1851, which permits both Colombia and Peru to navigate ships in the Amazon.

Publication in the newspaper O Estado do Para, an official publication, of a Colombian map, in which a large portion of Brazilian territory is included as an integral part of Colombia has caused wide protestation in Brazil. Even the town of Tabatinga, only four miles from Leticia, is included in the map. Brazil keeps a regular garrison, including a battalion of troops and field artillery, at Tabatinga.

Challenge to Brazil.

Para newspapers state that Colombia not only is seeking to go to war with Peru, but that the Colombian government by such official publications also is challenging Brazil. They insist that President Getulio Vargas' duty is to protest energetically. The papers also charge that Colombian schools are teaching that Tabatinga and other Brazilian towns near the border belong to Colombia.

Besides the naval squadron, the war office has ordered 12 army planes to Tabatinga to keep a close watch along the frontier and report to the army and navy invasions of belligerent forces into Brazilian territory. Four warships already represent Brazil at the scene and approximately 2,000 troops are there or on the way.

Peru has sent reinforcements to Leticia since about 300 irregulars seized the town on Sept. 1. Colombia has ordered both gunboats and troops to Leticia.

Thus, Rio de Janeiro newspapers view the dispute as the forerunner of a new South American war. They consider the serious implications of events since the seizure of Leticia by Peruvians. Colombia floated a war loan of $10,000,000 and Peru one of a smaller amount. Peru was reported to have won a naval battle in early November, but Colombia denied it.

Colombia Buys Ships.

Colombia has contracted for armed ships and war supplies abroad. The French ship Dinard of 500 tons, renamed Cordoba, and the British ship Royal Highlander of 1,700 tons, renamed the Mosquero, were purchased and outfitted at Rouen, France. A Norwegian ship, the Tonsberg, which will be called the Bogata, is being similarly fitted.

The refitting of the vessels consists of armor plating and the installation of 88 millimeter guns with chrome shields for the gunners. Other European countries are participating in the war scare. The Austrian Steyr works are reported to be manufacturing war materials for both Colombia and Brazil.

500 Persons Attend

More than 500 persons attended the 50th anniversary dinner of the Chicago Congregational club last night at the La Salle hotel. The principal speaker was the Rev. Dr. Oswald W. S. McCall of Berkeley, Cal. He spoke in place of Dean Willard S. Sperry of the Harvard Divinity school, who was unable to be present. Dr. McCall's subject was "The Present Opportunity for Congregationalism."

Letters of congratulation have been received by President George R. Wilson, of the club, from more than 50 national leaders of the church. Thirty-five page booklets outlining the history of Chicago Congregationalism and the Congregational club were distributed to those present. It was prepared by Prof. Matthew Spinka of the Chicago Theological seminary.

LAKE FOREST'S FIRE LOSS IN '32 14C PER CAPITA

Lake Forest's council last night heard reports showing that the city in 1932 set a record in safety from fire and crime.

George E. Larson, chief of the fire department, asserted that the fire loss for the year was 14 cents per capita. Total fire losses were $985. Ninety-six fire alarms were sounded, but forty-two were for grass fires.

Chief of Police Frank Tiffany showed that there had been no major crime within the city limits during the year; only one death due to an automobile accident, and only three persons held to the grand jury for criminal offenses within his territory.

Vital statistics also had a favorable balance. There were 112 births in the city and 55 deaths. Of those born, 57 were boys and 55 girls. Deaths were also almost evenly balanced, with twenty-seven males and 28 females.

DUNCAN RENALDO GIVEN 2 YEARS; PASSPORT FALSE

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Duncan Renaldo, film actor convicted of falsifying a passport, was sentenced to four years in federal prison and fined $2,000 today by Federal Judge George Cosgrave.

Terms of the sentence provided that Renaldo would have to serve but two years. He was sentenced to two years on a charge of making a false statement on a passport application that he was a citizen of the United States, and to an additional two years for perjury in swearing to the statement, but the court ruled that the two sentences would run concurrently.

Renaldo maintained at the trial he was born in the United States. The government charged he was a Rumanian subject, and Judge Cosgrave in passing sentence said the evidence against him was "overwhelming."

Harry Balter, assistant United States attorney, said Renaldo might escape the prison term through deportation proceedings which the government planned to start immediately.

Former Convict Confesses Killing Policeman at Party

Harry Monroe, 43 years old, 816 South Wabash avenue, a former inmate of the Michigan state penitentiary, signed a confession yesterday that he killed Policeman Edward C. Post, 46 years old, 6636 South Hermitage avenue. The policeman was shot to death earlier in the day during a party at 2533 West 46th street. Monroe approached the policeman as the latter sat talking to Mrs. Helen Lindley, 33 years old, a tenant of the 46th street apartment, drew a revolver, and shot Post through the heart. Monroe said that he had been drinking. He spoke of Post as his "best friend."

Roosevelt Not Likely to Let Ford Eat Cakes at White House

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The old saying that every American boy has a chance to become President of the United States was meant as a come-on or promise, but perhaps it ought to be attended by a description of the job, including the hours of labor, the responsibilities and the headaches.

In that case little boys might construe it as a threat and conduct their lives so as to make sure of not being sentenced to the White House. There are some points in which those whom Mr. Chuck Wiggins the realist, described as the little, dirty-mouthed kids in the streets might even find the big house preferable. There the hours of labor are comparatively short, the responsibilities are negligible and there are very few bosses to please.

Prowl Through White House.

And if there are sightseers moving through the big house peering at the inmates like visitors at a zoo the big house has nothing on the White House in that respect. The sightseers prowled through the White House, too.

I am told there has not been much pleasure in the White House since the term of Mr. Taft who was a man of easy and social disposition enjoying high office at a time when it was not necessary to conduct a state dinner after the formula of a Sunday school supper.

The social phase of the presidency was not the least of its attractions up to that time and it was no treason to go to the cellar for something for dinner after a hard day's work in the office. A man could be his own man. Since then the war and the results of the war have weighed heavily on the succeeding Presidents of the United States and the glamour of the office, which is the attraction that is held out to the American boy has been more than compensated by the worries.

There virtually is no fun in the presidency now and the new President, Mr. Roosevelt, finds he has begun to be a disappointment even to his own supporters before he has moved into the place. If Mr. Roosevelt raises the income tax he will be in wrong and if he levies a sales tax he will be in wrong, too. He is in wrong and a disappointment if he cuts down the patronage or graft jobs which theoretically are his party's due, as a means of saving money and in fact there is no single thing which he may do or refuse to do which will not bring upon the criticism and anger which Mr. Hoover now is entering his last two months of.

Roosevelt May Please Many.

There is one matter in which Mr. Roosevelt may please the greatest number and give the least possible offense and I am given to understand that he will do this. Mr. Roosevelt will make a clean sweep of the familiar varsity lineup of big shots who were so conspicuous in the movies and rotogravures of the era of prosperity. There was a long time when the photographers on the White House detail could not look into their finders without discovering Henry Ford and Harvey Firestone being plain and folksy. Mr. Ford was distinctly no help to Mr. Roosevelt in the recent campaign, so it seems quite unlikely that he will be asked in to consume sausage and cakes at the White House during the next four years. Inasmuch as he and Mr. Firestone always seemed to be coupled in the betting, I am advised that he is another who will be seen less of in the years to come.

Morever, Mr. Roosevelt seems to carry along his own court jester, Mr. Eddie Dowling, who first popped into the public attention as the administration humorist during the memorable children's hour at the Democratic national convention at Chicago. On that occasion a recess was called to permit the major statesmen to agree on the nominee and as the delegates sat in the Stadium waiting to be told whom they were to nominate Mr. Dowling, by one accord, to wit, his own, hopped onto the platform and entertained with witty and original sayings. Later, he was seen in Mr. Roosevelt's own company at various times and this is taken to mean that Mr. Will Rogers has become a lame duck jester and homely philosopher and a victim of the times along with Mr. Hoover.

Is Unjust to Rogers.

This is unjust to Mr. Rogers at that, because he never was a man to take sides and even achieved the dexterous feat of indorsing Thomas Heflin and Alfred E. Smith in one and the same paragraph. Mr. Rogers always buttered his bread on both sides, but he came to be known as the official humorist of the Republican administrations and the solemn referendum of last November seems to have meant him, too. Perhaps Mr. Dowling will be funnier. He could be.

Mr. Roosevelt's policy regarding photographs with motion picture actors and actresses in the White House gardens remains to be announced. This used to take up a considerable portion of a President's time, and the press agents came to regard the White House as a legitimate background for exploitation work. But such activities can cut into a President's working day, and the last notable photo of the kind was a group showing Mr. Hoover posing with Red Cagle, Albie Booth, and some others who had flown down here at the expense of the Republican national committee to pledge him the varsity football vote.

Airship Akron 'Stunts' Over Havana; Heads for Home

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 9.—Sailing in a clear sky, the U. S. navy airship Akron arrived here from Guantanamo this morning, circled the city twice, and then headed for Miami. Three Cuban army airplanes escorted it five miles out to sea. While over Havana six planes dropped from their hangar within the Akron and after short flights "hooked on" again and were returned to their nests.

SENTENCED TO DEATH.

Waterloo, Ia., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Elber Brewer, convicted of the murder of Deputy Sheriff L. F. Dilworth, was sentenced by Judge A. B. Lovejoy today to be hanged Jan. 26, 1934.

12 CONGRESSMEN ESCAPE AS HOUSE ELEVATOR DROPS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—About a dozen members of the house today had a narrow escape from being dropped about thirty feet in a capitol elevator, and Representative James A. Frear of Wisconsin barely avoided being caught between it and a floor.

The members filed into the elevator in the basement and it slowly climbed. Mario Pizzaro, operator, halted it at the second floor and opened the door. As Frear stepped out, the elevator slipped down about five feet.

Pizzaro pulled the representative back in time.

Pepsodent Antiseptic makes $1 equal $3 in fighting colds

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes 3 times as far. And whether you buy the 25c, 50c, or $1 size, you still get 3 times as much for your money.

FEWER colds this year—quicker relief from those you catch—and money saved besides. That's the promise Pepsodent Antiseptic makes you. Millions by experience can tell you it's true. Pepsodent Antiseptic is different from other leading mouth antiseptics.

Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs—it goes 3 times as far—gives you 3 times as much for your money and gives you extra protection against sore throat colds. In fighting stubborn colds, remember there really are only two leading kinds of mouth antiseptics on the market. In one group is the mouth antiseptic that must be used full strength to be effective. In the other group is Pepsodent Antiseptic, absolutely safe when used full strength, yet powerful enough to be diluted with two parts of water and still kill germs in less than 10 seconds!

Don't fool yourself

It is bad enough to pay the extra cost of using antiseptics that must be used full strength . . . it's worse to dilute them and fail to kill the germs . . . so choose the antiseptic that kills the germs even when it is diluted. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—and be safe.

IMPURE BREATH
(Halitosis)

The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds prove its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember, Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, even when diluted with water it still kills germs.

Death Toll Rises to 38; More than 100 Hurt.

MADRID, Jan. 9.—(AP)—A battle between communists and a large force of civil guards at the village of Bugarra in the province of Valencia tonight resulted in the deaths of two assault guards and one civil guard.

The communists had been driven out of the neafby town of Pedralba, where earlier in the day there was a sanguinary fight in which ten rebels and two members of the guard were killed.

All told, the extremist movement against the government, which has affected many parts of Spain, has resulted in the killing of 38 persons and the wounding of more than 100 in the last two days.

Reds Flee to Woods.

Machine gun units were rushed to Bugarra to reinforce the civil guard. The communists had fortified themselves there. In the ensuing clash the communists fled to the woods.

Government officials are holding police, civil guards and troops in readiness to deal with any fresh terroristic outbursts.

Two bombs were found in a Madrid theater—the Teatro la Opera.

At Melilla, in Morocco, soldiers were held in their barracks in order that they might be ready to move against any native outbreaks.

In Valencia the number of deaths was placed at five. Late reports showed firing and clashes in Barcelona and Cadiz.

Dispatches from Seville tonight indicated that police expect syndicalists to declare a general strike Tuesday in sympathy with the extremist movement. Syndicalist bakers already have gone on strike. Authorities indicated a belief that the communistic element in Seville will not support the strike.

At midnight a large bomb seriously damaged a textile factory here, but no one was killed. Extremists later tried to burn the textile warehouse. One guard was seriously wounded while pursuing the would-be incendiarists.

Heavy guards of police were stationed at railway depots to prevent any ottempt to spread strike propaganda.

Reds Capture Town.

Communists succeeded for a while in gaining control of the town of Repollet, near Sabadell, in Catalonia, where they placed the authorities and civil guards in jail and raised a red and black flag over city hall. Reinforcements of civil guards and assault guards recaptured Repollet after a battle in which one civil guardsman and a townsman were killed and several persons were wounded.

Greatest precautions were taken at Barcelona to prevent acts of terrorism. Police there said that the plans of the anarcho-syndicalists and communists throughout Spain were to hurl small bombs from automobiles and other vehicles indiscriminately.

The name of Maj. Ramon Franco, noted Spanish airman, popped into the news of the extremist outbreak when Gov. Moles in Barcelona, replying to questions as to whether the aviator was involved, said: "That's what I am told."

THIS SCIENTIST SAYS THE WHOLE WORLD IS CRAZY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 9.—On April 23, 1923, Dr. A. H. Desloges, general medical director of hospitals for the insane and industrial and reformatory schools, chief of the devision of social hygiene for the province of Quebec and president of the committee on mental hygiene of this province, startled the public with an announcement that in his opinion, the whole world would be insane within a quarter of a century if no change took place in the general trend of mental hygiene. Dr. Desloges today declared that the degeneration has preceeded more rapidly than he expected. He stated that, in his belief, the world had reached that point now.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Why cutting does not remove the cause?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?

That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby, the parts almost dead?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for piles discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID sold by all druggists that's guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause. It stimulates the circulation in the lower bowel—drives out the thick impure blood, heals and restores the affected parts.

HEM-ROID tablets have an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles no matter how stubborn the case?

EVANSTON CUTS $514,544 FROM BUDGET OF 1932

The Evanston city council late last night presented its 1933 budget, amounting to $1,414,456. This is $514,544 less than the 1932 budget. Included in the new schedule is a 15 per cent blanket reduction for all municipal employés. It is expected the budget will be formally approved next week.

"If every municipal body would bring in reductions as our council has done I believe we could see a ray of hope to guide us out of the depression," commented Mayor Charles H. Bartlett.

On the motion of Ald. Albert Smith the Evanston council unanimously took action to exonerate Eugene Schoos, who was arrested and mistakenly identified by Mrs. Helen Holsfeind as the man who had raped her. She later identified Sigmund Bukovitz. The council ordered the Evanston police department to hand over Schoos' photograph and fingerprint records, taken after his arrest, so that he himself might destroy them.

2 HELD IN N. Y. AFTER OAK PARK POSTAL THEFT

Elmer Boucher, 41 years old, 5805 Lake street, and Wesley Davis, 40 years old, South Bend, were held to the federal grand jury in New York City yesterday in bonds of $5,000 each on charges of passing five forged postal money orders for $75 each. The money orders were stolen from an Oak Park postal station early in December.

The men were arrested Sunday in a New York hotel. The money orders were part of 200 blanks, which could be made out for a maximum of $20,000, that were stolen from the Oak Park station. Several days after the Oak Park theft 200 more blank orders were stolen from a St. Louis postal station.

Lillian Hall, 26 years old, was arrested in Chicago after trying to cash one of the stolen St. Louis orders in a loop store. Federal agents said that she is the sweetheart of Boucher. Miss Hall was held to the grand judy here in bond of $5,000. Prosecutor Edward A. Fisher said that an effort might be made to bring Boucher and Davis to Chicago for trial.

ADMITS IN NOTE HE KILLED WIFE, ENDS OWN LIFE

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—A few hours after T. M. Harrison, 53, promoter and golf professional, shot and killed himself in a hotel here today, police broke into his home at Redwood City and found his wife dead—slain by his hand ten days ago, a suicide note left by Harrison said.

The note, mailed to a San Francisco newspaper, said the body of the wife, Mrs. Myrtle Adele Harrison, would be found in the Redwood City home, where she had been shot Dec. 30.

Police Chief C. L. Collins of Redwood City, to whom the note was turned over, found Mrs. Harrison's body, clad only in a night dress, beneath the covers of a bed. In the temple was a bullet hole and beside the bed a pistol shell of the same caliber as that with which Harrison took his life here.

UNION ELECTION IN TAYLORVILLE AREA IS BARRED

BULLETIN.

Benton, Ill., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Twenty-five deputy sheriffs heavily armed left here late tonight for West Frankfort to prevent possible picketing of the Peabody Coal company's mine No. 19 by members of the Progressive Miners' union. The group of officers that left here was to be joined at West Frankfort by other special deputy sheriffs. The officers will be on the scene when examiners enter the mine tomorrow morning.

Taylorville, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—The scheduled state election of the Progressive Miners of America will not be held tomorrow in Taylorville and the Midland coal field adjoining on the west, it was announced today by Jack Stanley, president of the local No. 9, which includes all progressives formerly employed in the four local mines of the Peabody Coal company. Sheriff Charles H. Weineke refused to permit the strikers to open up a polling place.

The union officials appealed to Col. Robert W. Davis of Carbondale, commanding the state troops here, in an attempt to have the sheriff's order modified, but without avail.

Pearcy Denies March Plans.

Military and civil authorities continued today to close meeting places of the progressives. The American-Italian club in Taylorville was closed, although officers of the club declared that the organization had no interest in the "mine war." Among other places closed was the progressive commissary in Stonington.

Union Charter Revoked.

West Frankfort, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special]—International President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers of America today revoked the charter of local union 2657 [Peabody mine 19] here and installed provisional officers as a means of counteracting what international officers said is an attempt by a small minority in the local union to join Progressive union.

Threaten to Close Mine.

Duquoin, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special]—Elmer S. Mayor, superintendent for the Peabody Coal company interests, received instructions today to notify the 700 men at the Majestic mine to report for work tomorrow or the mine would be closed indefinitely.

AGED ASSOCIATE OF EDISON TELLS OF LOVE AFFAIRS

Inventor, 70, Testifies in Perjury Trial.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Claiming to have been a partner of the late Thomas A. Edison during his 20 year stay in the United States, Arthur Kitson, white haired, 70 year old engineer, submitted to a penetrating examination today during a hearing against Mrs. Eve Litton, 33 years old. She is charged with perjury alleged to have been committed during her suit for divorce two years ago.

The woman during the suit admitted one act of misconduct, but before the final decree was granted the king's proctor submitted evidence showing that she had lived in adultery for some time. Kitson admitted that he had stayed in numerous hotels with Mrs. Litton. He said there was a child registered in his name, but he was not certain about its paternity.

Admits Many Affairs.

Kitson admitted numerous associations with various women, some of them young. He has a divorced wife and five children in the United States.

Kitson admitted that one woman, who since has been sent to a home for mental diseases, was the mother of three of his children. He also confessed acquaintance with a typist, whose name was passed by him on a slip of paper. He said she was 20 or 21.

"Did you take her to your house? Did she spend the night there?" Harry Myers, attorney for the defense, asked.

"She was invited to go there by her employers," Kitson said. "She came to do some work."

"Did you take her to the seaside for a week-end at Folkstone?"

"She went there to do some work."

"The work lasted most of the week-end?"

"Yes."

Gets $5,000 from Aged Woman.

Kitson also said he got $5,000 from a Miss Hutton, a woman past 70.

"Have you ever had any money from this woman?" Myers asked, indicating Mrs. Litton.

"She paid her own expenses, I paid mine," Kitson said.

Kitson also admitted that he had been addressed as "Sir Arthur," but declared it was a mistake due to titled relatives in his family.

"Have you described yourself as a partner of Edison?" he was asked.

"I was a partner of Edison," he replied.

KNOWN AS INVENTOR.

Arthur Kitson, chairman and managing director of Kitson Engineering Company, Ltd., London, was associated with Edison, Maxim, and Brush companies in the United States in the first decade of the 20th century. He was chairman of the committee of science and arts of Franklin institute, Philadelphia, for 10 years. He was inventor of the Kitson incandescent oil lighting system and lights which are used widely in lighthouses.

WIDOW TO BURY TED NEWBERRY AMID SPLENDOR

In the undertaking rooms at 704 South Crawford avenue the body of Ted Newberry lay yesterday. Newberry, gang leader, was found shot to death Saturday near Chesterton, Ind. Funeral services are to be held tomorrow afternoon.

The body was placed in a casket of silvered bronze, said to be the finest that could be bought. Both Dean O'Banion and "Nails" Morton, his predecessors in the rackets and in violent death, were buried in similar coffins.

Nattily garbed men lingered in the vicinity of the undertaking rooms and strolled in and out, talking in guarded undertones.

In a homey, comfortable apartment at 552 Briar place, Mrs. J. A. Newberry, the middle aged mother of the dead man, sat with a few friends of the family, awaiting word from the widow.

"The plane broke down at Nashville," said Newberry's mother. "We are waiting word now and we won't know anything until Mrs. Newberry arrives here."

The widow arrived later in the day and had announcements sent to newspapers that funeral services would be held in the funeral chapel where the body now lies at 2 p. m. tomorrow. The place of interment was not revealed.

WIDOW'S STONY CALM BAFFLES 6 IN MURDER QUIZ

her, he told of four or five romantic incidents. Frances coldly said he lied.

Bradberry and his wife, Eula, entered the room. Frances had been advised by her lawyer to tell the truth about her relations with Bradberry, who has been charged with obstruction of justice in the murder investigation.

Questioned about Bradberry in his presence, she admitted intimacies with him. When the Bradberrys had departed she said there had been no love in her romance with Bradberry that he was just a man and she a woman who had met, embraced and parted.

One Bit of Information.

Later she made the first admission considered as having any bearing on the murder of her husband. She said she had met Bradberry downtown on the afternoon preceding the night her husband was kidnaped near the Schildhauer home at 3435 Fulton street and shot to death. Previously the police had known nothing of this meeting—the last one they knew about was a week before the murder.

This bit of information was believed to have been given by Mrs. Schildhauer as the result of the last question asked of Bradberry. The question was, "You have told us everything?" and Bradberry's answer was "Yes."

Mrs. Astrid Carlson, former maid in the homes of the Birkinshaws and the Schildhauers, was another to confront the widow. She told of the Bradberry pajama episode, corroborating the stories of others regarding this affair.

Question of the Gun.

After the questioning of Mrs. Schildhauer had ended Sergts. Francis Donohue and Charles Reynolds of the coroner's office brought Mrs. Carlson and Mrs. Birkinshaw together.

"You told us there was a revolver in Mrs. Birkinshaw's bureau drawer, didn't you?" Donohue asked Mrs. Carlson, who assented.

"There never was a gun in our home," Mrs. Birkinshaw asserted.

"You pointed it at my husband and when he was afraid you said it wasn't loaded," Mrs. Carlson said.

"We want that gun," Sergt. Donohue told Mrs. Birkinshaw.

"There isn't any gun," she insisted.

Then all went home, the Birkinshaws and Palmer to return today to make formal statements.

South Carolina Orders Cut in Power Company Rates

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The South Carolina railroad commission today ordered reductions of $173,446 a year in the rates of the Broad River Power company of Columbia, the first company it proceeded against in an announced program for reductions of more than $1,000,000 a year in power rates in the state.

the hoodlum element on legitimate business organizations that the mayor is making war. He has pledged himself to bring the beer business, once it is legal, into the open, and the first step toward this was the closing of hideaway beer flats. With these virtually eliminated he is turning to the gang leaders.

It is significant that a large proportion of those named were connected throughout the flush years of its prosperity with the vast Capone organization. George Moran is an exception. He was always an enemy of the Capone forces and even after seven of his followers fell in the St. Valentine's day massacre held on to his beer and booze territory. Of late he is said to have retired for the good reason that, because of the depression, there is no longer any profit in the rackets.

Old Capone Lieutenants.

D'Andrea was the bodyguard of Al Capone and served a jail sentence for carrying a pistol into the Federal court while his chief was on trial. Diamond and McGurn were his muscle men. Nitti was the principal Capone man of business and was the boss of the gang remnants until he was seriously wounded by a policeman's bullets a few weeks ago.

In the good old days Mangano had rich gambling and vice concessions on the west side. Now he is being pushed from one gambling house to another and finding that the cream has been taken off the business. Fur Sammons and Belcastro were always valuable, the first for his good shooting and Belcastro for the bombs he made.

The De Grazios have long been the alcohol power in the vicinity of Melrose Park, but are said to have been unable to make any headway to the territory north of them, where the Touhys rule a mob which has sworn undying hatred to beer and alky men of Sicilian extraction.

South Side Beer Gangsters.

Quirk, McGeoghegan, Spike O'Donnell, Saltis and Quinlan have for some years been engaged in beer peddling and other such activity on the south side. Kloadike O'Donnell has reigned in western suburbs.

Some of the toughest and most active of the public enemies have recently gone to their graves. Among them may be mentioned Frank McErlane, Saltis' old friend, who died a natural death, and Ted Newberry, who was taken for a gangland ride last Saturday morning.

A little sidelight on the passing of the gangsters was given at the detective bureau yesterday when Bert Delaney, 6508 South Morgan street, was questioned by Chief of Detectives Schoemaker.

"Why pick me up?" asked Delaney, who for years delivered beer for Capone. Delaney is 54 years old. "One time I was in the bucks. Now the racket is done. Eliot Ness of the prohibition department put Capone out and everybody else has folded up. There's no more money in anything crooked."

Asked what he did for a living, Delaney said that he had a new trucking concern, the South Water Scavengers company, with offices at 1425 South Racine avenue. He explained that he was glad to get work hauling off overripe fruits and vegetables at 35 cents a barrel.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, N. Y., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—John N. Willys, who last year figuratively doffed the silk pants of American ambassador to Poland to return to the overalls of the automobile manufacturer, was host at his tenth annual luncheon for press men attending the national automobile show here.

With a fluent flow of colorful language, he stood at the head of a table, a short and stocky figure with a big and impressive head of gray hair. He poked fun at his former political office, damned high taxes and high prices, and confessed he was exercising all of his fortitude ("guts" was his word) in bringing out perhaps the most radical, if not the only radical, model in the 1933 automobile show.

"I'm back from stagnant duties abroad," said Mr. Willys, "and I'm now able to take up a few inches on my belt. I'm through with diplomatic service—office hours from 12:30 p. m. to 1 p. m.—and I'm back in the harness.

"It didn't take any courage to defend our country's interests in foreign lands, but it took courage to return to the fight of private industry, and it's taking a hell of a lot of guts for the Willys-Overland to introduce this radically new 1933 line.

"It's too early now to say whether the public wants something entirely different from the automobile manufacturers, but it's not too early, after looking at 1932 sales reports, to know that the public didn't take what was offered last year.

"Prices are too high. The public purchasing power, already slipped, has been further slashed by high taxation for excessive governmental costs. So in the 1933 Willys we have a car of reduced weight, reduced operating cost, and reduced retail price—economic transportation appropriate for the times."

The car resembles, more than any vehicle yet produced for the market, the full stream lines of the "rain drop" shapes drawn by imaginative artists with a smattering of aerodynamic information in picturing the auto mobile of the future. Even the head light lenses are tilted to reduce wind resistance.

CHARGE 40,000 RIFLES HAVE BEEN SENT TO HUNGARY

VIENNA, Jan. 9.—(AP)—Socialist newspapers today carried a report that 40 freight cars loaded with 40,000 to 50,000 rifles and 200 machine guns had arrived at the Hirtenberg arms and munitions factory from Italy and had been shipped to Hungary.

An official communique said the weapons were old Austrian war material which had been brought there to be repaired, and that the government had consented in order to provide work for Austrian labor. The statement did not clear up the origin of the weapons.

The Arbeiter Zeitung attacked the government, calling the communique untrue and denying the arms were being repaired. The newspaper asserted the arms which reached Hirtenberg were merely loaded onto trucks for shipment to Hungary. It accused the government of having knowledge of these transactions.

U. S. HIGH COURT DENIES REVIEW FOR FORMER COP

The United States Supreme court refused yesterday to review the two year sentence imposed upon former Policeman Wellington W. Britton for violation of the Harrison anti-narcotics act.

Britton and his partner, James Howland, were convicted before Federal Judge John P. Barnes of hi-jacking narcotic peddlers, and were both sentenced to two years in prison.

JAP ARMY SEIZES GATEWAY INTO JEHOL PROVINCE

Chinese Defenders Put Up No Resistance.

TOKIO, Jan. 10 (Tuesday).—(AP)—A Rengo (Japanese) news agency dispatch said Japanese troops occupied Chiumenekow, important pass through the Great Wall of China, today without resistance.

TOKIO, Jan. 10.—[Tuesday.]—(AP)—A Japanese cavalry regiment from Chinchow, Manchuria, with an infantry unit from Shanhaikwan late yesterday began advancing in the direction of Chiumenekow, an important pass in the Great Wall, about 12 miles from Shanhaikwan, which the Japanese expect to occupy today.

Stubborn fighting was anticipated, since one of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang's Chinese regiments, expelled from Shanhaikwan on Jan. 3, was reported entrenched in the pass.

Japs See Chinese "Menace."

Military leaders also said that taking the pass would diminish the offensive powers of Marshal Chang's four brigades in eastern Jehol province, which are considered a menace to the Japanese communications in Chinchow and Shanhaikwan.

Invoke Boxer Protocol.

Meanwhile a foreign office spokesman asserted that any settlement of the Shanhaikwan situation would have to include revival of the restrictions placed on Chinese military movements in the provisions of the Boxer protocol, concluded more than thirty years ago by Japan, France, Great Britain, Italy, Germany, the United States, and China.

The restrictions the Japanese desire revived would prevent the Chinese from stationing troops within seven miles of Tientsin and would empower commanders of foreign garrisons along the Peiping-Shanhaikwan railway to exclude Chinese troops from a zone extending two miles on each side of the railway.

Foreign quarters here competent to judge asserted that it would be impossible to enforce these long dormant restrictions without military action.

County Board Is Accused of Charity Coal Deal Collusion

The Cook county board was charged yesterday with being in collusion with a favored group of coal mine operators and dealers to commit a wholesale theft of taxpayers' money in the award of charity coal contracts based upon bids to be received today. The charge was made by coal mine operators and dealers not on the favored list and relief officials.

The county board is involved in the scheme to the extent of adopting specifications that will not permit bids from any other than a small group of mines in southern Illinois, it was charged. The specifications also make Frank H. Chambers, county supervisor of public service, absolute dictator of the quality of the coal to be delivered under the contracts.

Fix Charity Coal Price.

The favored group of coal mine operators is the "quality circle group" in which the leading companies are the Peabody Coal company, the Old Ben Coal corporation, the Chicago, Wilmington and Franklin Coal company, the Franklin County Coal corporation, and the Bell & Zoller Coal company. This group, it was charged, has set a price of $1.65 a ton on their coal at the mine.

Not content with fixing the price of the coal at the mine, it was charged, those operators have told the local dealers that they will not be allowed to bid on their coal unless they set an arbitrary price of $2 for yard handling, bagging and delivery. The freight rate on this coal is fixed at $2.01 a ton.

Based upon these figures, the scheme of coal mine operators and dealers will result in low bids of $5.66 per ton for the charity coal. Central Illinois and Indiana operators, should they bid, will have their offers thrown out because they cannot meet the specifications, which were drafted by Mr. Chambers on instructions from the county board.

Only 13 Mines Eligible.

The specifications so effectively block real competition that there are only 13 mines in operation in the entire state from which such coal can be mined, it was disclosed. That restriction is not visible on the face of the specifications, which read "Illinois shaft mined coal." The contracts to be awarded will involve more than 300,000 tons, which would cost more than $1,500,000 at only $5 the ton.

The new contracts, the rival operators charge, will pave the way for a repetition of the substitution of cheaper coal for the contract fuel, a practice that was admitted by the seven former charity coal contractors.

The collusion between mine operators and dealers was simplified yesterday, it was learned, when three companies were chosen to submit the three lowest bids, each for a different section of the city. Other dealers involved in the deal were notified to submit higher bids, to make it appear as though there were real competition. When the contracts are let, it is planned to apportion the charity business among all the dealers on the "favored list."

Object to Church Agency.

The Chicago Methodist Preachers' meeting yesterday adopted a resolution protesting against the recent decision to spend federal relief funds through the Catholic church. The meeting was held at the Chicago Temple. The resolution, presented by the Rev. Louis F. W. Leseman, chairman of the public policy committee, read in part:

"Resolved, That we must earnestly protest against such discrimination in favor of one denomination as over against all other churches, charitable organizations and political units which would have an equal right to become distributors of relief."

SECOND OF BIG 3 AIR LINES MOVES HEAD OFFICE HERE

The executive offices of American Airways, one of the three major air transport systems of the country, will be moved to Chicago effective Feb. 1, it was announced yesterday by L. D. Seymour, the new president of the system. Operating control of American Airways, which is a subsidiary of Aviation corporation, was obtained recently by the Cord corporation.

About 75 executives and employés will be effected by this move, many of them coming from St. Louis and Robertson, Mo., some coming from New York and others from Detroit, where the headquarters of Transamerican Airlines have been located. With the moving of the headquarters here, the consolidation of the Transamerican lines with the American Airways system is to be effected. Transamerican was acquired by the larger system recently.

The move will give Chicago the headquarters of two of the nation's largest networks of air lines. The headquarters of United Air Lines has been located here since its formation.

The new offices of American Airways will be located in the American Airways hangar at Chicago airport, 63d street and Cicero avenue.

Beautiful Li Kim has many rich mandarin coats and ceremonial robes, as well as charming American costumes. "In Chinese homes, as in America," she says, "Lux is standard for washing silks."

Miss Mah Li Kim, talented Chinese beauty, is now studying art in New York City. Her father is the manager of a large silk firm. Like all high caste Chinese, she is a connoisseur of silks and knows the best way to care for them . . .

"MY father has taught me how to judge silks and care for them," says this slim, exotic girl of the Orient. "Silk—seemingly so fragile—is really a tough, strong fibre when it is new, because of its elasticity.

"Chinese women teach their servants to wash silk the way that preserves this very precious elasticity—with Lux.

"My 2-Minute Way"

"Would you like to know my method for washing silk stockings? It's easy, and it doubles their wear.

"I take one teaspoon of Lux for each pair, add lukewarm water to Lux, press the suds very gently through the stockings, rinse well."

Thrifty American girls, too, wash stockings this 2-minute Lux way each night. It cuts down stocking runs, because when the silk keeps its elastic quality, it gives under strain—doesn't break. Cake-soap rubbing and soaps containing harmful alkali too often destroy elasticity. Avoid them! Anything safe in water is safe in Lux.

65 pieces silk lingerie
84 pairs socks
92 pairs child's socks
36 child's undergarments
66 pieces table linen
120 handkerchiefs

4 LAKE STATES MAP FIGHT ON SANITARY BOARD

Hearing on Receiver Plea to Open Thursday.

Plans for the presentation of evidence in the lake diversion case were made yesterday by legal advisers for Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, and Ohio, meeting in the Palmer house. The hearing is to start Thursday in the federal building before Edward F. McClennen of Boston, commissioned by the United States Supreme court as special master to take evidence in this case.

The sanitary district and the state of Illinois have been ordered to show why appropriate steps have not been taken to enforce the Supreme court ruling in regard to limiting the diversion of water from Lake Michigan through the drainage canal. The high court has ruled that the sanitary district must build sewage disposal plants to bring about the reduction in diversion for sanitary purposes to 1,500 cubic second feet of water by Dec. 31, 1938.

Two Attorneys General Present.

Attending the meeting in the Palmer house were J. E. Finnegan, attorney general of Wisconsin; Patrick H. O'Brien, attorney general of Michigan; R. T. Jackson of Cleveland, special assistant to the attorneys general; Joseph Hirschberg, deputy attorney general of Wisconsin, and Herbert H. Naujoks, assistant attorney general of Wisconsin.

Attorneys General John W. Bricker of Ohio and Harry H. Peterson of Minnesota, who were unable to be present, sent word that they would be in full accord with any action taken.

The present hearing grows out of the action started by the states of Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, and New York against Illinois and the sanitary district to halt the diversion of water from Lake Michigan. The Supreme court, in a decision in January, 1929, held that the diversion was illegal.

Cut in Diversion Ordered.

The court held with the complainant states that the diversion had caused the lowering of the mean levels of Lakes Michigan and Huron approximately six inches and of Lakes Erie and Ontario approximately five inches. A further decision in April, 1930, ordered the reduction of diversion from approximately 8,500 cubic feet a second to 1,500 cubic feet, plus domestic pumpage, by the end of 1938.

Last October the complainant states filed with the Supreme court an application for an order to show cause why a commissioner or receiver or other officer of the Supreme court should not be appointed to supervise construction of the sewage disposal plants. The sanitary district has offered as a defense its inability to sell bonds for construction of the necessary plants.

Special Master McClennen will hear evidence as to the financial condition of the sanitary district, the city, and the state, the steps already taken, and the plans for carrying out the court decision. The hearing is expected to last more than a month.

S. A. WHEELOCK, 84, EX-BANKER OF WILMETTE, WEDS

Seymour A. Wheelock, 84 years old, 882 Central avenue, Wilmette, yesterday appeared at the county building and obtained a license to marry Mrs. Florence A. Alley, 50 years old, of Boston. Last evening, at the home of Mr. Wheelock, who retired as president of the Wilmette State bank five years ago, relatives said the couple were married immediately after obtaining the license.

The plans for the wedding, relatives said, had been kept secret by Mr. Wheelock and his bride, who arrived here from Boston only three days ago. The couple met at the bride's home soon after Mr. Wheelock's first wife died in May, 1928. Mr. Wheelock has four children living, Mrs. M. F. Kirk of Dallas; Mrs. E. H. Burge, 924 Forest avenue, Wilmette; Miss Bertha Wheelock, who resides at her father's home, and a son, R. A. Wheelock of 89 Robsart road, Kenilworth. He is a great-grandfather.

CANADA MIGHT CURB CHICAGO'S USE OF WATER

State Department So Informs Senator.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The senate heard today from James Grafton Rogers, assistant secretary of state, that America would not surrender sovereignty over Lake Michigan by ratifying the St. Lawrence seaway treaty with Canada, now awaiting action.

Rogers' views, given in answer to a letter from Senator Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], were put into the Congressional Record by Vandenberg with the comment that "the question of the effect of the treaty on American sovereignty" in that lake had been much discussed.

Calls Objection Invalid.

"I have been persuaded for some time there is no validity to objections to the treaty upon this score," Vandenberg said in submitting Rogers' letter.

After observing that the United States "does not surrender in any sense" sovereignty over Lake Michigan, Rogers cited the conciliation treaty with Canada as showing the machinery between the countries for friendly adjustment of differences, and continued:

"As you are doubtless aware, a number of cities in the United States and Canada use water from the great lakes for domestic purposes. Ultimately, however, the water taken out of the lakes is returned to the great lakes watershed in every case, I believe, except at Chicago, where the water is diverted to another watershed through the drainage canal.

Cites Pending Treaty.

"In the pending treaty Canada formally acquiesces for the first time in a diversion of water from Lake Michigan and the great lakes watershed to the Mississippi river."

Senator Walsh [D., Mont.] said yesterday after a conference with President Elect Roosevelt that the St. Lawrence treaty probably would be ratified at the brief special session always called immediately after the inauguration to confirm the new cabinet.

MACHADO OFFERS TO REDRAFT BASIC LAWS OF CUBA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 9.—President Machado today offered to redraft the constitution in order to draw oppositionists from their places of refuge in various foreign legations and embassies. The offer was made after a conference with the senate president, Alberto Barreras, and American Ambassador Harry F. Guggenheim. Machado gave oppositionists three days to signify their willingness to join government members in initiating a constitutional reform, as the "last opportunity before foreign interference," evidently meaning the United States.

POISON TAKEN BY BRIDE FOUND DEAD, MATE SAYS

Events leading up to the death of Mrs. Margaret Timmons Porett, bride of three days, were revealed last night by her husband, Harry Porett, 29 years old, at his home at 616 North Sheridan road, Waukegan. Mrs. Porett, daughter of the late G. D. Timmons, dean of pharmacy of Valparaiso university, was found dead in her room at the Bismarck hotel Friday. She was buried at Valparaiso yesterday.

The coroner is investigating to determine if Mrs. Porett died of poisoning or natural causes. It is known that on Dec. 29 she took poison and was taken to the Presbyterian hospital. Young Porett explained this last night.

"I was in Chicago on Dec. 29, and Margaret was driven to Chicago by Neal Dixon, a friend, who also planned to meet his wife here. On the way Margaret took the poison. She had been ill and suffering from nervousness. Two days after taking the poison Margaret explained her act. She said she feared she could not make me happy. On Jan. 3 she was discharged from the hospital. That night we were married."

Two days later, Porett said, his bride left Waukegan for Valparaiso to inform her mother, but apparently became ill on the way and stopped at the hotel.

"I'm glad we Looked at All Three"

"That suggestion of Plymouth's . . . 'Look at All Three' . . . seemed to be a sporting proposition. So I went around and looked at the other two low-priced cars with my wife and son."

"Then we saw the new Plymouth up at a Broadway salesroom. As an artist, the first thing I noticed, naturally, was the design! I take my hat off to the men who created it!"

"My wife just couldn't stay out of the car. She got a big thrill getting behind the wheel. After taking it out on the road, we agreed that Floating Power sure is smooth!"

"Every time we go out, we like it better and better. It's certainly a good-looking car. And it uses hardly any gas at all. Yes, sir, I'm glad we 'looked at All Three.'"

"If you ask me, Plymouth is America's next Number One Car"

TALK to any Plymouth owner! Ask him why he bought his car, and how he likes it! You'll find the same enthusiasm everywhere you go. The same honest conviction that Plymouth offers most for the money in the low-priced field.

Edward Trumbull's case is typical of thousands. Like the rest of us, he wanted to be sure of getting his money's worth.

That's why "Look at All Three" appealed to him. It sounded fair. So he looked, studied, compared, and bought a Plymouth.

When people buy a car as carefully as Edward Trumbull . . . and keep on raving about it . . . it means something.

Word-of-mouth is the strongest kind of advertising. Happy owners are a car's best salesmen. And Plymouth owners are happy!

Lots of them are saying, as Edward Trumbull says—"If you ask me, Plymouth is America's next Number One Car!"

Talk to Plymouth owners about Floating Power engine mountings! Ask them about Hydraulic Brakes . . . a 70 h.p. engine . . . a safety-steel body!

And then ask a dealer for a Floating Power ride! You won't be pressed to buy!

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

MR. RAINEY SHOWS THE WAY.

Congressman Rainey of Illinois, Democratic leader in the house, says the federal budget can and should be balanced without any increase in taxation and with the beer tax the only new form of levy. The income rates can stay where they are and a sales tax is not required. But there must be a thoroughgoing attack upon the expenses of government with a view to eliminating every unnecessary item.

Mr. Rainey's words are heartening, particularly as he was one of the congressional leaders whose program of higher income tax rates, later repudiated, raised a storm of protest throughout the country. Mr. Rainey has now placed himself on record as on the side of the taxpayers against the beneficiaries of federal largess.

A number of specific sources of waste were referred to by Mr. Rainey. He thought the naval observatory might be dispensed with. The bureau of standards' expenditures might be curtailed. The department of agriculture was stimulating production just at the moment when excess production is making trouble for farmers. All of these items, particularly the last, contribute to the federal deficit, but in the space of a short interview Mr. Rainey could hardly list all of the items which must be eliminated.

The position he has taken is, as has been said, a heartening one because it evidences the determination of the Democratic party to live up to its platform pledge to eliminate a billion dollars from federal expenditures. That will mean, in addition to the items which Mr. Rainey used as illustrations, the elimination of payments to veterans on account of injuries which were not received while in service; it will mean the elimination of hundreds of thousands of dollars in subsidies to the states for road building and other purposes; it will mean the abolition of many of the federal bureaus such as the children's bureau; it will mean the abolition of political army posts and naval stations and the elimination of patronage in the postoffice department. Subsidies to farmers and shipowners must go the same way.

If these and similar economies to which Mr Rainey has by inference committed himself are adopted there will be no need, as he has said, to talk of tax increases as a means of balancing the budget. With declining incomes and declining revenues from import duties, only an uncompromising use of the economy ax, as he has said, will avoid the unbalanced budget which he properly abhors.

SELF-DENIAL IN THE OFFICE OF MILWAUKEE'S MAYOR.

Mayor Hoan's veto of the budget item to provide feed for the six horses used by Milwaukee's mounted police was in sharp contrast to his sentiment in preparing the estimate for the costs of his own office for next year. Acknowledging that the city faces public pay days without money unless scrip is resorted to, the mayor cut his request for funds for the executive office for next year by $25. The board of estimates and taxpayers' committee revised this, finally effecting a reduction of $95 under the 1932 appropriation of $21,385.

It is a saving of a little more than four-tenths of 1 per cent and may be taken as the measure by which Mayor Hoan and his office assistants are suffering from the depression. It was the smallest reduction in any city department and the only office of importance in which there was not a considerable saving made.

There is approximately $9,000,000 of last year's taxes unpaid, and the best estimate is that there are 20,000 pieces of real estate in the city on which the taxes for last year were not paid. It will be a great comfort to citizens, owners of this real estate, that Mayor Hoan is sharing their hardships with them to the extent of four-tenths of 1 per cent. It creates a sympathetic fellow feeling to know that the city's chief executive, like each of them, is paying the penalty of the hard times and is denying himself.

The economy he imposed on Chief of Police Laubenheimer's force was his sole alteration of a budget of more than $31,000,000 as finally adopted. The mayor opposed the mounted policemen in the early budget hearings, where they were nevertheless approved despite his oft spoken references to them as Milwaukee's Cossacks. Chief of Police Laubenheimer defended them as one of the most efficient and economical arms of his force and made an urgent plea to keep them. The strength of the Socialist aldermen in the city council makes it unlikely they can be retained over the mayor's veto.

Milwaukee always has enjoyed an unusual degree of order. Its laws are well and promptly enforced, and crimes of violence are at a minimum there. Chief Laubenheimer, who is responsible for maintaining this order, has been free from political interference and it is the common belief that he is far better equipped than Mayor Hoan to decide which are the essential elements of his force.

No one in Milwaukee is so silly as to believe he wishes to maintain a mounted staff for the purpose of riding down or devastating any of the citizens. Chief Laubenheimer probably enjoys to a greater degree than any other official the complete confidence of the people he protects. He has the responsibility for maintaining order, and when he says the six mounted men are necessary it is an ill advised gesture for the mayor to take them away.

On the question of economy it has been said if the mayor were to do away with the services of only one of his secretaries it would provide almost enough funds to feed the entire stable of mounted police. It has even been suggested if Mayor Hoan stayed in his office instead of being out campaigning against reducing public expenses the additional secretary might not be needed.

This would result in a saving of more than four-tenths of 1 per cent and might enable Milwaukee to keep its police force intact. The impression is general that the chief knows better than the mayor what he is talking about.

MOBILIZING WORLD OPINION.

Edmond Taylor of the Tribune News Service has done something worth doing for his country in his letter from Paris in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. The American public cannot follow the European press on the handling of American news by foreign news agencies, but at a time when the American secretary of state is talking much about the "mobilization of world opinion" as a substitute for independent defense Mr. Taylor's disclosure of how opinion is being made by foreign news controlled by British and French government policies or interests is as timely as it is valuable.

The case in point is the juggling of armament statistics to make it appear that the United States is a military menace expending on arms a huge sum, larger than that of Britain or France. This trick, which American pacifists use, is to give the total of our expenditures as military expenditures without mentioning that it includes bonuses, pensions, upkeep of veterans' hospitals, etc. Neither is it mentioned that we do not conscript soldiers as the French do and pay our regulars much higher pay than the British.

Without analyzing this fallacy of comparison, which we have done before, the fact which should impress our people now is the source of this attack and its prompt use by the British and French newspapers. It is the work of the British Reuter agency, which habitually spreads items of American news which may discredit us throughout the world. The French Havas agency is equally unfriendly. The dispatch on armament expenditures as it first appeared carried a Washington date line. Later it carried a London date line. The London Express, which has been savagely attacking all things American for a long time, accompanied the article with an editorial arguing that, although we do not need a navy like Great Britain's or an army, since we are three thousand miles from Europe, a naive implication, by the way, we are spending more money for military purposes.

The object of this fraud is, of course, to give the European peoples the conviction that we are hypocrites urging them to disarm while building up our own armament. The comparison of our army and navy with those of Europe is not made. That would explode the fraud. What is intended is to strengthen the determination to default on obligations and to discredit our efforts for reduction and limitation of armament.

As an example of mobilizing world opinion we call Mr. Stimson's attention to it. More important, the American public should ponder its meaning when they are invited to make further sacrifices for world peace and recovery.

CRIMINAL ADVISERS.

As soon as the disappearance of the gangster Newberry became known his lawyer, suspecting that he had been taken up by the police, prepared to file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus. It should have been sought in a higher court. But the attempt is worth noting as a disclosure of the organization of professional criminality in this town.

In Oklahoma a lawyer arrested for complicity in a robbery says the arrest was due to information that he has been compelled through fear of his life to act as legal adviser for the biggest bandit syndicate in the state.

That is an alibi that has not yet been used in Chicago.

Meanwhile, we suggest that the bar take up more seriously than it has yet done the problem of ridding the legal profession of practitioners whose livelihood is gained, and gained almost wholly, as legal aids and advisers of habitual criminals. Students of our criminal conditions, Mr. Loesch, for example, have called attention to this evil as among the worst phases of crime. We recognize the difficulty of dealing with such men who are clever in concealment and in keeping on the safe side of the law. Nevertheless, we believe a persistent and determined effort would result in restricting the evil and eliminating the worst offenders.

HE REMEMBERS THE FABLE.

[Peoria Transcript.]

Governor Elect Horner and Mayor Cermak have gone south for their health to the great discomfort of job seekers.

The Chicago mayor and the governor elect are in a strong strategic position regarding job hunters. The Republican party made Judge Horner governor when it nominated Len Small. Whatever political debts the governor owes the Chicago mayor will probably be paid. But there is no other faction or group to which Judge Horner need bow in acknowledgment of decisive support. He is his own man in every sense of the term. He wears no man's collar.

As a matter of practical politics it is probable that Mayor Cermak will have much to say about the new administration. The governor elect was his choice in the primary and the Cermak organization in Chicago gave him the Democratic nomination. After the primary, however, the governor elect had nothing to do except smile, look wise, shake hands, and let Small beat himself. The governor elect's principal help came from "Big Bill" Thompson, who shuffled about with Small in the traditional Damon-Pythias manner. The voters, already nearly weaned to Democracy by national issues, regarded the Small-Thompson combination and held their noses. Horner was the natural heir to popular favor with this kind of setup.

Hence, by going south with Cermak, the governor elect is virtually informing job hunters that the only political debt he recognizes is to Tony. If he pays that without sacrificing the state's interests or his own good reputation, job hunters can go rabbit hunting for a change. This will make him some enemies, but it is a more intelligent attitude than trying to please all.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THESE HERE TECHNOCRATS are roaring again. But why should they be in such fear of the machine? What is our greatest pleasure in this free America? What must we have even if we can't buy a new twenty cylinder car? What is our principal avocation? After dinner speaking. America is roughly divided into two classes, those who make after dinner speeches and those who listen to 'em. And can the machine make an after dinner speech? No, a machine doesn't know any funny stories. If a machine tried to say, "That reminds me of a very ludicrous incident. Pat and Mike were walking down the street—etc." You know the story, maybe you know all three thousand of the Pat and Mike series. Anyhow, the machine would grate so much and make such a clicking sound as its gears spun around that the audience would have to stop matching pennies and slipping bottles back and forth under the table and listen to the speaker. Which is one thing that Americans will not do. They will insist on having after dinner speakers, and they give them a cheer when they stand up, but they never listen past the "Mister Toastmaster and gentlemen" part. When, as the technocrats fear, invention progresses to the point where machines will make after dinner speeches, then the machine will get a kick in the pants that will set it back twenty-five years. Calm down, technocrats; all will yet be well.

THE UNDYING HOUR.

There will be clover coming in the spring
And yellow roses piling drifts of gold;
I shall look up to see the robin's wing,
And kneel to watch the violets unfold;

And if not I, then some blithe other heart,
Seeing the visions I have called my own;
For one less lover, should the one depart,
Spring will not grieve. She does not walk alone.

But in the earth a century and more
There will be restless dust where I was laid
When April treads the paths I trod before

And in my buried breast, where nothing is,
There shall be still a faint familiar pain,
And in the clay, bereft of memories,

DOROTHY KISSLING.

OUR NEW GOVERNOR, Mr. Horner, in his inaugural address yesterday spoke kindly of the sales tax plan. It may be a very nice idea this sales tax. But isn't there some way of taking that "tax" part out of the name? The very word "tax" nowadays makes strong men turn pale while women scream and children tremble. Why could it not be called the "price addition" or the "bargain boost" or the "price plus" or something like that? Anything just to get away from that odious word "tax." We wish you would write to somebody about it. If you feel that it doesn't do any good to write to your congressmen, then please, dear friends, write to each other.

"BANDITS MAKE OFF With Load of Soap."—Headline. We wish bandits would think less of their personal appearance and more of their conduct. And we don't mind telling the bandits that we would just as soon be held up by dirty faced bandits as by those whose faces are scrupulously clean. Not even if they have the faint scent of Fleur de Roses on their hankies and their hair combed.

A TWO HEADED TURTLE, which spent most of its life trying to decide which way it would go, has just died in a research laboratory in Schenectady, N. Y. This should be an awful warning to a certain great political party which is about to come into power in a certain great commonwealth that begins with A. Thinking two ways on the taxation question is just bound to—well, there's the two headed turtle. You see what happened to him.

WARNING!

The 1932 Linebook is nearly sold out. We tried to get enough this year for everybody, but no matter how many Linebooks we have, they always sell out. Well, never say die; next year, we'll increase our supply again, but so far as the 1932 Linebook is concerned there are only a few thousand copies left, and if you want any of them speak now or forever hold your peace. Oh, you may be able to get a 1932 Linebook after we're sold out; you can get anything in this world, if you've got enough of what it takes. But you won't get it for 10c, 15c by mail, brothers and sisters, we're telling you. What you'll have to pay the bookstores is their business. All we know is that if you're lucky you may find somebody to sell you one for a quarter—but most of us aren't lucky. Anyway, don't say we didn't warn you. While ours last, you can get them at all news stands, bookstores and the Tribune Public Service offices for 10c. You can call your TRIBUNE carrier, or leave a note for the newsboy and have them delivered with your morning paper. Or you can send in 15c in stamps and have it mailed to you. You can get the 1932 Linebook all sorts of ways NOW—but next week is something else again. Moral: Don't wait; order your Linebook today.

THREE PEOPLE were killed at a cricket game in Bombay, India. Goodness, cricket is working into the class with American football. And all we thought they did in a cricket match was to stand around in an indifferent and sleepy manner until after two or three hours something or other happens that makes the spectators all slap their hands gently together and murmur, "Pretty, pretty," and then they all go to tea. How can anybody get killed in a game like that? Maybe the tea was poisoned.

THE GOVERNMENT, foiled in its attempt to get more money into the postoffice treasury by raising the price of stamps from two cents to three, is now considering going back to two. But again has the goose been slain that laid the golden eggs. People have got out of the habit of writing letters.

GETTING RID OF RATS.

There is not and, so far as can be foreseen, there never will be any reason to fear an epidemic of plague of great consequence in North America north of Mexico. Such a condition as prevailed in London during the plague year can never prevail here nor, for that matter, in London or anywhere in northwestern Europe. There were great Britons in that day, great writers, and great scientists, but there were no outstanding sanitarians, and, lacking these last, disaster came.

It is a far cry from the sanitation of northwest Europe, North America, and Australia and New Zealand today to that of London in the plague period, and it is just that which makes us safe.

There has been plague among rodents in California for thirty years and, on several occasions, rat plague has appeared in New Orleans and along the gulf, but in spite of this humans in these sections are safe. We are too cleanly. Our standards of bodily cleanliness are too high. We are too intolerant of fleas, and fleas spread plague. We will not stand for rats, and rats carry the fleas that spread plague.

As to two of these bulwarks of safety, bodily cleanliness and fleas, we are far in the clear. As to the third, we are not much over the line of danger. At times we appear to have as many of these animals as we need for all practical purposes, including spreading plague. We become interested in their eradication from time to time and, following each earnest effort, we move a little farther into the zone of safety.

The best method of eradication is rat-proof construction, especially of corn cribs, barns, grocery stores, packing plants, and all other places housing rat food.

Ranking lower in the scale as means of defense are rat trapping and rat poisoning. The use of dogs as a rat eradication measure ranks very low, and cats are too far down for any ranks. Snakes are better ratters than cats.

Dr. C. R. Eskey gives his opinion on rat poison based on a large experience in Peru. The best rat poison is arsenic. Impure, grayish arsenic is better than the purer poison in practice because it mixes better with meat. However, those who mix the impure poison with meat are very apt to develop an arsenic dermatitis on their hands. Adding ground fish, cheese, shrimp, and anise oil to the meal does not help at all. Rats prefer coarse meal, corn, and rice to any other food. Arsenic is mixed with the meat and then wrapped in paper in small packages. Thus wrapped, it is not liable to be tampered with by children, cats, dogs, or chickens, while rats seem to get added zest for poison when they must tear away the paper cover to get it.

RENAL COLIC.

W. J. L. writes: I would like to know if there is anything that will cure or relieve renal colic, and is there anything known to dissolve kidney stones.

REPLY.

Kidney stone cannot be dissolved. In some cases removal by operation is required. However, operations are not done as often as was once the practice. Most stones will pass if given time. A warm sitz bath is of service in giving relief. In some cases sedatives must be taken.

NOT A TRIFLING TROUBLE.

C. A. H. writes: For 15 years my wife har had black and blue spots appear on her skin. A year ago she had an internal hemorrhage. The doctor said she had purpura and the spots were due to that disease. Is this serious? Is she liable to have apoplexy? She is 45 years old.

REPLY.

Purpura causes the symptoms mentioned. There are several causes of purpura, rheumatism being one of them. If there is any unusual tendency to apoplexy, which I doubt, it is because of the effect of the rheumatic infection on her heart and blood vessels. Purpura is not a trifling disorder.

NAIL BITING.

H. N. writes: I have the nail biting habit. I am an adult. How can I break the habit?

REPLY.

We have a recipe for a nail varnish which we send to those who inclose a stamped and addressed envelope for it. This varnish is of some service by reminding the biter of his habit and making it a little unpleasant. Beyond that it has no virtue.

The breaking of any habit is a matter of training and calls for attention to more than the habit. As a rule, nail biters are nervous and unstable, timid, lacking in courage, and have inferiority complexes.

Training for breaking the habit must take these qualities into consideration.

PUFFS UNDER THE EYES.

D. M. writes: I have been bothered with puffs under the eyes for several years. I thought for a while it was due to kidney trouble. A local doctor gave me medicine for my kidneys, but it did not seem to help the swelling. What could I do to get rid of the puffs?

REPLY.

If you have the symptom for several years it is not likely that it is due to any serious disease, or is otherwise serious, or that you will be able to get rid of it.

It is a symptom. Sometimes the cause is Bright's disease, heart disease, local acidosis, but this is not the effect rather than a cause. "A dead drunk" is supposed to be a cause. Heavy sleeping in a poorly ventilated room is supposed to be a cause.

In my childhood I knew a U. S. senator whose eyes were always puffed, but I now know that this is not a cause.

VIOLATES ZONING LAW.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—[Friend of the People.]—There is a garage covering a space of 75 feet in the alley back of our home which is used for housing trucks and doing a general trucking business. These trucks thunder through the alley many times a day and during the night, loading and unloading material, and most of the time they have a truck or two standing in the alley. This is strictly a residential neighborhood and this place is a nuisance. Is there a city ordinance against this, and what is the proper way to proceed to get rid of this nuisance? M. S. W.

The block referred to is zoned for apartments and therefore the use of premises for such a garage is a violation of the zoning ordinances. Accordingly the owner has been notified to discontinue the use of premises for garage purposes.

MAKING A WILL.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. A will is made by one sister leaving her personal property and real estate to another sister. 2. Can the beneficiary of this will in turn legally will her part to her husband or others? Z. W.

1. If the testatrix is married her husband could renounce the will and take instead his statutory share.

2. Yes, if she survives the testatrix first named.

REAL ESTATE BOND.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am holder of a $500 real estate bond which is in default. Also have a descriptive circular that reads, "The above bond is guaranteed by two individuals, both as to interest and principal. 1. Can you tell me if I have grounds to sue the guarantors, and [2] approximately what it would cost to sue? J. H.

1. We assume that no guaranty contract is written on either side of the bond and that you do not hold such a contract separately. If so, the possibility of treating the circular as a guaranty would depend upon whether its entire wording indicates an intention to create an immediate obligation or merely that parties who ask for the guaranty are to receive it.

2. Depends on facts that are not before us.

MORTGAGE NOTES.

Marseilles, Ill., Jan. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am one of several persons holding first mortgage notes [obtained through a local bank and signed by husband and wife] on a 100 acre farm. The husband has died. Should I file a claim against the estate or is it sufficient for me to continue holding my first mortgage notes? C. M. B.

If you consider the security inadequate so that you may wish to look to other assets of the maker, then you should file a claim in the probate estate, but if you are satisfied to rely solely upon the security, then there is no need to file the claim.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 10, 1917.

CHICAGO.—Tom Costello, notorious fixer and go-between, and Police Lieut. A. M. White of the Lake street station have confessed, State's Attorney Hoyne announced. These two of the four men arrested in the raid on the "payoff office" in the Brede building, he said, had admitted the truth of his charges that police protection was sold at wholesale to west side resorts and gambling dens. Some of the charges made by Mr. Hoyne in his statement berating Chief Healey are these: "Costello visited Healey's home on an average of three times a week for a year or longer. My own investigators have shadowed Costello there in the last thirty days. One payment to Healey we know was postponed because he wanted to attend a banquet." Costello, a police "fixer" for years, is said to have agreed to tell the whole story of the years of graft. White is said to have related all of his connections with vice and gambling through Costello and his partner, "Mike de Pike" Heitler, and W. R. [Billy] Skidmore during the two weeks he has been on duty on the west side.

BERLIN.—The eastern part of the southern bank of the Sereth river together with the town of Braila fell into the hands of the central powers on Jan. 5, and combats of Jan. 7, after the conquest of Fokshani, sealed the fate of the western bridgehead of the southern Sereth position. A great Russian thrust, launched at the eleventh hour, was without effect. The Russians were sanguinarily repulsed. Northwest of Fokshani the Russians have been thrown from strongly fortified positions on the Moldavian hills, and their second line of defense on the canal between Fokshani and the mountains has been pierced. The troops of the central powers on the whole front are rapidly and victoriously moving ahead. Dealing with the recent fighting on the eastern front from the Carpathians to the region around Riga, the report says the Russians in the Carpathians have been driven from the offensive to the defensive. On the Dvina river front in the Riga region the Russians at various points have made vicious attacks, but all of them were repulsed except in the Tirul swamp, where they succeeded in advancing into a small German position.

PARIS.—In Champagne an engagement between patrols occurred west of Navarin. In Alsace in the region of the Rhone-Rhine canal French artillery fire destroyed an enemy supply depot near Illfurt.

PIRAEUS, Greece.—Ministers of the entente powers handed to the Greek government an ultimatum giving Greece 48 hours to comply with the demands contained in the note drawn up by France, Great Britain and Russia on Dec. 31. Included in the ultimatum was a request by the entente powers that the Greek government fulfill at the earliest possible moment the agreement of Dec. 14 regarding the transfer of Greek troops from Thessaly. The entente allies presented to the Greek government on Dec. 14 a demand that all Greek troops be withdrawn from Thessaly and that only a certain number of soldiers be concentrated in Peloponnesus.

LONDON.—The sinking of three entente steamers, two of them vessels of more than 2,500 tons, is announced by Lloyd's shipping agency. They are the French steamer Alphonse Conseil of 1,591 tons, the British steamer Lesbian of 2,555 tons, and the Japanese steamer Chinto Maru of 2,536 tons.

CHICAGO.—The 7th Illinois regiment, which was the nightmare of disciplinarians at Camp Wilson, San Antonio, has been threatened with imprisonment at Fort Sheridan unless the wholesale "French leave" taking stops immediately. Maj. Lorraine Richardson, U. S. A., senior mustering officer, threatened to confine the 7th regiment to barracks and place the First Wisconsin infantry, also camped at Fort Sheridan, over it as a guard unless the officers of the Illinois regiment showed themselves capable of restraining their men. This was communicated to Col. Daniel Moriarty on Jan. 8. The officers of the Seventh were given twenty-four hours in which to demonstrate their ability to control the men.

CHICAGO.—The annual election of officers of the Saddle and Cycle club was held with the following results. President, Bertram M. Winston; vice president, Arthur Meeker, and treasurer, Hugh Blythe.

UNFINISHED SCHOOLS.

Chicago, Jan. 5.—As I pass along Western avenue and Addison street and see that huge structure, the Lane Technical High school, decaying and costing the taxpayers plenty in interest, and when I see the unemployed construction men willing to work cast a longing eye toward this and other unfinished municipal projects and also material supply men willing to do business, and when I hear the sad tales of those same men quite willing, but unable, to pay their taxes, and so many of our civic and county employés who are unpaid, I often wonder could not some scheme be devised to remedy this state of affairs?

Why not start up those buildings and allow every man in the building trades to take his tax bill and work it out by performing labor of equal value to his tax bill and let every landlord give to his tenant whole or a part of his tax bill to work out in return for rent, and so on.

What advantage? Well, many a man will save his home; many a man will have shelter for himself and family that we as a community are paying for in relief; many a business man will trade commodities for a paid up tax bill, and many a material supply man will trade material for a paid up tax bill. And as a net result many dollars of taxes will be liquidated to the benefit of all of us.

THE PRICE OF COAL.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—The price of standard Pocahontas mine run in December, 1931, was $7.20 per ton, not $6.95, as stated by a contributor to this column in your issue of December 26. Therefore, the price is down 25c per ton, and on some of the higher ash and less favored Pocahontas coals the price is down 50c per ton and more.

The freight rate alone on Pocahontas coal, mines to Chicago, is $3.35 per ton, being about twice what the mine operator realizes at the mine. It is not likely that the price can decline further, either at the mines or delivered in Chicago, without a further reduction in the mine workers' wage scale, and their standard of living is already seriously impaired.

HELP FOR VETERANS.

Decatur, Ill., Dec. 26.—Ask the service officer of Medill-Tribune post of the American Legion whether the statement contained in the eighth paragraph of your misleading article on veterans costs, in today's issue, is true or false.

When the National Chamber of Commerce published that report in September last, and I marvel at your usually up to date paper using such antiquated misinformation, the writer of it convicted himself of lack of knowledge when he stated, in effect, that "in the United States . . . veterans must obtain only a perfunctory medical examination as proof that their disability is attributable to war service." Your paper belies the intelligence which I know its editorial staff possesses when it prints such an untruth. Did the writer of that report, or did the one on your staff who authorized the carrying of such a statement in your paper, ever see a schedule of disability ratings of the United States veterans administration? Did either of the gentlemen ever try to get the government to recognize a claim for actual war casualty wherein records had been destroyed?

Your headline writer who inserted "Disease Cured, but Gets Paid" also shows his lack of knowledge. He was misled by another misstatement of the National Chamber of Commerce. Any human who has the guts to overcome an active tuberculosis, cause its arrest, and then go through life avoiding the things which he must avoid to preclude recurrence is entitled to all he gets.

THE WATERWAY FOR PASSENGERS

Chicago, Dec. 29.—In your editorial on the lakes to the gulf waterway the only object discussed is freight cargoes.

What a wonderful trip could be made in passenger boats from Chicago to New Orleans! Also, if cars should be shipped to points south, no doubt a good many would take advantage of the service in the winter season. G. G. WILSON.

COMMUNISTS AND HORSES.

Milwaukee, Dec. 29.—In the story describing the Milwaukee common council budget hearing which appeared in THE TRIBUNE on Thursday, Dec. 28, I am seriously misquoted.

Describing the debate over the appropriation for Laubenheimer's mounted police THE TRIBUNE article said that "Fred Bassett-Blair, communist representative, demanded a slash in Laubenheimer's pay, but defended the appropriation for the horses. Communists like the horses, he said." Now this completely falsifies the position that I took at this hearing.

I opposed the appropriation for the horses and pointed out that Chief Laubenheimer himself had argued for keeping them because they were to be used against the unemployed. I demanded not only that the mounted police be eliminated but that the police budget be cut at least 75 per cent—by eliminating most of the police department and cutting Laubenheimer's salary and the wages of other highly paid officials. I said that not only the horses but the whole police department are maintained to be used against the workers.

FRED BASSETT-BLAIR.

A SARGENT COMMITTEE FOR WASHINGTON.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Your editorial, "A Sargent Committee for Washington," while on the right track, is inane and impractical. This suggested small committee "armed with facts," which will command attention "because of its distinguished personnel and command action because of the unassailable logic of its argument," would be marvelous if it accomplished anything besides making the newspapers.

The "distinguished personnel" of the Sargent committee is composed mainly of bankers. The bankers have money to loan on condition. The "unassailable logic" of the Sargent committee is that no money will be forthcoming unless the conditions are met. The conditions are that taxes and expenditures be reduced. The city of Chicago, as are other cities in the same plight, is meeting those conditions and everybody is reasonably happy. The logic is that of any reluctant lender to any insolvent prospective borrower. It is in truth "unassailable." Any other logic, regardless of the proponent, is a waste of words as far as government is concerned.

Until the federal government finds itself in the same condition as many local governments and finds it necessary to borrow money from our now conservative bankers even Mr. Sargent and his very effective and efficient committee would have no effect. Let us hope that such a condition need not come to pass.

LAKE MICHIGAN AND THE FAIR.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—May I take the liberty of congratulating you on the fine editorial in THE TRIBUNE today relative to the good shows for next summer. While the World's Fair will attract people it will be necessary to provide other diversified entertainment features. Visitors will want to see good shows. Travelers abroad keep the foreign theaters filled. Visitors to Chicago will expect theatrical entertainment at night.

Perhaps some time you might find it consistent to write an article on one of Chicago's greatest assets which is only to a very limited extent utilized. I refer to Lake Michigan.

Next summer, I believe, there will be countless numbers of yachts from Detroit, Cleveland, and from salt water ports making Chicago, and it behooves Chicago to make the most of the visit of these craft. Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo, and Toronto are far ahead of Chicago in utilizing their water advantages.

We have numerous harbors like Belmont, Lincoln park, Grant park, and Jackson park, where water craft now can find adequate anchorage.

The least expensive of amusement features as a rule is swimming, yachting, boating, fishing, etc., which will have an appeal to the visitors. The pure, invigorating air of Lake Michigan cannot be surpassed for creating better appetites, renewed vigor, and good health.

What Is a Wage-Earner?

This nation has become so immersed with statistics that its figures are concealing its facts. We have become like the man who couldn't see the forest for the trees.

We take some basic industry like Steel. We find production and employment are off a certain percent. We take another basic industry like Automobiles. Car sales are down; therefore, employment is down. We go on to two or three more basic industries, take our sunken statistics, add them all together, and discover that the whole nation is sunk.

Whereas, if such statistics were really in ratio to the facts, this country would probably be wiped off the face of the globe in less than a year, and the other civilizations of the world would be given the jolt of the centuries.

Meanwhile, however, in spite of statistical data, America continues to be the greatest going concern that any civilization has ever developed, still calling for a most tremendous output of actual physical work.

It will probably be hard for us to realize, therefore, that upon actual checking up of facts, in every thousand True Story Magazine homes there are one thousand one hundred and forty people still employed; and that when we figure this in terms of tens of millions of workers, statistics or no statistics, America is still some whale of a going concern.

Our trouble may be that we don't know what a wage-earner really is. We simply think of a wage-earner as one of a gang of factory workers lined up against a row of jigs or lathes. The wide sweep and intricate intermingling of America's innumerable activities is so much greater than that, that it's hard in painting the picture to know just where to begin.

A piece of string is probably as good a place as any.

As we untie the package let's hold the string in our hands a minute before it goes into the waste-basket. Here is hemp from the Philippines, or jute from India. Great cargoes that rolled into San Francisco or New York harbor. And the moment those old ships came to dock, America's work began.

Dock-laborers, foremen, billing clerks and checkers, traffic men, streams of trucks at railway sidings, platform men, car-loaders, brakemen, conductors, engineers, station masters, signal men, and down to section-hands who sometimes later become railway presidents. (They have, you know, in quite a few cases.)

Are you still holding the string? That's only the beginning. You have only arrived now at the cordage plant, for you are not buying string from the Philippines and India. All you get from there is raw jute and hemp. So now you have more station-masters, platform men, unloaders, switch-track men, trucks, billing clerks, and so on.

Now you are into the cordage plant where another set of men takes hold. That mass of stuff that came off the ship now has to be "heckled" and carded. And if you think you have been heckled during the last few years, you ought to see the way they "heckle" jute. And now with the help of combers, carders, hecklers, machine operators and engineers, it has become string at last.

But still that string is only at the factory door. More platform men, more carloaders, more brakemen, engineers, conductors, more billing and shipping clerks, more train dispatchers must again get it on and off the train and deliver it to the wholesale house in your city. And more than half the time your wholesaler has to ship it out again to get it to the little store at Sneeden's Landing or the big stores at Elmira or at South Chicago or Elgin. Whereupon there is more trucking, wrapping, platform-men, and so on, the whole routine all over again.

And that's only the story of the string that we are just about to throw in the waste-basket. The wrapping paper has just as great a story to tell before you have even gotten to what is inside. Paper—any kind of paper—is as thrilling a story as you would want to read. This newspaper that we are holding now, that starts with a Canadian forest and winds up with reporters, editors, linotype men, make-up men, stereotype men, mat men, pressmen and delivery men, and runs into hundreds of thousands of units every morning, we will placidly read as if it were something that silently dropped from the skies.

Look up the next time you start reading statistics, instead of looking down. No other nation at its best was ever as busy as this one at its worst.

Here at True Story Magazine we get a first hand picture of the tremendous amount of physical work that is still going on. For True Story is the one great source of personal response on the part of the masses of wage-earning America who are doing that work, and that is where both the earning and the buying are still going on.

No; your worry is not the wage-earning home, but the "White Collar" home. Here again, and for the first time, we now have far more than one earner to the home in the "White Collar" class. But oh, with what a different significance! The one purse that has done duty for so long in supporting a family is no longer enough.

But that must be the story for another page. Outside of the bare necessities of life, what does a consumer consume, and when? and how? and why?

IOWA COUNTY OFFICIALS AGREE TO WAGE SLASH

Heed Farmers' Protest on Tax Sales.

Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Taxpayers of Forest City today offered their contribution to the science of economy in government when they induced Wennehago county officials to take a 20 per cent salary reduction. At the same time those citizens prevented a sale of property for delinquent taxes.

Farmers were successful at county seats in other parts of the state in averting similar sales of distressed property.

At Logan 700 farmers jammed the district courtroom and succeeded, by an orderly demonstration, in preventing the holding of hearings on a farm receivership and a sheriff's sale of six properties. Members of the group were unsuccessful, however, in their effort to extract a promise from District Judge Ernest Miller to grant no more deficiency judgments. He told them that he was compelled to follow the law.

Tipton Sale Postponed.

At Tipton a crowd of twenty farmers assembled at the courthouse when Sheriff W. W. Christian was scheduled to sell the farm of J. A. Hayslett in a foreclosure proceeding. The sheriff was persuaded to postpone the sale for three days. The demonstration was staged when the farmers learned that the mortgage holder had bid $3,000 less than the face of the mortgage for the property.

At Le Mars, scene of the demonstration last week, approximately 100 farmers disregarded pleas of the leaders of the farm defense council, organized to prevent farm foreclosures, that they stay at home to guard against foreclosure sales, and announced their intention of going to Des Moines to demand relief of the legislature. On their way the farmers said they intended to stop in Sioux City, where they were informed foreclosure sales are scheduled. In other counties about Sioux City it was reported that farmers were reluctant to make the trip to Des Moines because of lack of funds.

Stop Sale in Wisconsin.

Appleton, Wis., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Three hundred farmers gathered here today and prevented a foreclosure sale of the 115 acre farm of Mrs. Lillian E. Krake of Maple Creek. Mrs. Krake, a widow, operates the farm with the assistance of her minor son. The mortgage is held by her own brother, Arthur Kunkel of Manawa. The crowd of farmers booed him and his attorney when they appeared for the sale. The sheriff postponed the sale until April 8.

Farmers Warn Officials.

Pender, Neb., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Their announced refusal to accept salary reductions proposed by the Farmers' Holiday association in a meeting here late this afternoon brought a warning to Thurston county officers that it will be useless for them to seek re-election.

The farmers asked officers getting $2,000 a year to accept $1,200 a year and other officers were requested to take proportionate reductions.

Virginia Tax Sales.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Approximately 30,000 acres of land were disposed of today in Spotsylvania county for delinquent taxes. About 40,000 acres, or approximately 25 per cent of the county farm acreage, had been advertised for sale.

Only a small proportion of the land was bought in by individuals and such parcels as were individually bought sold for about the amount of taxes due. The sale was conducted without disorder.

SENTENCED ONE TO TEN YEARS.

Sterling, Ill., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Marion D. Hittenmark, former local head of the Peerless Finance company, who disappeared several months ago when he was $4,900 short in his accounts, appeared in Circuit court today, entered a plea of guilty, and was sentenced to from one to ten years in Joliet penitentiary.

Wasteful State Expenditures for Cattle Testing Revealed

BY PAUL POTTER.

Evidence of wasteful expenditures in the Illinois department of agriculture were disclosed yesterday in a national survey of the costs of eradicating tuberculosis from dairy cattle.

The survey was made following the issuing of a report by Don Robison, superintendent of animal industry at Springfield, showing the salaries and expenses of those hired by the state to test cattle exceeded half a million dollars last year.

Pay Veterinarians $329,937.

Robison's report, a summary of which was included in the final message of Gov. Emmerson to the legislature last week, showed that the salaries and expenses of full time veterinarians for the cow testing work alone totaled $329,937.62 for the period from July 1, 1931, to June 30, 1932. Nearly $200,000 additional expense to the state was incurred in salaries to county veterinarians, to state quarantine officers and for administrative costs.

The cost of testing cattle in Illinois last year was higher per number of cows tested than for any other state in the Union, the survey indicates. The cost per cow tested in Illinois was 55 cents, while in Wisconsin it was but 9 cents, in Indiana 28 cents, Iowa 26 cents, and Michigan 18 cents, New York, the only state approaching Illinois in cost of the eradication campaign, reported charges of 50 cents per cow in new herds and 44 cents per cow for retesting the herds.

States' Costs Compared.

State.	Cost per cow tested.	No. of cows in state.
Illinois	55 cents	2,342,000
Indiana	28 cents	1,500,000
Iowa	26 cents	2,754,819
Michigan	18 cents	1,700,000
Nebraska	25 cents	3,000,104
New York	*50 cents	2,220,000
Ohio	25 cents	2,660,000
Wisconsin	9 cents	3,250,000

*44 cents on retest.

Salaries and expenses for the Illinois veterinarians, 79 of whom are reported as on field duty in the Robison report, range from $1,279 to $5,175. One of these men, who has blanket power to inject serum into pure bred cattle and condemn them upon a reading of the reaction, is said to be blind and deaf. Another is said to be a former hardware dealer who years ago studied veterinary medicine but had no special training in tuberculin testing technique.

One county veterinarian declared yesterday that only a handful of the state force had worked a full day during 1932.

Illinois has appropriated 9 million dollars for this campaign since 1919, and nearly 3 millions more has been expended by the federal government in indemnities for condemned cattle. Representatives of leading farm organizations in the state have petitioned Gov. Horner to reorganize the animal sanitation program of the state to save taxpayers nearly a half million dollars annually and to hasten the date when the state will be accredited.

Their program calls for consolidating the offices of superintendent of animal industry and state veterinarian.

FIND WITNESS IN CORRY CASE IN WISCONSIN

Schuyler Jerome Pierson, 16 years old, sought by the state as a witness in the second trial of Varner Corry, was found yesterday at Manitowoc, Wis. Corry, 17 years old, will go on trial on Jan. 16 on a charge of murdering Policeman Edward Smith on Memorial day of 1931.

The policeman was shot to death when he surprised Corry, Pierson, and a third youth in the swimming pool of the John Marshall High school. Corry was tried and sentenced to 18 years for the slaying, but the case was reversed and remanded for trial by the state Supreme court.

Prosecutor Charles J. Mueller learned that young Pierson and his father are living in Manitowoc. The boy agreed to appear at the trial.

GIFTS TO FEED NEEDY PUPILS DROP TO $40.50

Extension of School Lunch Service Needed.

Contributions to the Hungry School Children's fund continued to dwindle yesterday. Only $40.50 was received by the fund, which is used to feed needy children in the public schools.

Teachers and principals, leaders of parent-teacher groups, social service workers, and many others have pointed out that the feeding of these children is essential to their future health. The feeding of these needy children in these critical times, they say, will prevent disease later.

About 8,000 children are now being given the daily hot lunches in 100 schools because of the fund, but there is great need for the extension of the service to other schools.

$5—Mrs. E. L. Schwarz, E. L. J., Mrs. S. Silberman.

"MOIST THROAT" FOUND SECRET OF COUGH RELIEF

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny bottles continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these "bottles" get plugged up, phlegm accumulates, affording dangerous germs a breeding place. Your throat feels hot and dry. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when the flow of the natural fluid is increased, loosening the phlegm so that it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely deaden the nerves . . . but don't get at the root of the trouble.

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, which doctors have prescribed for many years, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of the throat's natural moisture and brings quick relief. It helps nature heal that cough from the inside out.

When you feel that warning dryness take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN. It's absolutely safe. Sold at all drug stores, 60¢.

Stuart Offers Another Tale of Irish Revolt

Strong Mysticism Again Marks Work.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

FRANCIS STUART disturbed a good many readers last year with a book called "Pigeon Irish," a fantastic, mystical, flashing picture of a suppositional Irish rebellion in the future, with the carrier pigeons used in the final battle assuming human characteristics of talking, living, loving. Readers were disturbed because it was so unlike anything they had read, because it had some alien quality which they could not name but which fascinated them.

FRANCIS STUART.

"The Coloured Dome" will unquestionably disturb those same readers [who felt that they must not miss anything that comes from that pen] and all of those who are wondering what the new Irish fiction is really like. Incongruously, Francis Stuart was born in Australia and educated at Rugby, but, from everything that is to be gathered from internal evidence in his work and from his acclaim by the Royal Irish academy and especially by William Butler Yeats and George Russell, he is the very distillation spiritually of modern Ireland.

The most obvious quality which "The Coloured Dome" has is a mysticism which is stronger, more vital, more passionate than the strong, vital, passionate prose which its author uses. Paragraphs like this, for instance, are prose that you do not forget: "Everything now could be reduced to tabloid form. Tabloids. That was life. Tabloids to be read or swallowed or smoked. Life constrained, reduced; dried of its coarse, sweet moisture. Like grass turned to hay and then the hay was stall fed to cattle. He, too, had fed on tabloids, with the city-scape as pasture."

The entire book is written in the same sharp prose that one finds thus on its first page. But unusual, vital, passionate as that prose is, its effect is lost in the larger effect of the book as a whole, an effect of a search for something which is found only in nullity, a philosophical mysticism which one can but believe to be essentially nationalistic.

In one place: "No, women meant little for these Irish romanticists to which Garry Delea belonged, she thought. Or in any case women were not for them the principal key to romance," which explains not only the hero of this book but in a sense the whole Irish struggle.

Garry Delea is destined to be an Irish romanticist of the first water. He is a clerk in a betting office, spending his evenings in a futile cycle of drinking and conversation, never having come alive, when he is suddenly invited to meet the mythical head of the revolution, one Tulloolagh. He is invited by Tulloolagh to sign his name to a manifesto together with two generals in the revolutionary army, and the leader whom no one really knows and who appears only so seldom as never to be recognized.

Like Adam, still a mass of clay awaiting the breath of life, Garry has been until that summons. With the conviction that his act will result in his certain death the next morning, shot at dawn as a rebel, the breath of life is breathed into his soul. He knows the first spring. He feels it creeping into the crevices of his being. He is alive and passionately eager for death.

He is exalted during the trip to the prison, during the minutes in the white cell into which he is thrown with Tulloolagh. The reader knows all the time that the great mythical overgeneral is a girl, but no one else knows the secret until Garry sees her undressing, eager, for the last night she is to live, to belong to him. In the cell summer fills the soul of Garry. As the dawn comes they hear shots and realize that, against the agreement of the government, the two generals have been shot and they, unknown Irish chosen to bring the revolution closer to all of the unknown owners of unspoken and unpraised names, are to escape.

Garry then faces a mystical impasse . . . an autumn of no harvest, fruitless, for he finds it impossible to go, as he might have gone, to this woman whom he loves with pain and to take a happiness in marriage less than the happiness of complete sacrifice to an ideal which he had in the dreams of his death for the revolution. He takes the martyr's course, drags himself back to prison in the hope of regaining his lost spring, only to find that he has completed the mystic cycle of his emotions in a cold, barren winter.

That, stated in its essentials, is what "The Coloured Dome" states in, at times, highly poetic form. Like "Pigeon Irish" most readers will find it disturbing but inexplicably fascinating.

Miss Lombard Plays Lead in 'Virtue' Movie

Produced by Columbia.
Directed by Eddie Buzzell.
Presented at the Roosevelt theater.

THE CAST.

Mae	Carole Lombard
Jimmy	Pat O'Brien
Lil	Mayo Methot
Toots	Jack La Rue
Frank	Ward Bond
Mackenzie	Willard Robertson
Gert	Shirley Grey
Magistrate	Ed Le Saint

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

It is well, some one has said, that virtue IS its own reward—because it hasn't any other.

I don't subscribe to the sentiment. Few, however, would find it in their hearts to blame the heroine of this movie if she did. She's NOT virtuous when the story opens and her state of un-virtue hasn't proved worth while either. Then she marries a man and runs straight—to find that her husbands wears the sort of specs which distort vision and make the true appear false. So what the helleborin . . . !

The husband is one of those men who "know all about women." [You've met one? Haven't we all . . . ?] His first brilliant demonstration of infallible wisdom is his swallowing hook, line and sinker the bait thrown out by the tremulous and adoring Mae [who has been ordered from town for soliciting and threatened with arrest shall she again be discovered thereabouts] and believing her to be the one "good" girl he has ever met. No sooner is he married to her than her past zips up to hand him a haymaker. He rallies from this blow to his intelligence [?] and nobly insists that the partnership continue.

Well and good. But his second big error in judgment lies in not trusting the little woman who has turned completely right about face and wouldn't have betrayed him for all the wealth of all the kingdoms in the world . . .

Mae's loyalty to friends of the past leads here into unsavory situations that she gets no chance to explain till the finale—which is as you desire it.

The story doesn't blaze with originality, but it's a human little yarn, believably presented; full of arresting incident and pat dialogue.

Carole Lombard, who is rapidly becoming one of my favorite actresses despite her increasingly drug store appearance, gives a deft and sympathetic performance as the beset but far from brainless Mae. Pat O'Brien is likably hemanic as her know-it-all spouse. Mayo Methot is appealing as the heroine's devoted and somewhat tragic girl friend. Shirley Grey plays a certain spineless, ill-fated concubine to good effect, and swart-skinned, thick-lipped, oily-haired Jack La Rue depicts a 10th avenue kept man convincingly.

If interested in technocracy, you can hear it explained in a one reel subject that follows the picture. That is, you can hear a gentleman in evening clothes attempt to explain it.

Leonora Cortez Presents 185th Club Recital

Leonora Cortez, pianist, came to Chicago yesterday afternoon to give a recital program at the Playhouse under the auspices of the Musicians' Club of Women, the event thereby registering as the organization's 185th artist recital.

There would seem to be only one thing that stands in the way of Miss Cortez being well up among the leading pianists, and that is a tendency to employ a tone of somewhat hard and unsympathetic character. Otherwise she is a highly competent artist, well developed technically and with pronounced ideas on the interpretation of her music.

One may not always agree with her ideas, but this has not the slightest effect on their definiteness or their validity. For example, in playing Schumann's Symphonic Etudes she included the four posthumous variations, which hardly another pianist has ever cared to do. It may be that the others were right, but there is a chance that she was right, too.

Galston's transcription of the Bach "Sicilienne," a group of Chopin, Richard Strauss, and Brahms, Liszt's "Sonetto 123 del Petrarca," and the Tausig transcription of Johann Strauss' "Man lebt nur einmal" waltzes made up the rest of Miss Cortez' program, and the brilliant episodes which occurred frequently in her performance created much expressed enthusiasm from her hearers. MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

THE TRAP.

Prof. Fordney, seated before the large open fireplace in the Château Rambord at Blois on the banks of the Loire, listened intently to his host, M. Flaubert.

"Mon Dieu!" exclaimed the Frenchman. "I am being robbed by some one right under my own roof. Your arrival could not have been more opportune, mon ami. Always in the dead of the night it happens; some priceless antique, an old master, a piece of plate . . . disappears! Who is the thief? Guest or servant? Some one who knows the house well because always he operates in the dark! The local police, bah!"

After the household was asleep, Fordney laid the trap. He hid in the dining salon and placed Flaubert on watch in the art gallery.

The clock chimed 3. The professor leaned forward in his chair! What was that noise? Footsteps in the hall above! He waited breathlessly five, ten, fifteen minutes, but the house was enveloped with a deathlike stillness. Walking noiselessly to the gallery he entered, flashed his light and in the corner discovered his host fast asleep! After arousing him they turned on the lights. An exclamation of dismay escaped Flaubert's lips as Fordney pointed to the empty frame that had once held a famous Rembrandt!

Hurrying to the sleeping quarters Fordney flashed his light over the corridor. He was about to pass the room occupied by M. Vittel when he stopped, trained his light on the door and quietly entered.

HOW HAD FORDNEY TRAPPED THE THIEF?

Latest in Household Gadgets Offer Style as Well as Service

A housewife would find herself in a seventh heaven were she to be allowed this week to wander at will through four floors of the Stevens hotel, where manufacturers have gone on a gadget orgy.

A gadget, in the words of the manufacturer, "is a small labor saving device," and there's nothing a housewife likes so much as a gadget. So the National House Furnishings Manufacturers' association opened up its annual show yesterday hoping that between 11,000 and 15,000 retail store buyers throughout this country will carry back home the newest household wrinkles to spring on their women customers.

Dishwashing will be made easy for the kitchenette bride when she discovers on the market a rubber tired dish drainer that doesn't nick dishes, mar the sink, and, best of all, is noiseless. It is a wire drainer that has been rubber vulcanized and comes in a nice, bright green.

Then there is an electric potato baker that performs a similar service for apples, tomatoes, biscuits, pies, and rolls, and, at last, an orange peeler that really does the task.

There will be no reason any more to spill the salt and chance a quarrel since one manufacturer has found a way to serve salt and pepper so that it never spills, never corrodes, and never clogs. A slight touch to the white plunger with the tip of a finger drops the salt. There is a black plunger for the pepper.

With the prospect of beer the manufacturers are prepared for its serving in the home. A compact, somewhat decorative, but very useful gadget is the barrel bar wagon on wheels that can be easily moved about. It is a real bar with a rail, circular shelves within, and a rack for a towel.

The kitchen stove is undergoing more changes. Among some of the models shown was the new rounded corner kind made to be easier to clean. The guard over the burners slips back as easily as a folding desk. Stripes in contrasting colors are the only decoration.

Mail boxes made like cameras, an odor absorber that keeps the melon from flavoring the butter and the onions the milk; an aluminum plate that makes one burner do the work of two, and a rubberized kitchen apron with separate cuffs matching the tablecloth, shelving, hot plate mats, holders, etc., are among the new gadgets on exhibit. The show will continue throughout the week.

Council of Jewish Women Honor Hannah Solomon

Woman's Auxiliary Marks 50 Years of Hospital Service

Second and third generation families of charter members of the woman's auxiliary of the Presbyterian hospital looked back with some pride yesterday on the fifty years of service the hospital has given Chicago. The auxiliary at their annual meeting celebrated the golden anniversary of the hospital.

Among the 150 who attended the noonday meeting was Mrs. Frederick Haskell, a daughter of the founder, the late Joseph Priestly Ross. Mrs. David W. Graham, the only living charter member and a past president of the auxiliary, gave an historical sketch of the hospital, while Dr. James B. Herrick gave an account of the medical staff since the hospital's beginning.

In her talk Mrs. Graham said, "Much apathy in relation to the hospital had to be overcome; folks then were not hospital minded and only went there in case of distress, everybody entertaining that old and gloomy saying, 'Abandon all hope ye who enter here.'"

Mrs. Frederick Childs, president of the auxiliary, is a third generation member of her family to hold that position. Alfred Carton presided as president of the hospital.

Change Shoes with Seasons, Plea to Public

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

There are winter shoes and summer shoes, and there should be just as much of a distinction made between them as felt hats and straw hats. Such was the expression of A. H. Geuting of Philadelphia, president of the National Shoe Retailers' association, yesterday, at the opening session of a three day convention at the Palmer house.

"It is ridiculous to think that men should wear their old heavy winter shoes in summer," Mr. Geuting declared. "Although changes in styles come slowly, the manufacturers have been trying to educate the public to the fact that they can be much more comfortable in the summer by wearing cool, light shoes."

Many styles of lightweight yet durable shoes made of all kinds of materials have been developed for the summer styles, Mr. Geuting said. Leather is tanned so that it is as porous as possible, perforations or air holes are used and the colors are mostly light to match summer suits.

A plea against cheapness in shoes was made both by Mr. Geuting and Fraser M. Moffat. Mr. Moffat is president of the Tanners' council of New York.

Mr. Geuting advised the retailers to give the public the best the market affords, and not "to cheat them by exterior appearances, pretending to sell shoes cheaper than the other fellow."

"A wave of cheapness which during the last two years has spread over the country like a dark cloud is beginning to recede. If you are to survive you must give due heed to quality and what you are receiving for your dollar," Mr. Moffat said.

"In 1931 the average price of all shoes at the factory, wholly or partly leather, was 21 per cent less than the corresponding figure in 1929, and in 1932 was 32 per cent less than 1929. For the benefit of American workmen and your customers, you must 'price-up' the material which it is your job to sell."

Thirty Debutantes Announced as New Service Club Members

BY JUDITH CASS.

DEBUTANTES usually begin to realize for the first time that they are no longer debutantes proper but full fledged members of adult society when they are admitted to membership in the Service club. Having joined the ranks of this fashionable club, they become acquainted with those forms of practical philanthropy and social service work which most of them continue to practice all their lives.

Unlike the Junior league, whose prospective members must serve a period of probation after they are invited to join, the debutantes need do no preliminary work to win membership in the Service club other than appearing in the Service club's annual revue. The entire list of debutantes is invited each fall for tryouts in the Service club show, and those who take part in it are later asked to join the club.

Yesterday afternoon 30 young women, each of whom did a bit of singing, dancing, or dramatic work in the Service club revue last October, were officially welcomed into the club at a tea at the residence of the president, Mrs. Stanley Zaring, at 1250 Lake Shore drive.

The tea was given for the whole membership of the club and was preceded by the annual meeting for nomination of officers. A closed ballot was taken and the election results will be announced at the club's annual luncheon on Feb. 6 at the Casino.

New Members Are Announced

Miss Alice Bremner has been appointed chairman of the Service club table at the Red Cross headquarters, where Service club girls do a regular quota of work each week. Miss Letitia Channon, Mrs. Leslie B. Olmsted, and Mrs. Gaylord Olmsted are on Miss Bremner's committee.

Move Musicals to Congress Hotel

The Kinsolving Thursday mornings, which have attracted fashionable music patrons to the Blackstone hotel every winter during the last 17 years, are to be continued throughout the rest of this season in the Gold room of the Congress hotel, where they were started in the fall of 1914.

Heinrich Schlusnus, baritone of the Berlin State opera, will give the program on Thursday of this week. Reservations for parties of guests have been made by Mrs. Wentworth G. Field, Mrs. Joseph N. Eisendrath, Mrs. Americus F. Callahan, Mrs. Ernest R. Graham, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, Mrs. Theodore W. Robinson, and Mrs. James R. Cardwell, whose niece, Cornelia Otis Skinner, may accompany her.

Les Jeunes de l'Alliance Française will hold the third program of the season on Thursday, Jan. 19, at the Chicago Historical society. Miss Phyllis Walsh, assistant curator of the society, is to give a talk in French on the early French settlers in America. Miss Walsh is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Walsh of 31 East Elm street, and studied at Ogontz and in Europe before making her debut a few years ago.

There are two rooms of special exhibits dealing with the influence of the French in this country. The French exploration room has items and documents from the French explorers—Marquette, Joliet, La Salle, and Tonti. The New Republic room houses the Lafayette collection, Napoleon items, and the Louisiana purchase.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Dunham, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Dempster are among those who will give dinners on Saturday evening, Jan. 21, preceding Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's lecture at Orchestra hall under the auspices of the Illinois League of Women Voters. Mrs. James L. Houghteling of Winnetka, a cousin of the President elect, will give a small dinner for Mrs. Roosevelt at the Casino.

Wentworths Will Return Thursday

Mrs. Moses J. Wentworth's gray stone house on Lake Shore drive is being put in readiness for the return of Mrs. Wentworth and her son and daughter-in-law, the John Wentworths, who are expected to be back on Thursday from their travels in far parts of the world. Young Mrs. Wentworth departed in September for a trip around the world with some friends, and Mr. Wentworth and his mother left later in the fall to join her in Egypt.

Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand Walker of Lake Forest, who spent the Christmas holidays at the Desert inn at Palm Springs, Cal., have taken a house at Palm Springs for the rest of the winter.

The George O. Stroms of Wheaton, who leased the Walker house in Lake Forest last fall, are traveling in the west at present. Their sons, George and Robert, attend the Lake Forest academy.

Robert McCormick Ayer, who was graduated last June from Princeton, sailed last Saturday from New York for a trip around the world. He will return early next June, about the time his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ayer and his sister, Miss Janet Ayer, usually go east to spend the

A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

SYNOPSIS.

Capt. Hiram White sails his four master ship, the Abigail White, in search of a ship filled with pearl oysters, sunk by a French captain before the world war in a lagoon in a South Sea island. Arlette Mordecai, the French captain's granddaughter, has brought him complete instructions for finding the ship. Arlette is accompanied by an English woman of title, known as Ladybird. In his crew are Adam Eden, an unemployed engineer, an unemployed French chauffeur named Raoul, Roberts Millbank, and Peter Cavan. Roberta's father died after his bank failed and Peter was his trusted employe. Benny, a cook, hires up for his keep. Ladybird, who is a naval officer's daughter, is made mate. Henery Shepard, backer of the venture, fills the boat with a cargo of his own choosing and makes profitable trades at ports en route to the island where the sunken treasure craft is located. Capt. Hiram, Adam, and Peter take turns diving for the oysters. They have them all aboard when they are beset by a ruffianly crew of a strange yacht, headed by Capt. Derring, who turns out to be Ladybird's husband and aware of the sunken treasure. He demands the oysters and the diving rig. Peter, knowing the oysters contain no pearls and that the girls must be protected, advises giving them up, which Roberts indignantly refuses as yellowness. Capt. Hiram agrees with Peter. Derring boards the four master and orders his yacht to tow it out to sea, where the shell is transferred. Then Derring starts trouble and is thrown overboard. Before he can reach his boat he is attacked and killed by a shark. The crew again study Mordecai's directions and discover a secret code and that the pearls taken from the oysters are hidden in a cookstove on the sunken boat. But now they have no diving rig. They return to the lagoon with a plan to raise the ship's bow where the cook house is located.

INSTALLMENT XLIV.

RAISING THE TREASURE SHIP.

"If the plan works," said Adam, "we ought to get the end of her bow awash. As she's about fifty-five feet in length and on bottom in thirty feet of water, and this cook house maybe twenty feet aft from forward, you can figure the angle and where it puts the depth of the stove."

Henery suggested: "It oughtn't to be hard to tear the top off'n the cook house. Then we could rig grapplin' irons and fish out the stove, like Roberta said."

"It's worth trying," said Capt. Hiram. "If our donkey can drag up a two ton anchor well hooked into sticky mud with forty fathoms of chain cable, it seems like she ought to pick up the fore end of this wooden lighter that's resting on hard sand."

"Of course," said Adam, "the dead weight out of the water would be tremendous. But we got the specific gravity of the hulk all in our favor. Look at how they raise good sized iron vessels, and this one is wooden."

The work went ahead on this plan. The Abigail's bow was brought in the right position. The big toggle was rigged and led through a great iron cargo sheave. Several days were consumed in merely rigging the gear. The attempt was aided by the clearness of the water, and Henery constructed a water glass that helped still more. By means of this long square box with heavy glass fitted to one end and the whole ballasted, a man was able to con the operations from a small boat and to see distinctly the position of the

A number of attempts were made before this huge toggle appeared to be properly seated for the best results. Then a strain was taken, and still more strain. When the draught gauge showed the bow of the Abigail to be forced under a few inches the hoist was secured, thus to remain overnight, so that the steady strain might gradually break down such resistance as was offered by the lighter's settling on the bottom.

The next morning it was shown by the drift lead over the bow that the Abigail's position had changed a little, with the dead weight hanging straight down. This meant that the forward end of the lighter had been broken clear of bottom. The stern of the schooner was warped around to the proper position.

Then slowly, inch by inch, Adam began to heave in cable on the donkey. It was a dangerous job. There was no telling when the steel hawser might snap, in which case anybody standing by might have been torn to pieces by the free end. But the donkey did not seem to be laboring unduly. The captain himself took the point of greatest danger, which was handling the turns round the drum.

To the intense relief of everybody the cable came in without a hitch. This was not surprising when one considers the tremendous strain such an engine must take when breaking out a three ton anchor deeply hooked in good holding ground after the huge heavy laden vessel has been riding to it in heavy wind and a strong head tide way. The chances are that the weight of the wooden vessel it was slowly raising amounted actually to less than they had expected. They had no means of computing it exactly, because they did not know after the years of submergence what the specific gravity of her wooden bulk might have become.

Then up she came. Little by little. With pauses to rest the fabric. Her shape and structure became more and more distinct through the clear water. The deck beam that was supporting the greater part of the strain held stanchily. The bow of the lighter was within a few feet of the surface.

The bright morning light showed the roof of the forward deckhouse structure plainly visible in about six feet of water. They stared down at it hungrily. Just under this thin carapace was the iron cook stove that contained a treasure that had been indicated but not assayed.

There was a round hole left in the cabin roof where the stovepipe had rusted away. Henery rigged a fisherman's purchase with an iron jig, such as is used for hoisting boats aboard. This hook was dropped through the hole, when on setting up it caught and ripped away a plank. On repeating this process they quickly tore the whole roof off the deckhouse and could see plainly the square rusted mass of the cook stove. It was a temptation to grapple this in the best fashion possible and tear it from its chocks. But Benny stridently protested against this measure.

"I ain't no engineer, folks, nor salvage boss, nor any of them things and my experience in treasure huntin' stops at dredgin' in my pants for a stray dollar or two to buy me a slug of longshoreman's rum. But I know stoves."

"Which says, old timer?" Henery asked.

"Cast iron goes quick in salt water. What if the durn thing was to jolt apart and spill out that there pickle jar of pearls. She'd roll down the deck and smash maybe agin some ironwork and be lost to us forever and ever. Back into Davy Jones' locker."

A shudder went through all of them at this fearful possibility. Ladybird's tropic tan bleached several shades. Arlette wailed, "Don't, don't, Bennee." A cool rime of sweat broke out on the face of the salvage engineer, who was Adam.

All of them suffered from various reactions from this terrible suggestion. But Roberta's appeared to be the most insupportable. She hurried aft and went into the cabin.

"Looks as if the strain was too much for Miss Bobbs," Peter said.

"We'd better hold everything and study this out," said Capt. Hiram.

Adam complained. "My heart won't stand holding everything very long. What if something was to give way and the whole works go back to the bottom?"

"Worse," said Adam. "I tell you I'm a dying man. I don't know that I've got the nerve to start heaving up again. Every inch now and the strain gets worse."

Many Parents Miss Fun with Their Children

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"I didn't know my geography lesson very well last night," said a business acquaintance of mine after my purchases were finished and money had changed hands. "It took me a long time to get it right. But I'm doing pretty well in arithmetic."

"What are you talking about?" I asked.

"Why, my homework, of course." At which I said, "That!" and laughed. "But you must get home very late at night. I should think you'd be too tired to help the children then."

"That's my fun," he said. "I know some fathers who are bored by it. But not I. When I get home we do things together. And we talk about all sorts of things. There's not anything my children won't tell me. When they're in trouble they head straight for their father. And I like it—and we do have fun with the homework. There were four bridges I was supposed to know last night and I could only name three," he said and chuckled.

"Wait until you get into factoring trinomials," I said, "then you'll think geography's easy."

"Trinomials! I never heard of them," he said.

"You will," I said ominously and went on my way.

It's quite true, as a matter of fact, that many fathers haven't a notion of how interesting the companionship of a child can be. They think children too immature to meet them on any ground. They don't give children credit for the imagination and perceptions and intelligence that they possess. They don't experience the freshness of the young viewpoint and the penetration of their thoughts. All because they don't take the time to know their children.

They think other things more interesting and are absorbed in adult affairs only. Fathers who do this make a great mistake. They don't know what they are missing.

Chap Claims Girls Never Do Fall for Him

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"You wrote an article about the Forgotten Girl. How about the Forgotten Man—and I don't mean the one the depression is responsible for? I mean the one the girls won't give a look to.

I'm one! Thirty-one years of age. Don't dance. Perhaps that's one reason why I'm forgotten. Have been tied to unusual responsibility for fifteen years. Perhaps have lost the graces that please. No bad habits to brag about—that's me, again. Not bad looking. Not a bad dresser. But tongue tied until the girl gets away. Then, I think of a thousand bright things I might have poured in her ear.

"My phone never gets a tingle from a girl. Saturday night, Sunday night is all the same to me as blue Monday night! And I have a few shekels in my jeans I could spend on a sweet faced sister.—VICKS."

Bet you never up and confessed the above to any girl, Vicks. If you had, I am sure one of her would have grabbed you off. Mustn't go on silent strikes, Vicks. Must get out and around and sell yourself! The retiring male violet is worse off than the female of the species. At least, the latter has tradition on her side. Tradition argues that the man should be up and doing. However, if you're not aggressive by nature you can worm your way into a girl's affections by confiding that you're not that kind of boy but you have your own points.

That tongue of yours has to be unloosed, somehow. You must learn to talk. Oil it with rehearsal flatteries and make them spoken ones. Tell the next girl you meet she's swell. No lady ever took offense at that remark, slang though it may be in some ears. Tell her you'd like to know her better. Ask her where she's been hiding all these years; how come you never met her before. Tell her you didn't know they made girls like her any more. Anyway, tell her something that'll tickle her ear.

It doesn't have to be unique or original. Just easy on her ear! If it doesn't work with one girl, try it on the next. Then, when you get one smilingly responsive, tell her nothing would please you more than to take her to a show or a movie. You don't have to marry the girl just because you pay her some attention — but you've got to go into rehearsal with girls—and practice on one and another until you've gained more poise.

Sam Goldwyn Seeks 75 New Film Beauties

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 9.—The mantle that Ziegfeld wore as "glorifier of the American girl" apparently is the ambition of Sam Goldwyn, and this purveyor of the eye filling movie effects is now launching a quest for 75 new beauties to put on the screen.

Goldwyn says that the girls he recruited for his last musical films, "Palmy Days" and "Kid from Spain," became at once so popular that he wasn't able to use them anymore.

"A dozen of them were put under contract by Warner Brothers, another 15 went to New York to be featured in a night club revue, and another eight or ten of them have been picked up by various studios here to be developed as feature actresses. So I must get new girls," Goldwyn says.

Goldwyn has three scouts going around the country now. He says: "Our aim will be to recruit 75 handsome and bright American girls. We will take one, at least, from each of the 48 states. We will take several from some of the big cities. We want decided types, either blonde or brunette. At present I have a preference for an ensemble that will show brunette types.

"This does not mean we don't want some red headed beauties also. The girls must all be from 16 to 21 years of age. Those that we bring to Hollywood we will agree to return to their homes after our film is completed. We will make that agreement with their parents.

"In order to get 75 girls, we probably will have to look at photographs of seven or eight thousand, as we did to secure the choruses and show girl ensembles for the Eddie Cantor film, 'Kid from Spain.' For that picture we took screen tests of more than 700 girls. We will invite girls to send in their photographs, but can't return any photographs, because the volume of inquiries we expect will strain our office force too much."

Goldwyn showed little reluctance in admitting that he regarded himself as a very successful picker of American types of feminine beauty, and he has plenty of figures to back up his attitude—not only feminine figures on movie celluloid, but box office figures from "Whoopee," "Palmy Days" and "Kid from Spain."

Grace Poggi danced a rhumba that occupied only one minute of screen time in "Kid from Spain," yet on the strength of her showing she leaves shortly to accept a featured dancing engagement at Ciro's in Paris and will return here in May under Goldwyn's long term contract to be featured opposite Eddie Cantor in his next starring movie.

French Women Show an Inclination to Wear Capes Both Day and Evening

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The mid-season fashion shows in Paris show a marked preference for the cape as a wrap to wear with both day and evening dresses. This kind of wrap is forecast strongly for spring, and the ensemble composed of a wool frock and a matching fur trimmed cape is something that you will see later on.

The Lucien Lelong evening cape, shown at the top of our sketch, is one of the smartest evening wraps to be found around Paris this winter. It is made of brown velvet and is interlined with wool and lined with satin. This cape has a dropped shoulder yoke, banded with corrugated tucks, which increases its quaint aspect. It is just hip length and has a collar of white ermine that ends in a tab on the left side.

There are slits for the passage of the arms; and covering these slits are half melon cuffs made of white ermine, so that one has the comfort of sleeves without actually having them.

At the bottom of the sketch is shown the newest daytime cape, in the manner of Worth. It is elbow length and is made of apple green wool, with a deep hem of natural lynx fur, a fur that is going to be smart in early spring. The double breasted buttoned closing of the cape and its scarf collar that ties in a perky bow are chic details.

That tired, frowsy feeling in the morning, that "dark-brown" taste in the mouth—if you would banish them and win back buoyant health, don't expect relief from salts, mineral oil, or candy and chewing-gum laxatives.

For such remedies only move the bowels. While chances are you're one of the thousands suffering from sluggish liver which does not yield sufficient bile—causing pimples, blemishes, headaches, bad breath and a general run-down feeling.

What you need is something which acts thoroughly but harmlessly upon the liver. And in Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets you will find that "something" which stimulates the bile flow.

To get and keep the bile flowing freely—correcting constipation, skin troubles, and win back that "fine-and-dandy" feeling of youth—go to your druggist for Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets today. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Miss Skinner Shows Eugenie as Great Lady

Presents Richly Costumed Story of Life.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Cornelia Otis Skinner, gifted and lovely entertainer in the field of character sketches and one woman drama, came to the Harris theater last night for a week's engagement. She brings, as novelty, a new dramatic sequence with the Empress Eugénie as her heroine, illustrating in six episodes the romantic and touching career of the bride, wife and widow of Napoleon III.

Comparison with Miss Skinner's tour de force of last year, "Wives of Henry VIII.," is inevitable. The subject is not as dramatic as its predecessor; it works out as a richly costumed narrative rather than a series of vivid little plays. Nevertheless, Miss Skinner has succeeded in reanimating the character of Eugénie de Montijo, from youthful gayety to mournful old age, and in presenting her to American audiences, to whom she is little more than a name for an outmoded hat, as a great lady who embodied the spirit of the Third Empire in France.

In the writing, as well as in the acting, this sequence is a worthy successor to Miss Skinner's happy adventure among the unhappy wives of the uxorious Henry of England. It proves that she has found a field of operations for her highly specialized form of entertainment in which she rises above comparisons with Ruth Draper. She is a full length portrait painter where the latter is a miniaturist.

The costuming, especially of the second and third episodes, is sumptuous and beautiful. In these scenes Eugénie is dressed for imperial ceremony and Miss Skinner wears the gorgeous gowns with impressive pictorial effect. The sequence is, among other things, a little style show exhibiting the variations in fine feminine feathers through seventy years. From the Eugénie hat that goes with the green velvet riding habit of 1853 the ill-fated heroine progresses to the Victorian black silks of 1880 and ends, very, very old but still gowned up to the minute in a post-war dress of 1919.

The sequence also calls for a display of polyglot skill, for in addition to English, spoken with a trace of accent, Eugénie frequently drops into French, occasionally uses her native Spanish, and is also cosmopolitan enough to use a line or two of German and Italian. Miss Skinner appears to be at home in all the major European tongues. In this detail, as in the other branches of acting that her performance requires, she is a highly proficient technician. In brief, here is a brilliant and beautiful young woman, adept in every phase of her specialty, which requires literary as well as histrionic talent.

The "Eugénie" program is prefaced by four of Miss Skinner's typical character sketches—"A Southern Girl in the Sistine Chapel," "Old Embers," "Home Work," and "Motoring in the '90s." On Wednesday afternoon and Friday night she will give "Wives of Henry VIII." instead of "Empress Eugénie," with another group of character sketches.

Arm Exercise Works 2 Ways for Your Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Here's another good arm exercise, good bust reducer or developer, and, incidentally, the waist is going to come in for an inch or two off with practice of this movement. The truth is you can't isolate the good work on an arm only. You do arm exercises and the upper part of the body and the entire trunk profits.

As hinted yesterday, the stuffy arm, the stuffy underarm feeling, the heavy bust, and the thick shoulder do mean things to the figure. If a woman has a short neck she must keep from getting that crowded look the thick arm, shoulder, and bust give. She can't change the length of her neck, except as it is lent length by the finer molded shoulder, bust, and arm line.

In case you missed yesterday's arm exercise, you can begin with it today. It's a punching bag movement. Not a particularly ladylike employment, but it does pack a mean wallop to the unwanted flesh on shoulders, arms, or bust. Stand erect. On count one, drive the right fist forward at an imaginary [or real, if you have it] punch bag. On count two, bring the right arm back and drive the left fist forward. Repeat a dozen times.

You housewives can stop in your day's work a minute or two for this. Only I'd suggest you be through with it before hubby puts in an appearance. The poor man might think you were practicing a Dempsey right for him.

Now for today's arm, shoulder, and bust finer-contour-builder. You can't beat these arm circlers for what alls that upper part of the body. Stand with feet together. Bend the body slightly forward at the hips. Extend the arms to the side horizontally. Count one, rotating the hands forward to make small circles with your shoulders as center. Repeat ten times forward; ten times backward.

If you can do this movement easier with the body held erect, that will be all right, too, with me. Most people find it easier to do it this way at the start. This exercise is fine for reducing and developing the bust.

Rotation Brings Slender Arms

Stand with the feet together and bend the body forward slightly from the hips. Extend the arms horizontally and rotate the hands forward to make small circles with the shoulders as the centers. Make ten circles forward and ten backward.

St. Vincent's Lecture.

St. Vincent's School of Welfare will meet tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at St. Vincent's orphanage for a lecture on "Pre-School Training," by Miss Martha Tuesberg.

WOMAN'S DRESS.

This is a smart design for matronly figures, and its slimming points are obvious in the cross closing of the bodice and in the soft becoming neck arrangement. The paneled skirt front and the curved hip seaming cuts undue breadth. Black crinkly crêpe satin made the original and the reverse side of the crêpe was used for the collar and belt.

The pattern, No. 3313, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inch bust measure. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material with ⅞ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Here Is New, Tested Recipe for Angel Food

Miss Meade will be glad to answer questions pertaining to cookery and the kitchen. For personal reply, send stamped, addressed envelope.

BY MARY MEADE.

The tips I gave you yesterday did not come from one experimental kitchen or from one cook. They were sifted out of many tests and experiments made by experts. And along with these hints of yesterday, which I hope you saved for your recipe file, goes the following recipe which hundreds of trials have shown to be the inspiration for the best volumed, most feathery, fine textured, and the most delicately flavored angel food cake ever to gladden the eye of an epicure. You may discover that the method is quite different from your own. Try it out, following every tip to the letter, and then be your own judge as to which is better, the new recipe or the old.

ANGEL FOOD CAKE PAR EXCELLENCE.

Sift the sugar once. Add ½ cup of it to the flour and sift this mixture three times. Beat the egg whites [which should be at room temperature] until just foamy. The thinner the blade of the egg beater, the better the cake. Add the salt and cream of tartar and continue beating until the whites are stiff [will just move in an inverted bowl and have lost part of their shininess]. Do not beat until dry or the cake volume will be less. Now add the remaining ¾ cup of sugar gradually, beating all the while with the egg beater. When it has all been added, add the vanilla and continue beating for 2 minutes with the egg beater. This is important, as it thoroughly dissolves the sugar and does away with the dark "sugar spots" which sometimes pester the otherwise successful cake artist.

Now, using a large spoon or a whip beater, carefully fold in the flour and sugar mixture, a little at a time, and continue folding for 2 minutes. Pour the batter into an ungreased aluminum angel food tube pan, making it of even thickness in the pan all the way around. At this point give the pan several quick taps on the table to burst large air bubbles, and place immediately in a moderately slow oven [325 degrees F.] and bake for 45 to 55 minutes.

When done, remove the pan from the oven and invert carefully, support it away from the table, until the cake is cold. Inverting in this way keeps the little air pockets stretched out until they have become cool and stiff enough to hold themselves up. If this were not done, the weight of the cake above the lower air cells would push them in, making the cake heavy and inclined to slump disconsolately at the center.

Now, since we're on the subject of cakes, I want to offer a correction and an apology. A few weeks ago I told you all about a perfectly glorious cake frosting called "Fluffy Chocolate Frosting" and I proceeded to give you the recipe for it—without any chocolate in it! So here and now I am repeating that recipe with chocolate:

FLUFFY CHOCOLATE FROSTING.

1 teaspoon vanilla.

Mix the sugar, corn sirup and water and cook to 242 degrees F., or until the mixture spins a thread. Pour slowly over the stiffly beaten egg whites, beating in briskly. Add the vanilla and the chocolate [which has been melted over hot water] slowly and continue beating until the mixture is heavy creamy and will spread without running away.

Blouse Gives Contrast to Style Parade

BY RHEA SEEGER.

If you refuse to be interested in new printed frocks for midseason wear it probably means that you are shopping with a furrowed brow for something new that will keep your slim silhouette well defined, a stunt that very few prints can achieve.

Clever and knowing dress designers have done grand things with color contrasts this season . . . they have made lots of stunning black dresses that are contrasted with unusual color tops; that is, a well fitted skirt section intricately cut and sewed onto a contrasting top or blouse section. Dark brown combinations, deep midnight blue get-togethers, and even green and gray have been used lavishly with startling lighter colors with positively breath-taking results.

Bright early shoppers will find all kinds of knockout black and white clothes that are perennial successes . . . look for the new sheer black wools that are deftly wisped with sheer necklines of white organdy, or ask to see the others that are fussed up over very fine French white pique, the narrow waled stuff that seems to be smaller and smaller each new season.

And all the black dresses that are topped with an ingeniously intricate scarf and half sleeve arrangement of pebbled or blistered white silk crêpe are smart slim things to really get excited about.

If black and white suddenly lacks the zip it used to have for you, try the dusty shades of yellow, pink, blue, and lemon green . . . some of the most flattering dresses that are to be found use these dusty shades most effectively. And if these do not please, try some of the high or wild shades; for instance, tangerine, red, a burnt orange, a Maxfield Parrish blue, or a billiard green . . . these rather spectacular combinations are very satisfying contrasts under dark wool fur trimmed winter coats.

Compromising souls will indulge in a bit of printed silk if they see the newest black and blue dresses and some exceptionally smart brown crepes that have printed contrasts—the bandage-like throatline, the sleeves, and deep V portions of the blouse top are of stripes, zigzag formations, some of the new tweed prints, and the dots and dashes that are always good when combined with dark plain colors.

You can have a buying binge of a lifetime when you select black or navy blue daytime dresses that can be worn with separate white "uppers" as well as all the high shades.

Clever red jackets, or screaming green boleros, or flawlessly tailored short, snappy coats of quite large checks and dotted materials are being hung in the best wardrobes ready for daily use with new and not so new black and dark colored dresses.

Later on in the season you are going to see fashion-wise short coat collectors wear crisp coats of linen over dark silk crepes, bright yellow linen jackets over navy blue dresses, oyster white mess-jacket affairs with black, and the smartest combination will be pale gray linen over deep brown, navy or black.

WINTER PLOTS A WICKED CRIME...

GET THE "hidden quart" in time *

THE QUART THAT STAYS UP IN YOUR MOTOR AND NEVER DRAINS AWAY

* The Germ Process (exclusive Conoco patent) imparts to this motor oil that peculiar ability to penetrate and combine with metal surfaces. Of the first filling about one quart will "hide" itself up in your motor's precious working parts. This hidden quart n-e-v-e-r drains away. It becomes a part of the motor itself; worth its weight in gold.

CONOCO

The One Oil that Gives You Perfect Protection for Winter's Worst Days Ahead

Drip! trickle! drip! through long night hours, ordinary oil drains away. When the pump quits, ordinary oil quits, leaving the motor's parts high and dry. You touch the starter. The motor roars. The pump strains at the sluggish oil. It is only a few minutes till circulation is completed. But, in the meantime, working surfaces only partly lubricated are in contact, while the motor makes three to five thousand revolutions. This causes 50% of all motor wear. In winter it is extreme.

Prevent this loss. Choose not merely a quick oil, but an oil that never leaves. Choose the oil with the *hidden quart that penetrates and combines with the metal surfaces of the motor itself. In the emergency of an empty crankcase, users have driven many miles, without damage, on this *hidden quart alone. This proves that your motor need never suffer while waiting upon the pump. Don't remain in doubt. Drain and refill with the *hidden quart oil today.

N. U. HALTS PURDUE RALLY; WINS, 35 TO 28

WOOD WINS 3D STRAIGHT COAST GOLF TOURNEY

Cards 281; Hunter, Diegel Tie for 2d.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP)—Craig Wood, tall New Jersey professional, today scored his third straight California triumph of the season in winning the annual Los Angeles open golf tournament with a 72 hole score of 281.

Wood also won the San Francisco match play open and the Pasadena open. The hard hitting pro from Deal was three strokes under par for the four rounds of competition and never once went over perfect figures for the exacting Wilshire Country club course. His play of 69—71—70—71 represented two rounds level with par and two better than the card.

Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, Mex., and Willie Hunter, Los Angeles pro, tied for second place with 72 hole scores of 285. Hunter, who was British amateur champion more than a decade ago, holed a 12 foot putt for a par four to tie Diegel's mark.

Sampson Bags a 68.

Harold Sampson, slim pro from Burlingame, Cal., came in just as darkness settled over the course with a sub-par 68, the best round of the day, to take fourth place with a total of 287. Sampson knocked in a putt from ten feet for a birdie three to escape a tie with Charles Guest at 288.

Gene Sarazen, United States and Great Britain open champion, who retired from the tournament today suffering with influenza, was admitted to the Santa Monica hospital with a fever of 103 and a pulse of 112.

His physician, Dr. Robert O'Neal, said he believed the star would respond to treatment readily, but that there was no possibility that he would be able to play in the Agua Caliente tournament starting Wednesday.

A Nice Day's Work.

Wood collected $1,525.50 as first money, the receipts having exceeded the guaranteed $5,000 by $636.98. Diegel and Hunter received $932.25. Sampson's cut was $565. Guest took $395.50.

Wood and Diegel attracted a great gallery, thousands following the two leaders and the faltering Horton Smith in the fourth and final round. The stage was set for some golf drama as Craig and Leo started out three strokes apart and Diegel whittled two away on the first three holes, reducing Wood's lead to one.

The seventh was a heart breaker for Diegel and the result of the championship might have hinged on a sensational shot from Wood's No. 6 iron. Diegel drove first and was eight feet from the pin. Wood followed with a pitch that came to rest within less than three feet of the cup. Wood holed his and Diegel just missed. The other two holes were pars for both and Diegel started the second nine two strokes back.

Diegel dropped a 10 foot putt for a birdie three at the 11th and again was one in arrears. On the 13th, some 120 yards long, Diegel's drive went into a trap and he had to take four. Wood holed his 20 footer for a birdie two and the end was in sight.

The golfing caravan was on the move tonight, headed toward Agua Caliente, Mexico, where a $7,500 open begins Wednesday and continues through Saturday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Wildcats of Northwestern last night made a right sizable meal out of the Boilermakers from Purdue, defending Big Ten basketball champions. They slashed through a lethargic Purdue defense to lead all the way after the middle of the first half, and finished with a 35 to 28 victory.

Twice in the second period the Wildcats piled up 12 point advantages, and it was well that they did, for in a final desperate drive the Boilermakers spurted to trail 31 to 28. There the rally died, however, and the Wildcats added a pair of goals from the field to quiet their apprehensive followers.

Wildcats' Best Performance.

Perhaps the booming cheering of the 6,000 who packed Patten gymnasium and overflowed into the lobby spurred the Wildcats. Perhaps they were thinking that defeat meant virtual elimination from the Big Ten race, since they had been nosed out at Illinois last Saturday night. No matter their thoughts, Northwestern played its best basketball game of the season. Its defense seldom wavered, and in other departments of the game Northwestern gave the Boilermakers lessons in aggressiveness.

Neither team was particularly effective from the field. For more than five minutes neither scored, although innumerable short shots were attempted. But Northwestern excelled in defense, and therein lies the most important reason for victory. Northwestern committed only six personal fouls. From these Purdue had eight penalty shots, making four of them. On the other side of the scorebook, Purdue's ten fouls, nearly all for holding, gave away the game. Thirteen foul shots were turned into 11 points, which provided the margin of victory.

Johnson Gets Tipoff.

Elmer Johnson tossed in three field goals and four free throws, finishing only one point behind Capt. Joe Reiff and in a tie with Don Brewer for individual honors. But Johnson's most important contribution was in securing the tipoff at center a majority of the time. Dutch Fehring, who outjumped Johnson in the series last year, wasn't equal to that task last night.

Northwestern's men also had Norm Cottom, who Saturday night piled up 18 points at Minnesota, lashed to the floor. Cottom scored one point last night. Harry Kellar, who a year ago caused Northwestern all manner of trouble, was successful only twice in his innumerable one-hand running shots. Lester Stewart, Purdue's big forward, and Ed Shaver, a sophomore back guard, carried the bulk of the Purdue attack. Stewart got five field goals, which, with one free throw, matched Reiff's total, and Shaver dropped in four long distance shots.

Reiff Off Foul Line.

Another item in Northwestern's victory was Coach Dutch Lonborg's surprising switch of Reiff from the free throw line to a roving offensive player. Johnson took the pivot assignment practically all evening, while Reiff tried his hand at passing the ball or shooting from a distance. Purdue was prepared to duplicate Illinois' defense with two men on Reiff. Instead, Joe scored all four of his field goals from out in front and his effectiveness opened the way for Johnson.

Northwestern opened the scoring on Reiff's free throw and then led 4 to 0 before Fehring counted a point on Johnson's holding foul. After 11 minutes Purdue tied the score at 7 all and then went to the front, 9 to 7, on Stewart's under the basket goal. Northwestern tied when Reiff dropped in two penalty shots, but Purdue again went in front on Shaver's dribble into the back board. Northwestern ended the half with a rally, which included two goals by Reiff, and left the floor with a 15 to 11 advantage.

Stewart's three field goals kept pace with Northwestern, which led 21 to 17, but midway in the final half Brewer, Kawal and Johnson, who registered five points in succession, shot Northwestern into a commanding lead of 29 to 17. Each team scored from the field, after which in less than four minutes Purdue closed the gap to trail only 31 to 28.

More than two minutes remained, but Culver's shot from the side relieved the pressure and just before the gun shot Brewer completed the scoring.

Watch Paul, Miller Drill for Title Bout.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The world's featherweight boxing championship, which has been bounced around like a rubber ball in recent years, began to assume new importance in Chicago yesterday.

Tommy Paul, the champion, and his challenger, Freddie Miller of Cincinnati, both went to work in a most industrious manner in local gymnasiums. They come together in a 10 round scrap at the Chicago Stadium on Friday night with the crown at stake.

Fans Work Up Steam.

Scores of ring fans watched them engage in their drills. The fans showed much enthusiasm and the old timers among them seemed to be trying to get up as much steam as they used to when Terry McGovern, George Dixon, Young Corbett, Abe Attell, Johnny Kilbane and Johnny Dundee were performing for an important bout among the 126 pounders.

The featherweights who have helped make pugilistic history probably never trained with more earnestness than Paul and Miller did in Chicago yesterday.

The champion went three rounds with his younger brother, Tony, who is a left hander. He hurled many punches at the champion from every angle a southpaw might toss 'em, and when the rehearsal ended few of the southpaw blows had landed anywhere near the champion's chin or midsection.

It convinced those in the crowd gathered around the ringside that Paul will be able to defend himself against Miller's left handed attack. In three earlier battles, waged before Paul became the champion, Miller was victorious on two occasions and Paul got one decision in his home town of Buffalo.

Miller, aside from a lot of other gym work, boxed five rounds. He took on Bill Reardon for two rounds and fairly socked the daylights out of him. When Reardon had enough Benny Barrish stepped into the ring and went three rounds with the challenger.

Paul will go into the battle as the favorite, the early wagering yesterday indicated. His followers were offering 3 to 2 that he beats the Cincinnati youngster. That wasn't surprising. Every champion usually rules as the choice at about those odds five or six days before his engagement.

Braddock Replaces Ebbetts.

James J. Braddock, Jersey City, heavyweight, will substitute for Harry Ebbets of Freeport, L. I., against Martin Levandowski of Grand Rapids in a 10 round bout. Ebbets was taken off the card because of illness. Braddock, who received national recognition when he knocked out Tuffy Griffith, will arrive from the east today.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

"OUTSIDE" COMPETITION.

INELIGIBILITY of two Iowa basketball players—ineligibility which imposes a severe handicap upon the Hawkeyes just at the start of a season when it appeared their team might go somewhere—is the result of a Big Ten rule which prohibits competition with "outside" teams by an athlete after he has matriculated at a Big Ten university.

Whether the rule is a good one, whether it imposes more injustices than the evils it was passed to correct, it is not the purpose of this discussion to determine. We have received several inquiries why such a rule exists. Let us explain the circumstances.

About eleven years ago was the famous Carlinville-Taylorville football game, sponsored by American Legion posts. In reality it was an "outside" contest between recruited University of Illinois and University of Notre Dame players. Many of the boys entered innocently enough, or rather thoughtlessly enough, and received nothing for their services. Others were promised compensation, rather minor compensation as such compensation goes.

In the resultant investigation it was found difficult to prove which boys were paid and which were not. That same difficulty was found to exist where college boys played for any outside organization. Subterfuges of "expense accounts" and various other items added to the difficulty.

Therefore, in the supposed interests of simon pure college amateurism a rule was passed, still existent, that if after matriculation in a conference university a boy played with an outside organization where admission fees were charged he automatically became ineligible for further conference competition. Such a rule could be enforced while the question of compensation could not be proved.

That the rule has been invoked against Iowa only is not true. Two Minnesota athletes now are ineligible because of this rule, but no publicity developed because they have not attempted to play on varsity squads. Numerous other athletes refrained from such action after making inquiry as to the consequences. Whether the rule is a good one is beside the question. It exists.

However, Iowa was so severely penalized for alleged football infractions several years ago that the public generally feels the Hawkeyes have been "picked on." The present case only intensifies that feeling, especially in Iowa circles.

Break, one of the players affected, was an Iowa student at the time he competed for a Cedar Rapids quintet. He was ineligible for conference competition for breaking the same rule while a freshman at Illinois. An appeal was about to be taken in an effort to secure his reinstatement. Under such circumstances it would have seemed good judgment to practice no further transgression if he really desired reinstatement.

Blackmer, however, had withdrawn from college, at least temporarily, at the time of the offense. That made a difference in the spirit, if not the letter, of the rule infraction. It seems an injustice he should be penalized for something while he was not in college, and perhaps did not intend to return.

The Wake is not a stickler for technicalities. In view of what has happened to Iowa in the past and its present efforts to "come back," we'd like to see the conference committee take a broad view and restore these boys to eligibility—provided they were not actually paid by the Cedar Rapids five. Our viewpoint is based on the broad ground of the general good of conference sports and proof to Iowa partisans of a sympathetic feeling—rule or no rule to the contrary.

BLACKHAWKS AND N. Y. AMERICANS BATTLE TONIGHT

Chicago Sextet to Retain New Forward Lines.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Blackhawks being in far off New York for tonight's meeting with the Americans, whom they have fought to two draws in two meetings so far this season, the time seems propitious to review the first half of the Hawks' home season, which was rounded out at the Stadium Sunday night.

Before we plunge into a lot of statistics, however, let's dwell a bit on the game tonight, the principal item being that Coach Emil Iverson went east delighted with his scrambling of his lines, which brought such happy results in the second period of Sunday night's 4 to 3 victory over the Maroons.

The lines will, as a consequence, remain scrambled in the contest tonight, which means that the forwards will work in the following trios: Gottselig, Romnes and Jenkins; March, Cook and McFadyen, and Couture, Mackenzie and Thompson. Abel, the league's new iron man, Capt. Graham, and Coulter will rotate the defense chores.

In their dozen games at home Maj. Frederic McLaughlin's protégés have won 6, tied 4 and lost 2, for a total of 16 points in the league standings, as contrasted with a road record of 2 won, 5 lost and 2 tied for a total of 6 points.

At home the Chicagoans have scored 27 points, while allowing 19 points to be scored against them. On the road, in nine games, the Hawks have had 18 points scored against them while they scored 15. It is apparent, therefore, that the Hawks have scored an average of 2.25 goals per game at home as compared with 1.56 per goals on the road, which isn't such a great difference when considered in connection with six wins at home, as compared with two abroad.

The end of the first half of the home season left the Hawks in last place in the American division of the league, but the fact also continued that if the team were grouped in the Canadian division it would be in second place.

Though last in their section the Hawks are within two games of the section leaders, the New York Rangers and the Detroit Red Wings. Incidentally, the Red Wings, through a spurt of remarkable hockey which saw them win three games in four nights, scoring the striking total of 15 goals in the three contests, have demonstrated the climbing possibilities a few consecutive wins afford. The Red Wings have gone from last place in the American division to a tie for first.

Play Rangers Here Sunday.

While the Hawks have finished up the first half of their home games for the season, they will not complete the first half of the league calendar until they play the Rangers here next Sunday night. In the meantime they must play the Americans and Canadiens on enemy rinks.

To those seeking a basis of comparison between this season's Hawks and the team of last year, it is pointed out that in last season's total of 48 games the Hawks won 18 games, lost 19, and tied 11 to finish second in the American division, and fifth in the league. The showing to date reveals the Hawks going at a more rapid pace, despite the scarcity of wins abroad. To tie last year's won and lost mark they will, in 27 games, win 10 while losing 12. This tabulation, of course, would give them a total of five more ties to equal last year's total of 11.

Since some of you bugs have difficulty in keeping apace with your scores, we like to set them down every so often. Here they are to date:

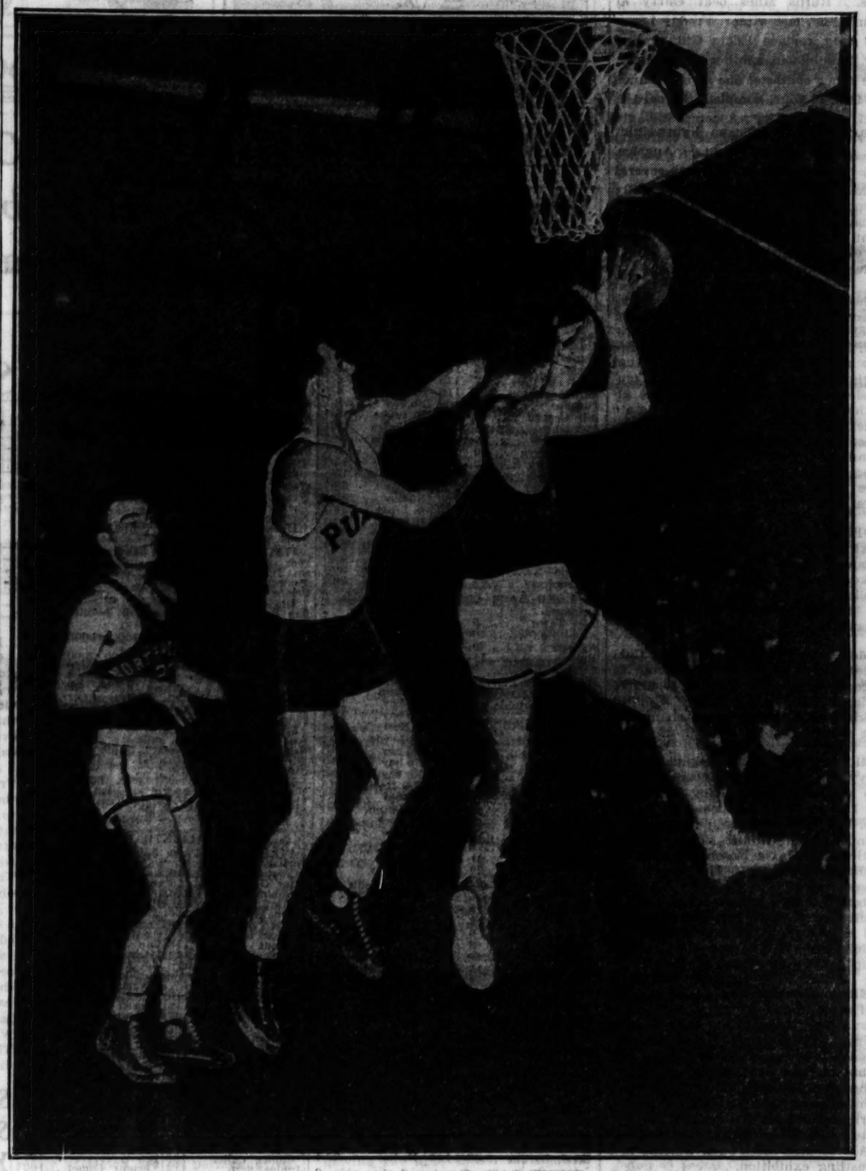
TWO POINTS? NOT THIS TIME!



Marvin Moonshower, Northwestern guard, drives in for a short shot at the basket in battle with Purdue at Patten gym last night, but Harry Kellar, veteran Boilermaker forward, spoils the attempt. Don Brewer (left), Northwestern forward, is wondering what he can do about it. When it was all over, it was found the Wildcats didn't need the points anyway, for they won, 35 to 28. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Bar Crowley's Job to Coaches with Contracts

East Lansing, Mich., Jan. 9.—(AP)—The Michigan State College Athletic council tonight laid down two rules of procedure as it began the task of picking a successor to James H. Crowley as head football coach.

The council decided to refrain from bidding for the services of any coach now under contract. It also decided to abolish the policy of placing the State coach under contract.

It was announced that 40 voluntary applications had been received by the council for the coaching assignment. In addition, the members are considering 12 other coaches who have not submitted applications.

Sentiment was pressing on for the candidacy of Miles W. Casteel, Crowley's back field assistant the last four years.

The prevailing theory on the campus was that the selection of the new coach will rest between Casteel or some exponent of the Notre Dame system, which has proved popular under Crowley. Charley Bachman, who resigned recently as head coach at Florida, is among the Notre Dame alumni who have applied for the job.

ORR PLAYGROUND NAMES 38 GIRLS IN SILVER SKATES

Thirty-eight girls from the Orr board of education playground will compete in the sixteenth annual Silver Skates Derbies at Garfield park Jan. 21 and 22. Their entry was made yesterday by Laura V. Mayers. Four of the girls are 16 years of age or over and will race in the senior division. The others are eligible for the junior class.

All qualifying races for girls will be held on Sunday, Jan. 22, and will be followed by the finals in all seven Derbies. Preliminaries in three Derbies are scheduled on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 21. These are the boys' midget, boys' juvenile, and boys' junior. The number of entries makes this arrangement necessary; otherwise, there would be more than six hours of racing on Sunday.

Deadline Is Jan. 16.

Seven days remain in which entries may be filed. None will be accepted after midnight next Monday, Jan. 16. This early closing date is imperative so that the clerks may classify the lists for the printers. The names of all contestants will be published on the days of the races along with their contesting numbers. The names also will appear in the souvenir program which will be distributed without charge at Garfield park.

All skaters who report for their preliminary races will receive souvenir buttons. The contestants will be grouped in heats and the number in each will be kept down so that all will have an equal opportunity. Only the winner will qualify for the semi-finals. The number then qualifying for the finals will depend entirely on the number of semi-final heats.

Association Card Necessary.

The time for the preliminary races will be announced later and all contestants must report prior to that time for registration and to secure their numbers. The Derbies are sanctioned by the Illinois Western Skating association. All boys and girls 16 years of age and over must be registered with the association. This membership permits competition for one year in all meets sanctioned by the association, which, of course, includes THE TRIBUNE Derbies. Registration may be made on the day of the meet.

Schuman Will Face Phagan at Cicero Jan. 20

Harry Schuman, west side welterweight, last night accepted a six round bout against Johnny Phagan, 1932 international Golden Gloves champion, at the Cicero stadium on Jan. 20. Schuman beat Clifford Greenwood at the Coliseum two months ago in his latest match. He is said to have lost only one bout in 31 professional contests. Rufus Miles beat Harry at Miami, Fla., last winter. Freddy Langford may replace Eddie Gill against Ray Tramblie in another six rounder. Five other contests, one at six rounds and four at four, complete the card.

Barney Ross, Chicago lightweight, will return today from Los Angeles, Cal., where he rested for several weeks. C., junior welterweight, is to meet Ross.

The Illinois athletic commission yesterday postponed its weekly meeting to tomorrow because John V. Clinnin, chairman, and Commissioner George Getz were at Springfield for the inauguration of Gov. Henry Horner. Commissioner Fred Gardner called the attention of several wrestlers to state athletic commission rules and regulations. Billy Jones, Philadelphia light heavyweight, and Lou Scozza of Buffalo will replace the King Levinsky-Joe Doktor bout at Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 30. Jones has been resting with friends on the south side since his battle with Maxie Rosenbloom at the Stadium last Dec. 29. The victory has placed Rosenbloom on a par with Joe Knight of Birmingham, Ala. As a result the N. B. A. is conducting a poll to determine if Rosenbloom and Knight should box for the vacated light heavyweight championship.

New Orleans, La., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Onrush, the Paramount stable's steady 3 year old gelding, showed a splendid effort to gain a two length victory over his seven rivals in the three-quarter mile dash of the fifth event, feature at Jefferson Park today.

Jockey McCoy, who scored on Aerial Trumpet, rode his second winner of the day when he piloted the gelding to an easy victory over Modesto. The latter was in front entering the stretch, but weakened slightly and finished second. Cresta Run was third. The winner paid $5.80 and stepped the distance in 1:13 2-5.

Another close finish in the mile and a sixteenth of the fourth event resulted in a victory for Wrackell, the favorite. Wrackell followed the pace set by The Break, and, once inside the final furlong, began to reduce the pacemakers' lead to get up in the last stride. Four lengths behind the winning pair, Newgro saved the show. The winner paid $5.40 and covered the distance in 1:46 4-5.

SECOND MORGAN SON TO BE NAMED YACHT CLUB HEAD

New York, Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Henry Sturgis Morgan, younger son of J. P. Morgan, tomorrow night is to be elected commodore of the Seawanahaka Corinthian Yacht club of Oyster Bay. His older brother, Junius Spencer Morgan, was made commodore of the New York Yacht club on Dec. 15.

For the first time there will be two commodores in the Morgan family at one time. The father and grandfather of the young Morgans both held that office in the New York Yacht club and the Seawanahaka, although wholly independent, is looked upon as the meeting place of future flag officers in the New York Yacht club.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

JONATHAN A. BUTLER, a former assistant to John L. Griffith, commissioner of the Western conference, was engaged on Sept. 1, 1931, to make an investigation of athletic conditions in the Pacific coast conference. He completed his work last week by giving all the schools a clean bill of health. He reported there was no evidence of recruiting and subsidizing as far as the universities themselves were concerned.

It was a tactful statement, but Mr. Butler apparently did not take enough time to conduct a thorough survey or else his remarks were dictated by the schools he was paid to serve.

In a recent visit to the coast we obtained a different slant on the situation. We inquired of one of the prominent coaches when he anticipated a cleanup of the alleged proselyting that you hear on all sides when coast football is discussed. This was his answer:

"I don't look for any upheaval. We are all in the same boat. Everybody has plenty on every one else."

The day Butler publicly whitewashed the Pacific schools we heard the most amazing story of recruiting that ever has come to our attention. It was told by the boy in the case, whom we shall call Joe Bloke.

Joe is a young man of 17 or 18, who never has had a chance to make a name in high school football. Not that he didn't have the stuff, but because his earning power was needed too badly at home. He has had only one year of high school work.

But that didn't stop Bloke from competing in the game he likes best. He joined a semi-pro eleven and made something of a reputation in the neighborhood in which the team played most of its games. He was tipped off to college coaches as a likely prospect.

Not long ago Joe said he received a letter from the coach of a Western conference university, informing him that he could earn his way through school if he cared to enter.

"How could you meet the entrance requirements?" we asked.

"I have fixed that up with a friend of mine," he explained. [We shall call the friend Jim Doaks.]

"Jim has completed four years high school work, but does not intend to go to college. He said I could use his name in college so I could show the necessary credits for matriculation."

"Are you going?" we inquired.

"Not to a conference school," he replied. "You see, I feel that I really can play football and it's a cinch that my picture would appear in the Chicago newspapers. Somebody would be sure to recognize that I wasn't Jim Doaks."

By this time Bloke probably is on his way to the Pacific coast, for he also had a letter from a coach out there promising him he could earn his wherewithal.

"What will you do when a professor asks you to write a thesis on a subject of which you probably never heard?" we asked.

"I'll have to take a chance on that," he said. "It's the only opportunity I have to obtain an education. I am reading up on Plato, Socrates and Pegler."

team opened its home Western conference schedule by defeating Chicago, 34 to 21. The first half was a fumbling and fouling contest, with Chicago taking the edge on errors and Indiana leading on fouls. The Hoosiers held a 11-7 advantage at the intermission.

Two field goals by Evans and one by Porter put the Maroons in the lead 13 to 11, but a bombardment by Heavenridge, Keurt and Dick soon clinched the game for Indiana. The Hoosiers were weakened by the loss of two regulars, Woody Weir, forward, who was out with an injury, and Bob Porter, guard, who was laid up with the flu. Lineup:

Big Ten Upholds Ban on Two Iowa Basketball Stars

Iowa City, Ia., Jan. 9.—[Special.]—Edward Break and Ivan Blackmer, University of Iowa basketball players, were ruled "technically ineligible" by the Western conference eligibility committee today. The decision was received by Dr. E. H. Lauer, Hawkeye athletic director, late this afternoon, in a telegram from Prof. Thomas E. French, of Ohio State, chairman of the committee.

"The players are absolutely ineligible," Prof. French said tonight, when asked to explain the phrase "technically ineligible."

He said he had used the term merely because it was "euphonious." Cause for ineligibility in the Western conference does not infer that an athlete has broken the rules of the A. A. U., French explained.

Break and Blackmer were disbarred by the eligibility committee of the Iowa athletic board on Dec. 30 for playing on an independent team. Information filed with Maj. John L. Griffith, Western conference commissioner, precipitated

WINTER TIME IS PERCH TIME FOR FOX LAKE FOLK

BY BOB BECKER.

As long as the ice is safe, every day is a fishing day for the residents of the town of Fox Lake, Ill., the community which is just a few steps from the lake of that name. Although only about 50 miles from Chicago's loop, Fox lake looks as if it were 400 miles north in the fishing country, judging by the way the residents sally forth in the afternoon for an enjoyable, community perch fishing party.

The other afternoon when we came back from Lake Marie, where the winter anglers were skidding around on the ice and being buffeted by a whistling wind as they pulled in the pickerel, we spotted the Fox lake ice party a long distance away. It was easy to see the black figures against the expanse of frozen lake, all apparently assembled closely together not more than 75 yards from shore.

Cut Holes in Ice.

Walter Hamberger, the game warden in the northern Illinois lake country, led us up the hill behind the town of Fox Lake, through a small patch of woods and then out to the lake shore. Walking between the line of cottages on the beach we counted 24 men intent upon hooking perch and crappies. The ice had so many small fishing holes in it over an area about 100 feet square that you had to watch your step to keep from plunging a leg into the icy water.

It was around 3 o'clock and the daily fishing session was going strong. A school of perch was under the ice. One of the boys fishing explained that he had made a dandy catch of these fish the evening before. The report of it was passed down the line so the gang came out to enjoy the sport. Tomorrow the school might be down the lake some distance. But somebody would discover it again.

Everybody Pulls in Fish.

This group close to the shore was not the only one enjoying ice fishing. Farther down the lake in the bay we could see three fishermen about 600 yards from us, another party of three a short distance beyond, and then all the way around Mineola bay were small parties of fishermen tending lines and bobbing corks which led down to live minnows some four or five feet below. Everybody had fish of some description.

The Fox lake matinée fishing party angled for perch and crappies. The latter were not on any fish string. A small depression had been chopped in the ice, allowed to fill with water, and there the crappies were being kept alive.

Radio Provides Music.

The fishermen who were watching their lines through the ice farther down the bay were all excited about a 4 pound pickerel or northern pike. Besides this good sized "pick," they had several large mouth black bass of fair size. Of all the fishing spots on Fox lake this southern end of Mineola bay was the prize winner in our judgment.

Here one could fish to music because a loud, clear radio on the shore wafted snappy orchestras and other entertainment features out on the ice while all of us scampered around in a strong wind peeking into the fishing holes to see if any pickerel had struck.

GREEK FINANCE CHIEF QUITS OVER DEBT PAYMENT

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 9.—(AP)—M Angelopoulos, minister of finance in the Tsaldaris cabinet, resigned today because he opposed insertion in the budget of the equivalent of $2,631,000 for payment to foreign creditors instead of the abolition of certain taxes.

Angelopoulos submitted his resignation once before on Dec. 15, when the cabinet decided to pay 30 per cent of the debt due to foreign bondholders under the Varvaressos agreement. Today's report indicated he had withdrawn his previous resignation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 9.—High grade bonds were pushed up to new highs today. Sentiment seemed to be that world conditions are on the mend, and, with easy money, buyers acted with fresh confidence.

Some of the highest grade bonds mounted to prices yielding less than 4 per cent. Speculative bonds, including rails, were aided by the general showing expected this spring.

Reactionary movements developed today in United States government bonds, chiefly reflecting the unfavorable turn of events in Washington, including the possibility that measures needed to balance the budget will not be taken at the current session.

Car Loadings and Rails.

Specific influences aiding railroad bonds were the relatively favorable showing of car loadings for the last reported week, and the hope that a more lenient credit policy will be adopted by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Most speculative rail bonds were up from fractions to more than a point, with B. & O. stamped 4½s, due 1933, leading the movement.

Miscellaneous speculative industrial bonds showed marked improvement today. Most important of such was a rally of about 7 points in United Drug of Delaware 5s, based upon rumors that the company has arranged the sale of an English controlled company.

South American Loans.

In the foreign list speculation spread to South American loans in the low priced class. German bonds managed to hold their own, though there was no fresh stimulus to buying. Miscellaneous Canadian bonds, including issues of the government and of the Canadian railways, were better.

Mississippi Valley Public Service.

Please give me your opinion of Mississippi Valley Public Service 5s as an investment.—B. C.

Mississippi Valley Public Service company supplies electricity to 16 communities with an estimated population of 75,000 in Wisconsin and Minnesota.

On Feb. 1, 1923, $2,445,000 first and refunding 5s will mature. The issue of $2,000,000 first 5s, due 1954, is now being offered to refund them. First Wisconsin company has agreed to purchase $445,000 of 6 per cent preferred stock at par. This action will enable the company to reduce its funded debt about 18 per cent.

Gross revenues for the twelve months to Oct. 31, 1931, was $921,000 and net before depreciation and interest was $353,000. Interest on funded debt to be outstanding totals $100,000 a year. Depreciation charged against earnings in the 1931 calendar year totaled $85,000. The management estimated that depreciation in the 1932 calendar year will be betwen $85,000 and $100,000.

Gross for the twelve months to Oct. 31, 1931, was $921,000 and net before interest and depreciation was $367,000

The first 5s, due 1954, will be secured by a first mortgage on all utility properties, rights, and franchises of the company. They are reasonably sound.

Power Petroleum Trust Estate.

I have a mortgage bond issued by Power Petroleum Trust Estate of Texas. I wrote to the state secretary at Houston regarding this but received no information. Would appreciate any information you could give me.—Mrs. W. H.

The following is quoted from a report we received on the company. "According to our records this company was reorganized in 1921 and bondholders were to receive 66 2-3 per cent in new stock. Power Petroleum Trust estate was sold to Railroad Employes' Oil company of Dallas at that time. Banks in Dallas advise us that they have . . . never been able to develop definite information as to the present status. They do not find where they are in business at present and are unable to throw any light on the reorganization. Brokers in Dallas advise that the certificates as far as they know have no value."

General Motors.

I put in an order to my broker on Nov. 25 to buy some General Motors stock. It was credited to my account. When shall I receive the first dividends on the stock?—J. J.

A dividend of 25 cents per common share of General Motors common was paid on Dec. 12, 1932, to stock of record of Nov. 11, 1932. You purchased the stock too late to be entitled to that dividend. You should receive the next quarterly dividend paid if you own the stock on the day of record.

I. C. C. CONTROL OF NORTH SHORE FINANCE DENIED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—The regulatory wings of the interstate commerce commission were clipped today in two decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States. The commission, it was held, does not possess authority to regulate the issuance of securities by the Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee Railroad company, nor to require the Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation company to build a new line in Oregon.

JUSTICE OWEN ROBERTS. [Harris & Ewing.]

The government contended in the case of the North Shore, whose main line extends from Chicago to Milwaukee, that it was a railroad subject to the jurisdiction of the federal commission governing the issuance of railroad securities. The North Shore asserted it was an electric interurban railway, expressly exempted from the part of the act relating to securities. With that contention the highest tribunal agreed.

Justice Explains Ruling.

"The railroad," said Justice Roberts, "was constructed to afford a fast electric passenger service between Chicago and Milwaukee and suburban passenger service into and out of Chicago. The freight business is subsidiary to this primary function, and is not fairly comparable to that ordinarily transacted by a standard steam railroad. Passenger traffic, whether measured by car service or by gross earnings, heavily preponderates over interline freight business. The main terminals serve only the passenger and merchandise freight traffic.

"We thus have a typical example of an interurban electric line for passenger service, which has developed, in addition, such freight traffic as could advantageously be undertaken without interfering with the performance of the main purpose of the carrier."

I. C. C. Asked Injunction.

The government sued the North Shore to obtain an injunction enjoining the electric line from issuing any more securities without obtaining permission to do so from the commission.

Justice Roberts said that the federal court for the northern district of Illinois, whose decision was affirmed, found that the North Shore had issued more than $60,000,000 of securities since 1920, when the federal commission obtained authority to regulate rail security issues; that these securities were issued by authority of the Illinois and Wisconsin commissions, and that the federal commission was advised as to these issues in reports of the carrier. Yet, said Justice Roberts, the federal commission never, until it requested the attorney general to bring the present suit, intimated that the procedure followed by the North Shore was illegal or that the state regulatory bodies were without jurisdiction.

Overrule Building Order.

In the decision holding that the commission does not have authority to require a railroad, against its will, to build a new line to serve new territory, the Supreme court, also speaking through Justice Roberts, upheld the contention of the Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation company that the order of the commission requiring it to build a new line from Crane to Crescent Lake, Ore., 185 miles long, at an estimated cost of from $9,900,000 to $11,700,000, was invalid.

Railroads Turn from Helping Weaker Lines

BY SCRUTATOR.

Leaders in the railroad field appear to have abandoned the idea that the stronger roads should support the weak lines. They have returned to the idea that each road should stand on its own feet, not expecting financial aid from other railroads. However, nothing is said about obtaining financial aid from the government.

This attitude is shown in the pending request of representatives of the railroads before the interstate commerce commission to continue the emergency freight rate increase granted a year ago. The railroads had asked for a 15 per cent increase in rates but eventually obtained a compromise whereby the commission permitted a system of "surcharges" on certain commodities in consideration of the added revenues being pooled to extend loans to the weaker roads.

Revenue Less than Expected.

However, the somewhat socialistic experiment of the commerce commission hasn't worked out to the satisfaction of the railroads. First, the freight surcharges have failed to produce the expected additional revenue. In fact, funds turned over to the Railroad Credit corporation, which was set up to receive and lend money derived from the surcharges, totaled only about $31,000,000 in the first six months of 1932, or about half of what had been anticipated.

Second, the railroads have discovered that the increased freight rates have resulted to some extent in further diverting business to other forms of transportation. Therefore, the stronger railroads, which have not borrowed from the Railroad Credit corporation, have found that their earnings have declined while they have turned over the freight surcharges for the use of roads whose ability to repay is problematical. Even the strongest roads now need about all the revenue they can get to meet their own charges.

Ends Credit Corporation.

The outcome of this situation is that the railroads have asked the commerce commission to extend the surcharge plan beyond March 31, when it expires, but to allow the individual roads to retain the revenue derived from it. This means a virtual end of active operations of the Railroad Credit corporation and of mutual loans among railroads.

But the railroads might plead that the business of making loans to the weaker roads now has been taken over by the federal government through the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which was founded subsequently to the Railroad Credit corporation. They would have a precedent for such a plea in the fact that the National Credit corporation, which was formed by the banks in 1931 to extend loans to weak banks throughout the country, ceased operations when the government stepped into the breach.

YOU CAN BLAME POSTOFFICE DIRT ON RECEIVERSHIP

The misadventures of the old federal postoffice building in trying to get a clean exterior have been further complicated by the passing into receivership last week of the Union Indemnity company of New Orleans.

When the Superior Sandblasting and Waterproofing company of Rochester, N. Y., last July was awarded the contract of cleaning the federal building for the first time in 37 years the Union Indemnity company handled the bond. In September the Rochester concern encountered financial difficulties and work was stopped.

The treasury readvertised for bids to complete the work. All costs above the price stipulated in the contract with the Superior Sand Blasting people were to be borne by the surety company, Union Indemnity. Now the treasury will have to collect from the receivers of Union Indemnity.

Taxis Escort Train In.

Among the ranks of those who have discovered that to get the business these days you have to go out and work for it are the taxi drivers who "make" the railway stations.

At the Chicago and North Western station, for example, instead of drifting by for a casual pickup the taxi drivers, in a squadron, idle along Lake street until they see a train round the bend and then they pace it slowly to the station.

Experience, says Irving Steinman, one of these drivers, has taught the go-getters how to get exactly opposite the exit when the customers come out.

Frisco Once Worth 209 Millions.

The interstate commerce commission yesterday continued its historical studies in transportation by reporting on its evaluation of the St. Louis-San Francisco railway system. The value of this system as of June 30, 1918, was set by the commission at $209,446,179. The "Frisco," which in 1918 was operating profitably, is now in receiver ship, has borrowed from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, defaulted on interest payments on that loan, and then got a court order to pay the past due interest in order to obtain a new loan for $3,000,000.

Bank Demand Deposits Up Over Billion

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—Demand deposits in the leading banks of the country have increased by almost $1,100,000,000 since July to reach a total of $11,931,000,000 last week, federal reserve board records made public today show.

The increase of almost 10 per cent in the demand deposits, made up largely of checking accounts, has accompanied a slower increase in time deposits, according to the figures. Time deposits in the leading banks have increased about 170 million dollars since July.

In the Chicago federal reserve area the increase in demand deposits since July has amounted to 122 million dollars, reports from the leading banks show. The large banks in the area held $1,312,000,000 of demand deposits on Jan. 4, compared with $1,190,000,000 on July 6. The weekly reporting member banks of the reserve system in the Chicago area have shown a decline rather than an increase in time deposits since July.

The increase in demand deposits, which has assumed such imposing proportions, has been going on in the cities of the country especially, for some time. The same tendency has not spread to the rural sections.

RAIL QUIZ BOARD WILL NOT FILL COOLIDGE PLACE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 9.—The national transportation committee, of which the late Calvin Coolidge was chairman, met today in the Empire State building under the leadership of former Vice Chairman Bernard M. Baruch to pass on various phases of its inquiry into railroad problems that have been completed.

Alfred E. Smith, a member of the committee, said that since the committee is acting at the request of the various groups responsible for its organization, it would take no action itself to fill the vacancy left by Mr. Coolidge's death.

INTEREST RATE ON U. S. NOTES RISES SHARPLY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 9.—The first indication that the federal reserve banks may have begun to pare down their holdings of government securities came tonight when the discount rate on treasury bills bounced sharply upward.

The reserve banks, which, by spectacular open market operations last year, sought for five months to break the course of deflation, have now embarked on a policy of selling as many of their governments as they can without driving the excess reserves of member banks below 475 million or 500 million dollars, it is said here.

By failing to replace their holdings of government short term paper as they mature the reserve banks, without actually selling, can shift the government securities from their portfolios to those of member banks. The member banks will draw money from their reserve accounts to make the purchases, and in effect the open market policy of last year will be reversed.

Keep Depletion in Check.

The reserve banks will not, however, allow this depletion of the member banks' reserves to proceed far, members of the federal reserve board say. Striving to keep the excess reserves close to 500 million dollars, the reserve banks will cease their paring down or may even buy again if the reserves begin to dwindle because of renewed gold withdrawals, hoarding or any other cause.

Indications that the reserve banks have withdrawn from the bidding on treasury issues were contained in both the discount rate and the subscriptions on the 75 million of 91 day bills which the treasury sold today. The discount rate on the bills, which are sold on a competitive basis to the lowest bidders, jumped to .20 per cent on the issue sold today. The previous issue bore a rate of only .09 per cent, the record low rate. The subscriptions, which usually run from three and a half to four times the amount of the offering, were barely three times the offering on the issue sold today.

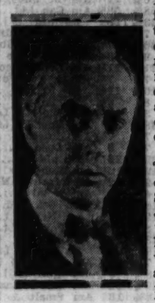
Loanable Funds Adequate.

The extremely low interest rate on government securities is believed to have been one of the factors inducing the reserve bank governors, led by Governor Harrison of the New York, to decide that the member banks' reserves should be held about at their present level. The government interest rates were held to show that there was an adequate store of loanable funds in the country, but that the banks would not put them into commercial channels because of uncertainty.

As it works itself out, the reserve system's new policy will mean that the reserve banks sell off enough of their governments to offset the forces, such as the return of gold from abroad, which have been building up the member bank reserves, thus stabilizing the excess reserves at about their present levels. The excessive reserves were about 500 million dollars on Jan. 4, the date of the last report, and the reserve banks then held $1,851,000,000 of government securities.

Board of Trade and Curb Elect New Officers

Two of the candidates put up by petition for directors of the Chicago Board of Trade in opposition to the regular slate chosen by the nominating committee were successful yesterday at the grain exchange's annual election.



LOWELL S. HOIT.

The successful "opposition" candidates are Harry S. Klein and James A. Prindiville. The regular candidates who were elected are Sibel C. Harris, Richard F. Uhlmann, and Charles B. Scott. All will serve for three years. The regular candidates who failed of election are Parker M. Paine and Frank A. Miller.

The regular candidates for first and second vice president were elected without opposition. Lowell S. Holt was named first vice president. He is head of Lowell S. Holt & Co. and has been a member of the board since 1897. He has served on several committees and on the board of directors. Robert P. Boyland was named second vice president. He has been a member since 1915 and last year was chairman of the real estate and stock list committee as well as a member of the executive committee.

Allan S. Noyes was elected president of the Chicago Curb exchange at the annual meeting yesterday. He succeeds Clarence S. Troup who is retiring after serving two and one half years in the office. Mr. Noyes is a partner of David A. Noyes & Co. He has been a governor of the exchange and is a former chairman of the listing committee.

Other officers were reelected. They are T. E. Murchison, vice president; C. V. Esroger, treasurer, and Moritz J. Loeb, secretary.

The curb exchange also elected two new governors. They are Addison W. Warner, head of the firm bearing his name, and George E. Barnes, partner of Wayne, Hummer & Co.

MEAT INDUSTRY BEING SPLIT UP, FIGURES SHOW

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Decentralization of the meat packing industry, which has been under way for several years, received great impetus in 1932. This is definitely shown in department of agriculture figures made available yesterday.

Along with this decentralization there is developing a change in the marketing of live stock, and this, in turn, has an effect upon the price paid the producer.

Hundreds of small packing plants have been springing up around the country, each drawing meat animals from near by farms and selling meat to customers within a radius of a few score miles.

Scatter Branch Plants.

To meet this competition the big packing companies in the principal centers have been scattering branch plants throughout the nation instead of building up their establishments in Chicago and other meat packing cities.

Figures released yesterday indicate that the consumption of meat last year was about the same as in 1931. The federal inspected slaughter for the entire country was 70,769,361 cattle, hogs, and sheep. This compares with 70,950,698 in 1931 and 69,132,637 in 1930.

And yet the seven principal markets in 1932 handled only 39,104,513 head of livestock, the smallest total since 1914 and a big drop from the 46,764,698 head the preceding year.

Principal Markets Lose.

The inspected slaughter for 1932 throughout the nation shows an increase of 12 per cent over the average for the preceding five years. The total receipts at the seven principal markets, however, was 17 per cent smaller last year than in the preceding five years.

Live stock men predict a further decentralization during 1933. The development has been principally westward. Small yards are springing up at advantageous points everywhere in the best producing areas. Their operations are being watched with anxiety by the big terminal markets which for more than fifty years have been the backbone of live stock marketing.

The so-called "interior" packer has expanded out of his own immediate vicinity and is now even shipping his products to be sold in the larger cities. Furthermore, he is cutting into the big city plants' source of supplies.

Situation in Iowa.

According to D. A. Fitzgerald of Iowa State college, in 1920 only 17 per cent of the 8,665,624 hogs sold by Iowa farmers went to interior packing plants. In 1931 these plants got 23 per cent of the 13,075,808 hogs sold. Figures for 1932 are not available.

In 1920 less than 2 per cent of Iowa cattle were sold directly to interior packers. In 1931 15 per cent went to them.

Stockyards experts say that transportation and terminal costs loom large among the causes of the decentralization of the packing industry. Motor trucks and improved highways are another factor.

It is estimated that 24 million head of cattle, calves, hogs and sheep were

STOCK MARKET CLOSE IRREGULAR AFTER EARLY RISE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 9.—After making a creditable start toward higher ground in early dealings the stock market ran out of energy and closed irregularly lower today.

The general list tried hard to hang on to a persistently rising railroad division, but lost its grip. The carriers put on a one group show and coasted through the session to ring up a majority of moderate net gains among active leaders. There were a few scattered losses among rails but not enough to take the shine off the group's performance.

Strength in Rails.

Explaining the strength in rails in the face of reactionary tendencies elsewhere, some traders thought that liquidation might be in progress in the general list under cover of strength in the carrier group, while others credited the bulls with doing their best to stir up enthusiasm for the entire market by making the rails look good.

Trading, centering around the rails, was quite active in the early part of the session but slowed down in the afternoon, with development of the uncertain trend, the turnover for the day approximating 930,000 shares.

From a technical point of view the moderate volume was regarded favorably, since traders refuse to worry over the market so long as investors hang on to their holdings.

Absorbs Offers.

It was plainly evident, however, that the market was experiencing a little difficulty in absorbing what offerings there were. Such offerings appeared to be hanging over around the mid-December high levels. The list's action through the middle of the day encouraged sufficient profit taking to bring on a reactionary tone. At the same time the market as a whole had little or no difficulty in stabilizing itself when the dip threatened to exceed a fractional extent, encouraging the bulls no little.

The closing hour found a firm undertone displayed in most sections, with the list seeming to draw renewed strength from the vigorous railroad sector.

The setback in wheat after an early rise was perhaps a drag on stock prices. At the same time the street appeared to be in a waiting mood pending the publication at noon tomorrow of the December tonnage report of the United States Steel corporation. There was little immediate news of market importance.

Numerous New Highs.

Pennsylvania, New York Central, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, and New Haven were among the rail favorites, and new highs for the movement were numerous.

Trading in steel and other industrial shares was dull, with prices inclined to weaken in late dealings. Prices of United States Steel common and preferred and Bethlehem Steel ruled slightly under Saturday's finish, it being obvious that traders were timid about taking on new commitments without a look at tomorrow's tonnage report.

Farm implement stocks, including Case and Harvester, as well as mail order shares, like Montgomery and Sears-Roebuck, were easy in sympathy with wheat.

The traditional rally of motor shares during the annual automobile show has yet to make an appearance. General Motors, Chrysler and Auburn, among others, were heavy most of the time.

Utilities were irregular, as were the oils and coppers.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

While wheat sold at a new high on the current movement in the early trading yesterday, there was not the snap to the buying so much in evidence late last week. May sold at 49⅛c shortly after the opening yesterday, or 6¼c over the low of Dec. 28 and the highest since Nov. 17, but dropped steadily to 48c and closed at the bottom. Profit taking by operators who bought recently was strongly in evidence, and the break was helped along by independent weakness in Winnipeg.

Commission houses and the local element were on the selling side of wheat, and found support less aggressive, the concentrated buying which assisted in making the bulge of last week being absent. Support from shorts and holders of bids checked the decline, with the finish at net losses of ⅜@1c. May closed at 48c, with July 47⅝@47¾c and September 48⅜c.

Liquidation by longs and selling by Chicago interests were responsible for a break of 1¼@1½c at Winnipeg, part of the selling representing backspread in with the local market. Export demand was also light.

Wall Street Buys Wheat.

There was nothing in the news to account for the break in wheat, and pit brokers generally ascribed the decline as a natural reaction in view of the advance of 6¼c in about ten days. Foreign markets have about kept pace with the upturn in Chicago. Liverpool May sold at 51⅝c early in the day, the highest figure since trading started in that delivery on Nov. 17, with the finish at 50⅝c. The English market was ⅛@¼c per bu lower at the last.

Houses with Wall street connections are said to have been among the largest buyers of wheat futures late last week. They are understood to be impressed with the possibilities on the buying side.

There was buying of July wheat yesterday due to the continued dry weather in the American southwest, and it gained ¼c on the May, the new crop month being ¼@⅜c discount at the last.

Corn Market Easier.

Trade in corn was not large and the market was easier, in sympathy with wheat. Futures closed ⅜@⅝c lower, with May at 27⅛@27¼c, July at 28⅛@28⅝c, and September 29⅜c. Bids to arrive for cash grain were advanced ⅛c per bu as compared with May, but without increasing country offerings to any extent.

Houses with eastern connections were buyers of rye against sales of wheat, and the former closed 1c lower. Profit taking had a depressing effect. May finished at 35⅝c and July at 34½c. Oats were ⅛c lower, with a light trade. May closed at 17⅝c and July at 17⅞c. Barley declined ⅞c, with May 28⅜c at the close.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw declined 2 points today to the basis of 2.78c for spots, although there was better inquiry at this level, with holders again advancing to 2.80c. The only sale confirmed was 34,200 bags of Philippines to an outport refiner due Jan. 29 at 2.78c. Futures changed narrowly, although the undertone was firmer, due to lack of offerings rather than aggressive demand. Final prices showed net advances of 1 to 2 points. The market opened unchanged to 1 point higher on covering and scattered buying through trade and commission houses. Final prices were the best of the session. Approximate sales were 6,300 tons.
